House Rejects Income Levy For District; Deficit Faced

197-87 Vote Depletes Revenue Bill as It Is Sent to Senate.

Nichols Deplores Governing Method

King Favors Restoring Provision; Committee Toiled 3 Months.

By James D. Secrest.

For the second time, the House yesterday refused to pass a District income tax and thereby took the heart out of a $5,000,000 local revenue bill on which a sub-committee of the House District Committee had spent three months work.

By a vote of 197 to 87, the House adopted a motion of Representative Howard W. Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, to strike out the entire title levying a graduated income tax of from 1 to 10 per cent on District residents and on nonresidents earning their income within the District.

As a result the District tax bill was sent to the Senate with a deficit of from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 to be met by the Senate District Committee.

King Would Restore Tax.

Chairman King, of the Senate District Committee, long a champion of a local income tax, stated that he would favor restoring the provisions stricken by the House. He said he will call a meeting of his committee this week to begin consideration of the revenue problem.

While Representative Smith, in proposing that the income tax be scuttled, suggested increases in the beer and liquor tax or $1.85 realty rate, he was not given an opportunity to offer the amendments after his motion was carried. Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, who handled the bill, moved at once to report the bill to the full House from the Committee of the whole in order to get members on record on the motion.

Nichols Disappointed.

Obviously disappointed at seeing the House act so cavalierly on a proposal on which he had spent weeks of work, Nichols remarked:

"This convinces me that there has got to be some change in the method of governing the District of Columbia. Congress today proved that it is influenced by its prejudices rather than any deliberate judgment as to what is best for the District in passing on local legislation."

He added that it was "silly" for members to complain, on the one hand against the Federal government contributing to the maintenance of the National Capital, and then refusing to tax it on the other.

Says Noses Spite Faces.

"The opposition of Smith and Lewis (Democrat), of Maryland, against the income tax is understandable," he said, "but the members who voted with them don't know that they are cutting off their noses to spite their faces by helping to keep the Federal pay rolls stocked up with residents of Maryland and Virginia."

The action of the House came somewhat as a surprise, despite the advance warning from Smith and Lewis in a form letter to members over the week-end. It followed a rather laconic two-hour debate in which proponents of the bill appeared clearly to hold an advantage.

When the roll call came, however, even members of the House District Committee, who had a

Japan, Italy Reported Negotiating War Pact

Copyright, 1938, by The Washington Post. Special Correspondence of The Post.

Shanghai, April 11.—With the destinies of the Pacific and the Mediterranean at stake, negotiations leading to the conclusion of an Italo-Japanese military alliance are in progress in Tokyo, it was learned today from authoritative foreign sources.

Simultaneously, Italian and Japanese experts were reported to be discussing a comprehensive trade agreement, complementing last year's commercial accord, signed in Rome.

The scope of the contemplated war alliance was not disclosed, but it was learned that the pact would provide for co-operation of both the land and sea forces of the two powers.

Included in the projected history-making agreement also would be a provision for an exchange of military information between the general staffs of the two nations.

While it was believed the war pact would not name the powers regarded as likely adversaries, it was pointed out that such an agreement would tend to operate against France and Britain.

Both democracies, it was emphasized, would be compelled to split their fighting units if their interests in the Pacific and the Mediterranean were threatened simultaneously.

The negotiations for a trade accord, it was learned, deal with the following items:

State encouragement for the export of Italian military aircraft, motor vessels and automobiles to Japan.

Purchase of Nippon-made munitions by Italy.

Rail Problem Put in Hands Of Congress

No Recommendation Is Made by President on I. C. C. Report.

First Reaction Indicates Major Legislation Is Not Now Feasible.

By Sidney Olson.

The case of the sick $26,000,000,000 railroad industry was submitted to Congress yesterday by President Roosevelt, accompanied by the clinical notes of a dozen of the leading diagnosticians of the carriers' ills.

In almost unprecedented contrast to his usual practice, the President made no recommendations of any sort, thus placing the drafting of intensely controversial legislation squarely in the laps of a Congress that hopes to adjourn by May 10.

The immediate reaction on Capitol Hill was that no major legislation bearing on the intricate, widely ramified problem can now be undertaken. There was only the possibility that minor recommendations of the committee of three members of the Interstate Commerce Commission—embodied in the President's message—might be sped through before the early election-year adjournment.

Wheeler May Call Parley.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, announced he may call together a group representing rail labor, management, the RFC and the I. C. C., to work out some parts of the program for immediate easing of the crisis.

Wheeler said he had waited two months for the President's report while holding back legislation to simplify reorganizations, and stressed that the major parts of the program would require six months of intensive Congressional study and argument before final action.

Chairman Clarence Lea (Democrat), of California, of the House announced he will seek at a meeting next week to get his committee to sponsor legislation embodying the first five of the six I. C. C. recommendations for an emergency program.

Barkley Expresses Doubt.

Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, expressed doubt that any substantial portion of the rail program could be passed at this session.

The President made clear his personal opposition both to Government subsidies to railroads unable to meet current obligations and to Government ownership and operation of the carriers.

Twice in his message he made references to the need for Government reorganization of agencies dealing with transportation problems—references that at once were construed on Capitol Hill as evidence of pique

Daladier Seeks Quick Power as 130,000 Strike

Reduces Cabinet Dictatorship Plan to 3 Months to Pacify Left.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, April 11.—Premier Daladier, determined to strike before the opposition could consolidate against him, drew a revised plan today to make his "national defense" cabinet dictator of France's destiny for the next three months.

As the new premier worked on his program, rapidly spreading strikes paralyzed the metal industries in the Paris region despite his appeal to the nation for discipline. Workers from a dozen of the capital's largest factories joined some 60,000 strikers already out, swelling the total to nearly 130,000.

Leaders of the strike, which up to tonight had closed nearly 100 factories, including a number of nationalized plants working for the national defense, appealed to workers in other industries to join the movement. The huge Renault automobile motor plant was occupied by its 35,000 workers.

Dr. Grinnell Dies; Called 'Father of U.S.Conservation'

New York, April 11 (AP).—Dr. George Bird Grinnell, 88, author and naturalist who often was called "the father of American conservation," died today.

Author of numerous books about the American Indians and regarded as one of the greatest living authorities on the plains Indians, he made many trips into Western territory, one with Gen. George Custer in 1874.

Dr. Grinnell founded the Audubon Society in 1886 and the Boone and Crockett Club in 1887. He was a close friend and associate of Theodore Roosevelt.

In 1925 he succeeded Herbert Hoover as president of the National Parks Association.

Japan Pays Adventists For Bombed Hospital

Tokyo, April 11 (AP).—The Japanese government today paid the Seventh Day Adventist mission in South China $2,365 for damaging a hospital at Waichow in a bombing raid last September. The money settlement was the first of its kind to be made. Payment was made through the American Embassy.

Franco Takes Roads to North Of Barcelona

Resistance Cleared Away Near Balaguer as Hills Are Captured.

By the Associated Press.

Hendaye, France, April 11.—Spanish insurgents striving to open a direct way to Barcelona today swept into La Rapita, controlling important crossroads in Lerida Province.

The fierce government resistance which disputed the insurgent crossing of the Segre River at Balaguer yesterday diminished as Gen. Franco's forces pushed east.

With La Rapita the heights commanding Balaguer on the east were taken, putting that city outside the range of enemy bombardments.

La Rapita is a key point on the road connecting Balaguer with Agramunt, 15 miles to the east.

Insurgents reported minor successes by troops operating south of this sector, in the region of Tortosa, where a final drive to the Mediterranean was being shaped.

Stalemate Costly.

[The stalemate outside Tortosa was said to be proving costly to Franco, according to the United Press.

[During the last few days the loyalists reportedly have thrown at least 20,000 troops into the Rio Cerbol and Rio Secol de Benicarlo valleys to hold up the enemy advance.

[Franco today sent more bombing and fighting planes into the sector and they bombed, in almost endless relays, the 24-mile strip of coast between Tortosa and Benicarlo.

[The government's new fleet of planes, which flew over Barcelona Saturday and Sunday to arouse the populace to a "last stand" defense, took no part in the air combat.

[Frontier reports said Negrin would not send the Russian planes into battle until a sufficient number have been assembled to guarantee an even chance in combat with the enemy air fleet.—Editor's note.]

Whitney Given 5 to 10 Years Despite Appeal for Leniency

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 11.—Richard Whitney, haggard but composed, waited in Tombs Prison tonight to be taken up the river to Sing Sing tomorrow to begin a 5-to-10-year term for grand larceny.

The bankrupt broker stood in General Sessions Court today, heard his counsel, Charles H. Tuttle, plead for leniency, heard Judge Owen W. Bohan briefly and acidly summarize his speculations, and finally pronounce the sentence that will keep him behind bars for at least three years and four months. The proceeding took 40 minutes.

The chief probation officer of the city called Whitney—five times president of the Stock Exchange—"proud, egotistical and obstinate," a man to whom the notion of personal and financial failure "was apparently inconceivable." A psychiatric report stated Whitney possesses "superior intelligence," is unimaginative, and never believed "he could run afoul of the law." An intelligence test, the report said, showed Whitney rated so high that only "1 per cent of the people of the world could score as well."

Judge Bohan, taking note of these reports, of Whitney's insistence that he alone was responsible for the crash of Richard Whitney & Co. with estimated personal and firm obligations of $5,524,000, and of District Attorney Thomas E.

$4,000,000 Gone, Coogan Says in Suing Stepfather

Hollywood, April 11 (U.P.).—Jackie Coogan, who built up a huge fortune in the silent days of the movies, late today filed a complaint in Los Angeles Superior Court which accused his mother and stepfather of depriving him of $4,000,000 of his past earnings.

The former boy star, now the husband of blonde Betty Grable, brought complaint against Mrs. Lillian Coogan Bernstein and Arthur L. Bernstein. The Bernsteins were married after the death of Jackie's father in an automobile accident three years ago.

Roosevelt May 'Chat' on Radio On $1,500,000,000 for Relief; Tiff With Garner Is Reported

Roosevelt Quip Reportedly Stirs Garner's Ire

Vice President Said to Be Incensed at Joke on Merger Defeat.

No Decision Made On Loans to Cities

President May Send His 'Emergency' Message to Congress Thursday.

By Robert C. Albright.

A "fireside chat" with the country on the President's latest recovery program was proposed last night after White House conferees reached virtual agreement yesterday on spending $1,250,000,000 to $1,500,000,000 for seven months of emergency relief.

A reported personal disagreement between President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner developed as the President opened a series of conferences with Congressional leaders.

The "fireside" radio follow-up on a recovery message to Congress late this week was hinted at the White House following a day of activity reminiscent of 1933 recovery planning.

Fail to Agree on PWA.

The message may be sent to Congress Thursday, and the President may take the radio the same night to outline his aims in connection with the general economic situation.

Although leaders were generally in harmony with the President's relief proposals, no agreement was reached for the time being on an additional $1,500,000,000 of long-term, noninterest-bearing PWA loans to cities and political subdivisions. This was subjected to further study, along with proposals for expanding Federal low-cost housing activities.

Reports of sharp words between Garner and his "chief" spread through House and Senate following the first conference, but Garner, who is known to oppose renewal of PWA "pump priming" efforts, declined to discuss it with reporters.

As the principals declined comment, the rumor of a "row" reached major proportions, and Senators freely repeated it in the lobbies.

Joke Is Resented.

Garner was said to have resented a jocular remark made by the President about the manner in which the recommitted reorganization bill was handled by House managers. Garner is a close friend of House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, a fellow Texan, who managed his campaign for the Vice Presidency.

While Garner remained silent, Rayburn denied there was any serious disagreement when he was present. He said he arrived "20 minutes late," but the conference was proceeding harmoniously when he appeared.

A strictly legislative conference was held at the White House at 10 a. m., attended by Garner, Rayburn, Senate Majority Leader Barkley and Speaker Bankhead. Ranking Democrats on Senate and House appropriations committees attended a second conference at 11 a. m., which was said to have proceeded "peacefully."

Details Worked Out.

There was only a bare mention of the proposed $1,500,000,000 PWA program at the second conference, but details of the new seven-month relief program were worked out. The President told leaders he regarded it in no sense as a "pump-priming" program, but as purely a matter of meeting present economic needs.

He said no final decision has been reached on the PWA proposal, which has aroused general opposition among Senate and House conservatives. Garner, himself, is said to be keenly against a general re-

Senate Tightens Civil Service, Blocks Spoils System Revival

Aroused Chamber Defeats McKellar's Bill to Relax Requirements; Substitutes House Measure Providing 8-Year Postmaster Appointments.

The Senate, in a fighting mood, yesterday killed an attempt to restore the old "spoils" system of postmaster patronage and then went on to reverse that attempt completely by passing instead a bill drastically tightening civil service requirements.

So aroused on this subject did a number of Senators become that the chamber went even further, over the opposition of the Democratic leaders, and voted by a crushing majority to take up a bill striking at the very root of local and national political machinery.

This bill, offered by Senator Carl Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, would ban any person employed in any capacity by the Federal Government from participation as a delegate or alternate to any political convention—precinct, county, State or National—which would choose or elect a President, Vice President, Senator or Representative in the United States.

$1,000 Fine Is Penalty.

The penalty would be a $1,000 fine—not more—and loss of the Government position.

In the midst of the late afternoon enthusiasm for "clean government," Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, adjourned the body until Thursday of this week—the first long midweek recess taken this session—on the basis that no important legislation is on the calendar.

The attempt to revive the "spoils system" came through Senator Kenneth McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, chairman of the Senate Postoffice Committee, and avowed enemy of the civil service, who sponsored a bill relaxing merit system requirements and allowing the President to appoint first, second and third class postmasters without a prior civil service examination.

McKellar Favors "Old Way."

Customarily, members of Congress recommend the appointee under that system.

President Roosevelt, many months ago, issued an executive order instructing the Civil Service Commission to appoint postmasters by selecting the candidate winning the highest rating in a competitive examination.

McKellar, hotly urging a return to "the old way" as best, charged that "some civil service clerk in

Two Sisters Visit Bowie Races, but Don't Have to Pay

By a Staff Correspondent.

Bowie, Md., April 11.—Miss Ruth Mayo, 20, and her sister, Muriel, 17, gained admittance to Bowie race track early this afternoon without buying tickets or going through the turnstiles. When they discovered they were inside the track, they didn't even stay to see the races.

The sisters were flying their yellow plane from Somerset Hills, N. J., and were bound for Washington, using the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks as a guide. They were led astray by a spur which comes into the race track.

Ruth made a perfect landing in the infield to be greeted by a group of horsemen and jockeys, but after getting directions, hurriedly sent the plane soaring over the pine trees toward College Park Airport.

Blonde Is Hunted Near Border in Frome Slayings

El Paso, Tex., April 11 (AP).—The search for a blonde woman and her male companion, suspects in the torture slaying of Mrs. Weston G. Frome and her daughter, Nancy, narrowed down tonight to the vicinity of Laredo on the Mexican border.

While Texas Rangers and peace officers bottled up highways there, a woman arrested at Temple, Tex., was released.

At Laredo, C. Mendiola, chief of police, said he believed the suspects, driving a dark automobile filled with luggage, were in the tightening police net.

Congress Urged to Develop Gravelly Point as an Auxiliary Field.

New life was given to the dormant Camp Springs airport proposal of the Washington Airport Commission yesterday when President Roosevelt, in an apparent reversal of attitude, recommended that Congress establish it as a national flying field at once and develop Gravelly Point as an auxiliary airport over a period of several years.

Chairman May of the House Military Affairs Committee, which had handled the bill last year after prompt Senate passage, said he would move at once to call it up in the House and expressed belief that it will be passed.

Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, who sponsored the measure in the Senate and had it approved last August, was gratified at the President's message, but pointed out that had the House acted last session the Camp Springs airport now would be ready for use.

While the immediate fate of the Gravelly Point proposal is uncertain, indications are that the Camp Springs project will be approved by the House and be started early this summer.

The House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, which has been holding hearings, will report shortly on bills to establish national airports at Gravelly Point and Suitland, Md.

The principal obstacle heretofore to House approval of the Camp Springs bill was the general understanding that the President was opposed to it and would veto the bill if sent to him. He disclosed his attitude in conferences with members of the House early in the season.

At that time he was understood to be influenced by the argument of the Navy Department that its radio station at Cheltenham, Md., would be hampered by the flying field, but in his letter yesterday to the chairmen of the Senate and House Military Affairs Committees

Medical Society Offers to Aid Group Health in Serving Poor

The Medical Society of the District of Columbia last night offered an olive branch to the Group Health Association a few hours after Dr. Earl B. McKinley, dean of the George Washington University Medical School, told a medical conference experiments in "socialized medicine" are doomed to failure.

Dr. Thomas E. Neill, president of the medical society, in a letter to William C. Kirkpatrick, president of Group Health, said the society "is willing to co-operate with any lay group, including Group Health Association, Inc., in setting up and carrying out a program" to afford better medical care to persons of low income. He said the "only conditions" were that this program be "legal, ethical, economically sound and that the services provided conform to recognized medical standards."

Kirkpatrick, presiding at a meeting of group health in the Department of Labor auditorium, told The Post he had not received Dr. Neill's letter last night. He declined to offer what he said would be "curbstone opinion" until he had read and digested the letter, but added it was the first peace offering his association had received from the medical society.

Since establishment of the health group, formed originally to afford medical service to employes of the Home Owners Loan Corporation on a monthly payment basis, the med-

Supreme Court Says Townsend Must Be Jailed

Pension Campaigner Who Defied House Denied a Further Appeal.

Unless President Roosevelt intervenes, Dr. Francis E. Townsend, aged champion of pensions for the aged, must serve 30 days in a District jail, the Supreme Court decided in effect yesterday.

What the court did was refuse to review the sentence imposed by the United States District Court, and upheld by the District Court of Appeals, for walking out on a House committee investigating his $200 a month pension plan in May, 1936.

Whereabouts a Secret.

Townsend told the Supreme Court in a petition he was justified in his walk-out because of the "apparent unfriendly attitude" of the committee and questions asked him of "an intensely personal and insulting tenor."

Elisha Hanson, counsel for the 71-year-old Californian, said he could not disclose Dr. Townsend's present whereabouts, but indicated he would arrive here early next week. He indicated it would take two weeks to arrange for his commitment.

Since Supreme Court refusal to intervene, only a Presidential pardon can spare the pension crusader from jail, where plans to use his "rusty old typewriter" to write the "inside story" of the incident. Representative Jerry J. O'Connell (Democrat), of Montana, has asked the President to pardon O'Connell.

Refusal of the Townsend appeal was the highlight of a court docket that marked refusal of the tribunal to rule on constitutionality of the Bankhead cotton control act but consented to decide whether States can still vote on the proposed constitutional amendment to abolish child labor.

Administration Loses.

The Administration received its first high court set-back in weeks, when the justices refused to review a decision by the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals that in effect invalidated the Bankhead cotton act. The lower court decided Lee Moor, of El Paso, Tex., is entitled to a $223 refund in taxes imposed under the act. Altogether $1,562,087 of tax collections under the statute are involved.

Although Congress repealed the Bankhead act after the AAA law was invalidated, it has not authorized tax refunds. Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson appealed from the lower court decision, arguing that the Bankhead act should have been held constitutional.

Child Labor Review Granted.

Other action by the court yesterday:

Set aside the murder conviction of Joe Hale, McCracken County, Ky., colored man, on the ground that members of his race were barred from the juries which indicted and tried him. The high court ordered a new trial.

Decided to review a decision by a Kentucky Court of Appeals that the proposed child labor amendment to the Constitution is no longer legally before the States for ratification. The case will be argued along with the litigation brought by a group of Kansas State legislators raising the same issue, which the court recently consented to hear.

Agreed to the Government's request for review of a Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals decision that the 10 per cent Federal admission tax on athletic events staged by the University of Georgia and Georgia Tech, is unconstitutional. The lower court held the institutions are instrumentalities of the States, and as such not subject to taxation.

Board of Trade Is Given Plan to Junk 2 Bridges

Plans to abolish the Highway and Railroad bridges across the Potomac River at the foot of Fourteenth street southwest and replace them with a modern vehicular span and tunnels were presented to a joint meeting of the Board of Trade's street and avenues and bridge committees yesterday by Col. Peter M. Anderson, consulting engineer and architect.

Under Col. Anderson's proposal, Southern truck and train traffic would travel through tunnels directly beneath a new bridge designed to harmonize with the Memorial span. He estimated cost of construction at $18,000,000.

The plans have been presented to Secretary of the Interior Ickes for consideration.

The joint committees deferred discussion of the proposal in order to honor Col. Charles A. Langley, 88, a member of the Board of Trade since its founding nearly 50 years ago.

The committee will propose for re-election to the board of directors Miss Belle Sherwin, Mrs. Eugene Meyer, John Ihlder and Dr. George C. Ruhland, while Arthur Schoenthal is to be nominated for a one-year term.

The Treasury sold $160,000,000 of 91-day Treasury bills yesterday at an average price of 99.963, equivalent to borrowing money at 0.146 per cent. Last week, the average price was 99.965, equivalent to 0.139 per cent.

Green Denounces New Draft of Wage and Hour Bill as 'Baffling and Confusing.'

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor in a letter sent yesterday to Representative Mary Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey, chairman of the House Labor Committee expressed unalterable opposition to the new draft of the wage and hour bill to be considered today by the House Labor Committee.

WILLIAM GREEN.

He denounced the new proposal as a "baffling and confusing measure even more objectionable than previous proposals which were defeated. "It constitutes a proposal to impose on industry, as a national policy, dictatorial control over the employer-employe relationship—no less and no more," wrote Green.

While rejecting the new bill, Green reiterated the advantages of the wage and hour bill sponsored by the American Federation of Labor. He said the three fundamentals for any wage and hour bill acceptable to the A. F. of L. must be a specific floor for wages, a ceiling for hours and administration by the Department of Justice.

Representative Clare E. Hoffman (Republican), of Michigan, speaking on personal privilege in the House also touched on the labor problem. He warned his colleagues that "sooner or later you'll amend the labor law and clean house on the National Labor Relations Board."

Meanwhile, Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), of New York, author of the labor act, introduced a resolution calling for an investigation looking to framing of legislation for Federal assistance to persons needing medical care.

Cotton growers lost millions of dollars through under-rating of several million bales of cotton placed in Government pools, Col. Lawrence Westbrook testified yesterday before the Senate Agriculture Committee. He had been employed by the committee to investigate the operations of the American Cotton Co-operative Association.

Westbrook reported the association's ratings had averaged "61 points or $3.05 a bale" under sample reclassification. This would represent a loss in value of more than $4,800,000 on 1,600,000 bales of cotton held by the Commodity Credit Corporation, Government loan agnecy, he said.

The write-your-Senator-or-Representative drives may cost the taxpayers money in addition to the initial cost paid by the sender of the message, it was disclosed yesterday. Joseph Sinnott, House doorkeeper, asked an appropriation of $20,000 for increased clerical help in the "folding room" where Representatives' speeches and letters are prepared for mailing and said he might need more money. The increased number of radio speeches made by Representatives also caused more work, said Sinnott.

Surprise Party Is Given Fords, Wed 50 Years

'Never an Argument the Whole Time,' Motor Magnate Declares.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, April 11—Henry Ford and Clara Bryant Ford went to a party tonight—a party that commemorated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding and Mrs. Ford's seventy-first birthday.

Hosts were their son and daughter-in-law, Edsel and Eleanor Ford, in the younger Fords' home in Grosse Pointe Shores. Several hundred friends, old and new, were invited to honor the couple who began their married life in a farmhouse not far from where stands the parent plant of the great Ford Motor Co.

In his 50 years of marriage, Ford said tonight, he never had an argument with Mrs. Ford—"Not one."

Praises Mother-in-Law.

"Who did the yielding?" he was asked.

"We never had any trouble; neither of us ever did any yielding," he replied.

Ford said that besides picking out a "good wife," it was important to "pick a good mother-in-law." Of his own, Martha Bryant, he said: "She always believed in me. She always believed in my experiments."

Ford recalled that he wore a "Prince Albert" at his wedding, that he had no best man and also that there was no honeymoon.

The Ford grandchildren and other members of the family were among those at tonight's reception.

Old Detroit was prominently represented in the guest list, along with a number of public officials and leaders in the automotive world.

Party Is "Surprise."

A number of separate dinner parties were held in Grosse Pointe, Dearborn and elsewhere in the Detroit metropolitan area, with a buffet supper in the Edsel Ford home.

Exact details of the party were carefully guarded throughout the day to provide a "surprise" for Mr. and Mrs. Ford.

Tonight's reception followed a day in which Mr. and Mrs. Ford spent much of the time together at their home, Fairlane, in Dearborn. Here, across the highway from the Ford engineering laboratory and his early American village, floral tributes and telegrams of felicitation arrived throughout the day.

Tomorrow evening Mr. and Mrs. Ford will be honored in Dearborn by the city's service clubs.

Two Years Longer To Aid Banks Asked

By the Associated Press.

Chairman Leo T. Crowley of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation asked Congress yesterday to extend for two years the corporation's authority to facilitate the merger of banks when necessary to prevent failures.

The present authority of the corporation expires July 1. Under it, in the first three months of this year, the corporation lent $20,000,000 to prevent the failure of ten banks.

Am. Tel. & Tel. Net Lower in February

New York, April 11 (AP).—American Telephone & Telegraph Co., reported today net operating income for February totaled $784,387, compared with $1,806,773 in February, 1937. Gross income for February amounted to $8,332,126 against $8,713,508 a year ago.

Net operating income covers operating activities only, excluding nonoperating income such as dividends, interest and other revenues received, and nonoperating charges such as interest and rents paid.

3 C. I. O. Aides Arrested Here In Transit Drive

Organizers Were Passing Out Leaflets Advertising Union Meeting.

Three organizers for the Transport Workers Union, C. I. O. unit which has challenged the A. F. of L. for control of Washington transit employes, today faced trial in Police Court on charges of distributing handbills.

The C. I. O. agents were arrested yesterday at the Navy Yard car barn, Eighth and M streets southeast, as they passed out leaflets advertising mass meetings to be held tonight by the Transport Workers Union. All were later released on bond.

Those arrested were Miss Sophie Katz, 20, of 920 Nineteenth street northwest; Miss Florence Bosner, 20, of 1228 Fourteenth street northwest, and James Pictone, 22, of Fairmont street northwest.

The organizers arrested yesterday were among 200 attempting to reach 3,200 transit employes with a C. I. O. summons to two rallies, to be held tonight at 8:30 p. m. and 1 a. m. in Turner's Arena, 1341 W street northwest.

Public support for the C. I. O. union in its fight for designation as sole bargaining agent for the bus and street car operators and shopmen was sought in a statement issued by Sidney R. Katz, secretary of the Washington Industrial Union Council.

"Our campaign means better service, safer service and better working conditions among the men," Katz said.

Steel Firm Defies U.S. Order, Awaits Suit Over Legality

Chicago, April 11 (AP).—The Inland Steel Corporation announced today it would petition the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals to set aside last week's National Labor Relations Board ruling, which ordered the company to sign any collective bargaining agreement reached with C. I. O.'s Steel Workers Organizing Committee.

In a letter to Leonard C. Bajork, regional director of the Labor Board, Inland's attorneys stated the company had "taken no steps to comply with the board's order . . . and will take no such steps until the order has been upheld by the courts."

Inland also disclosed it had refused to meet with the S. W. O. C. to negotiate a contract.

Deal With Union, Heinz Is Ordered

By the Associated Press.

The Labor Relations Board ordered the H. J. Heinz Co. of Pittsburgh yesterday to deal with the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America (A. F. of L.) and to sign a contract with the union if an agreement is reached.

The board also directed the food firm to break up the Heinz Employes Association, which the board said was company dominated.

Time Too Tense For Neutrality Repeal Hearing

McReynolds Charges Legislation Is Sponsored by Communists.

No hearings on any bill seeking repeal or amendment of the neutrality act will be held "in these critical times," Chairman Sam D. McReynolds (Democrat), Tennessee, of the House Foreign Affairs Committee announced last night.

McReynolds charged bluntly that most of the demand for repeal or modification of the act stems from Communists or Communist-inspired organizations who seek to aid the loyalist cause in the Spanish civil war."

Repeal Is Demanded.

At present no arms or munitions may be shipped to either side in the Spanish conflict, and advocates of repeal of the embargo argue that this in effect is a grant of American aid to the insurgents under Gen. Francisco Franco, because of the heavy direct participation of Germany and Italy in the rebel cause.

"There is no possibility of action at this session of Congress," said McReynolds, whose office is stacked with approximately 25,000 postal cards, 12,000 telegrams and 7,000 letters which almost unanimously demand repeal or modification of the act.

McReynolds, in his first statement explaining what had been reported to be a sudden decision calling off hearings scheduled on bills to repeal the neutrality act, declared that his committee had unanimously refused, in his support, to hold hearings on such controversial measures.

Denies Promising Hearings.

He said that at no time had he promised to hold such hearings, but that the impression had arisen from an erroneous newspaper story. He said:

"I did agree that I would be glad to have before this committee a list of people of national prominence—former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson and others—to express their views generally. But these gentlemen were not advocating this class of legislation in which so many of our foreign element are interested."

He studied the bills before his committee and noted that none bore directly on the views which the gentlemen in question sought to express, he said, and as a result canceled his plans.

Pressure immediately began for wide-open hearings on the neutrality problem, he said, and mounted daily in intensity. He said that he realized the opening of such a vital question would arouse national controversy in direct partisan conflict over American aid to foreign countries now engaged in war.

More than 90 per cent of the letters, telegrams and postcards were from various sections of New York City, including Brooklyn, and the metropolis' suburban area, McReynolds noted, and added:

"I might say that these various letters and telegrams, to a great extent coming from communistic organizations, which are abusive in language in demanding hearings, will be to no avail in accomplishing what they desire."

He said that many of the letters came "from sources that care nothing about this country becoming involved abroad if they are able to render aid to those foreign countries with which they are in sympathy."

The man who started the flood of missives to McReynolds, it was learned, was Representative Byron Scott (Democrat), of California, who at a Madison Square Garden rally to raise funds for the loyalists, held several weeks ago, urged all present to write or telegraph McReynolds, demanding hearings.

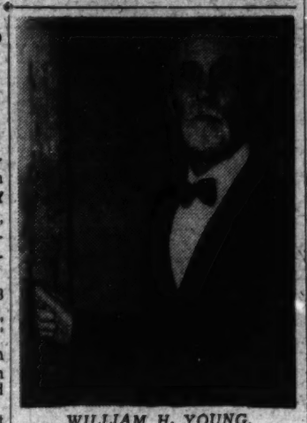
House Doorman, 96 Years Old, Has Seen 'Good Deal' Happen

Young's Hearing Not So Sharp as It Was at Pittsburg Landing.



WILLIAM H. YOUNG.

"There's been a good deal happening since 1842," mused William H. Young, doorman at the House of Representatives' diplomatic gallery, as he stood at his post yesterday receiving congratulations on his ninety-sixth birthday.

"I've only been doing this for 13 years," the dean of doormen said, "and that's not much out of 96." Young came to his "new" job from the Middle West, where he was "in banking" and, before that, worked in a general store.

It was to the pioneer settlement of Hedrick, Iowa, that Young marched back in 1865 with veterans of "Crocker's Iowa Brigade." But the years that stretch between the Civil War and 1938 are swiftly bridged as the old man chuckles and recalls a recent conversation with Speaker Bankhead, whose father fought on the other side at the Battle of Shiloh.

"And now today "Judge" McReynolds from Tennessee stood up on the floor of the House and said some nice things about me," he continued. "This afternoon the guides have been pointing me out to all the tourists.

"Of course Chief Justice Hughes has a birthday today, too," the erect old sentinel concedes. "But he's just a youngster—he's only 76."

Young's hearing is not as sharp these days as it was when the rifles clattered at Pittsburg Landing, and he doesn't always hear the Majority Leader when he announces the hour for the House to convene the following morning.

"I just look in The Post every morning to see when I ought to be there and then I go down by bus and street car from Glover Park. I haven't missed a day since I've been on the job."

The veteran lives with his son, Waldo W. Young, at 3731 T street northwest.

$171,000 Is Asked To Pay Congress' Travel Expenses

By the Associated Press.

The House Appropriations Committee asked Congress yesterday to appropriate $171,000 to pay the travel expenses of the members between their homes and Washington for this session.

The legislators drew the same amount for the special session which ended only ten days before the regular session convened. They receive 20 cents a mile for the round trip to the Capital.

The travel item was included in a recommendation that Congress appropriate $21,594,481 for 1939 expenses of the Government's legislative establishment.

The total is $2,689,244 less than the current year and $156,976 less than the Budget Bureau recommended. It would be used for salaries of Senators and Representatives and maintenance of all Federal activities on Capitol Hill.

The committee approved appointment of nine new clerks for its own use, and added $5,000 to the current $20,000 appropriation for the "folding room," which prepares Congressional speeches for the mails.

Moving Sidewalk May Carry House Members to Job

Representatives, like Senators, may ride through their tunnel if present plans for installing a "moving sidewalk" in the subway between the House Office Building and the Capitol are carried out.

David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, yesterday told a House Appropriations sub-committee a New York firm had designed the device which could be installed for about $175,000. House members now have to walk from their offices to the Capitol Building.

Similar to the escalator in principle, he explained the traveling path incorporates special engineering features to accommodate it to the curves in the subway. He estimated the equipment would save the members about one minute each way.

Senators travel between their offices and the Capitol on a miniature electric railway, but the House has so many members the same plan would not be practicable.

McNinch to Head 4-Man Inquiry on Broadcast Chains

By the Associated Press.

The Communications Commission announced yesterday that its investigation of chain broadcasting and monopoly in the broadcasting industry would be made by a four-man committee, headed by Chairman Frank McNinch.

The other members were Commissioners Thad H. Brown, Paul A. Walker and Eugene O. Sykes. Brown will be vice chairman.

The investigating staff ordered the FCC staff to analyze as quickly as possible all contracts on file relative to chain broadcasting. The date for public hearings has not been set.

Western Cadets Win 1st Prize in Regimental Drill

Parading smartly in their best military manner, Western High School's crack cadet regiment walked off the field at Central High Stadium yesterday with first prize in the annual regimental competition of six Washington high schools. The band of Roosevelt High was adjudged the best band in the event.

The six regiments, all in top form after months of intensive training, paraded in view of nearly 5,000 enthusiastic high school students, who applauded their schools as the regiments passed the reviewing stand.

Second and third prizes in the regimental drill was awarded to Central and Roosevelt schools, respectively, and second best band was won by Western. Eastern and McKinley schools tied for third place in the band competition. Cadet Capt. John T. Mitchell, leader of the Roosevelt band, was also awarded a medal by the Bunker Post of the American Legion. Cadet Lieut. Col. Richard Green received the medal as commander of the best-drilled regiment.

Presentations were made to the winning schools by Col. Frederic G. Kellond, U. S. A., inspector of the Third Corps Area, and Dr. Harvey A. Smith, assistant superintendent of schools. Drill judges were Capt. James Regan, jr., First Lieut. Forrest Caraway and Maj. Alexander R. Bolling. Band judges were Second Leader William F. Santelman, Marine Band; Bandmaster J. M. Thurmond, Navy School of Music, and Master Sergt. Fred Hess, Army Engineer Band, retired.

Mayor Wilson Now Is Pa. Democrat

Philadelphia, April 11 (AP).—Mayor S. Davis Wilson, one of three Democratic candidates for United States Senator at the May 17 primary, today changed his registration from nonpartisan to Democratic.

Wilson, who is on the C. I. O.-backed ticket along with Lieut. Gov. Thomas Kennedy, candidate for Governor, has been indorsed by United States Senator Joseph F. Guffey. Wilson's opponents for Senator are Gov. Earle, indorsed by the Democratic State committee, and Eddie McCloskey, of Johnstown.

Air Parley Postponed.

U.S. Conciliator 'Called' Strike, Magnate Says

Unionists Reply That Aide Merely Announced Their Prior Decision.

By the Associated Press.

A Cleveland industrialist told Senate investigators yesterday that a Department of Labor conciliator called a strike of his employes on September 1, 1933.

Franklin G. Smith, president of the Ohio Rubber Co., Willoughby, Ohio, said A. L. Faulkner, commissioner of conciliation for the Department of Labor, was responsible for a strike in the rubber company's plant.

Testifying before the Senate Civil Liberties Committee, Smith said Faulkner was present at a meeting at which workers and the management discussed demands of the Rubber Workers Union.

After discussing the situation, Smith asserted, Faulkner arose and "called the strike right there."

Smith said Faulkner urged him to sign an agreement with the workers and then told him "if you don't sign, the men will be out on strike tomorrow."

Committee records showed the union called a strike the next day, when the management refused to grant recognition.

Charles Lanning, organizer for the United Rubber workers, who was also present at the meeting, testified "Mr. Faulkner did not call the strike."

"We had reached a decision to take strike action," Lanning said, "and had informed Mr. Faulkner of our decision."

'It'll Wear Off,' Hopes Rep. O'Day of Bluing

By the Associated Press.

A beauty operator's mistake gave Representative Caroline O'Day (Democrat), New York, a few bad moments yesterday when colleagues noticed that her hair had a definitely bluish cast.

"My hair has reached that horrid green-gray stage and I've been having blue rinses," she laughed. "This time the operator simply made it bluer than usual. I suppose it will wear off."

Four Lawyers Face Charges in Court Inquiry

Dishonesty and Unethical Conduct Studied by Bar Committee.

Four Washington attorneys may be named in accusations of unethical conduct and dishonesty as the result of an inquiry into Police Court conditions now being carried on by a special committee of the District Bar Association with cooperation of the Police Court judges.

The committee, acting through Chairman Harlan Wood, will meet Thursday to confer on appropriate action. It was understood last night no definite steps had yet been decided upon by the committee.

A United States Park policeman is involved in the charges against one lawyer. The policeman, now said to be under suspension, is supposed to have been approached by the lawyer and shortly after, with payment of $20, charges against a prisoner arrested by the park policeman were dropped.

Included in the investigation are charges of "capping," solicitation of cases and failure to pay into court money that had been handed to an attorney for a fine. One lawyer failed to appear after he had been paid a fee and the client went to jail because of the alleged failure.

The meeting Thursday will determine if formal charges are to be placed before the judges for their action. If such a step is taken, the charges will await return of Presiding Judge John P. McMahon from his vacation.

14 Women Freed; Evidence Scarce

Charges against 14 women arrested Saturday night by the police pickup squad were dropped in Police Court yesterday. Assistant Corporation Counsel John O'Dea requested that no papers be made out against the women because he believed he lacked sufficient evidence to bring convictions.

A month ago 18 women arrested on the same charge were released for the same reason. Inspector Bernard W. Thompson of the Metropolitan Police has ordered the pickup squad, headed by Lieut. Joseph Shimon, to continue to arrest suspected prostitution.

A. J. Brylawski Chosen Municipal Council Head

A. Julian Brylawski, of the Motion Picture Theater Owners Association, was elected president of the District Council of Municipal Administration last night. Other officers elected were Fairfax Oyster, of the New Center Market Food Dealers Association, vice president; Miss Nina Thomas, of the Portia Club, treasurer; Milton Vollmer, of the Georgia Avenue Business Men's Association, secretary, and Jacques Downs executive secretary.

The council indorsed an increase in the Federal appropriation for the District to meet the current deficit and approved a modified business privilege tax. A sales tax, superseding all forms of local taxation, was approved.

Youth, 19, Slays Deputy, Wounds 2d in Gun Battle

Campton, Ky., April 11 (AP).—A 19-year-old farmer who killed one deputy sheriff and wounded another critically today in a running gun battle through a street filled with murder trial spectators was held here tonight.

Sheriff J. R. Clark said the prisoner, I. N. Combs, jr., accompanied by his parents, gave himself up a short time after shooting to death Deputy W. M. Perry and wounding Deputy James Dykes, both 60, as they pursued him, blazing away with their pistols.

The sheriff said the officers were seeking to arrest Combs after he had been ejected from a restaurant for drawing a pistol.

Spectators who had just entered the street for recess of the murder trial escaped injury in the grim battle.

Mexican Doctor Has Way to Treat Spinal Diseases

Discovery of a radically new method of treating neuro-syphilis, infantile paralysis and other diseases affecting the spinal column was announced yesterday by Dr. Donato Perez Garcia, youthful Mexican doctor who has come to Washington to continue his research.

Dr. Garcia's theory, which he has applied so far only to cases of insanity and paralysis caused by syphilis, makes use of the same chemicals employed at present, but by causing these chemicals to permeate diseased nerve cells of the spinal cord, he explained, he greatly increases efficiency of the dose.

First he injects insulin into the patient's veins. This destroys the sugar essential to the life of the nerve cells. Half an hour later a solution of sugar, combined with mercury and other chemicals, is injected. The "hungry" cells, in absorbing the sugar, also take in the medicine.

Dr. Garcia is the guest of Col. Teofilo G. Jasso, military attache of the Mexican Embassy here.

Mayor Resigns At Hyattsville

Dr. Hilary T. Willis, serving his fifth term as Mayor of Hyattsville, resigned last night in a letter to the town council. He said "business interests" forced him to vacate the position. The 61-year-old physician and realtor has been ill recently and has been unable to attend council meetings for several months.

E. M. Gover, president of the council, was appointed to the post, to hold it until the general elections May 2. Nominations for that office, as well as for places of four councilmen and a treasurer, will be made next Monday.

Cat and Hammer In Sack Together Bring Fine of $10

Jeff Van, 45, of 465 G street northwest, has a cat so active that an ordinary leash won't hold it; he has to fasten the leash to a hammer. That's what he told Police Court Judge Edward M. Curran yesterday, at least.

Van couldn't explain, however, why he was carrying the leash, the hammer and the cat in a burlap bag Saturday when he was arrested by Policeman W. A. Elliott of No. 1 Precinct.

Judge Curran ordered Van to pay $10 on a cruelty to animals charge and another $10 on a drunk charge.

Md. Man Convicted Of Manslaughter In Bedroom Death

Towson, Md., April 11 (AP).—Charles A. Smith, 41, commission merchant, late today was convicted of manslaughter in the bedroom shooting of Joseph R. Davis in Smith's home February 24.

Smith, charged with the slaying of Davis, a 63-year-old city employe, and with shooting his wife, Mrs. Eva Smith, with intent to kill, was granted a suspension of sentence to allow defense attorneys time to file a motion for a new trial.

Smith told the court and jury that he left work early on the day of the shooting, hid in his home and heard his wife and Davis enter an adjoining bedroom. Then, he said, he entered the room and killed Davis. Shooting of Mrs. Smith in the neck, the defendant said, was accidental.

Dr. Neilson to Discuss Shakespeare April 23

Dr. William Allan Neilson, president of Smith College, will deliver an address entitled, "As Shakespeare Says," at a celebration of the 374th anniversary of the bard's birth, in Folger Library, April 23, at 8:30 p. m.

F. H. Smith Co. Directors Sued By Stockholder

Accounting Asked of Sums Spent in Liquidating Ill-Fated Firm.

Seeking to obtain an accounting of money expended by liquidating directors of the ill-fated F. H. Smith Co., Mrs. Marie Albrecht, 1472 Newton street northwest, yesterday obtained in District Court an order requiring the corporation to show cause by April 25 why a receiver should not be appointed to take over remaining assets and give an accounting of the financial affairs.

Stating that she was the owner of preferred stock with a face value of $11,200, Mrs. Albrecht alleged the company had approximately $900,000 available for distribution to stockholders in 1931 but that sum has diminished to $114,598.

The petition alleged a committee obtained control of the company following conviction of G. Bryan Pitts, its former head, who was sentenced to 14 years in jail for embezzlement, and "had acted in bad faith to waste and dissipate assets of stockholders and to turn proceeds over to the Roosevelt Bondholders' Committee."

Of the amount now available, the suit set out, $87,598 is in cash and $27,000 in real estate bonds. It was alleged $216,000 had been paid out as a result of agreements with attorneys, and that the directors voted themselves $91,000 in fees, in addition to bonuses. It was also claimed in the suit that expenses totaling $116,000 have come out of stockholders' shares. Attorney Robert H. McNeil represented Mrs. Albrecht.

The Smith Co. has been virtually inactive since discovery of Pitts' defalcations several years ago. According to the suit, the company now maintains a small office in Wilmington, Del., that is open only infrequently.

Man, Amnesai Victim, Believed Consular Aide

San Antonio, Tex., April 11 (AP). A 28-year-old man who said he was an amnesia victim was identified today by police as David K. Andrews, U. S. consular attache at Tampico, Mexico. A brief case he carried contained a passport and consulate papers bearing Andrews' name.

Andrews, identified as the son of a Chattanooga, Tenn., manufacturer, passed through San Antonio less than two weeks ago en route to Tampico. The young man could not explain tears in his clothing and bruises on his face and right knee. He was under physicians' care today.

Playwright Is Drowned When Knocked Off Boat

London, April 11 (AP).—Chester Bailey Fernald, 69, American-born dramatist and newspaperman, was drowned in Dover Harbor when knocked off the auxiliary cutter Florence by a boom last night.

He was returning from France with his son, John. The body was not recovered. A one-time Washington correspondent for the San Francisco Chronicle, he was the author of several books and plays, including "The White Umbrella," "Always Afternoon," and "The Day Before the Day."

President Is Set To Appeal for Relief on Radio

sumption of "pump-priming" spending.

Later it was indicated the President would start work immediately on his relief message to Congress, but Stephen T. Early, press secretary to Mr. Roosevelt, said a "big if" is involved on the exact day it will be completed.

When asked if the message would deal with the proposed Public Works spending program as well as relief, Early emphasized only that it would deal with the whole economic picture. He added that if the message went to Congress Thursday, it is possible the President will go on the air Thursday night. Observers believe the President may take this means of answering "pump-priming" critics.

The serious view being taken of the economic situation was indicated by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., a former opponent of "priming." Following a trip to the White House, Morgenthau told reporters that conditions have changed since his November statement, and are worse than in February, when he called them "serious." He said "some kind of Government aid" is called for at once.

At the Capitol, no emphatic opposition was offered to the proposed relief program, but a conservative revolt against additional PWA spending appeared spreading. Senators Harry Flood Byrd, of Virginia, and Josiah W. Bailey, of North Carolina (Democrats), renewed criticism of "pump-priming" expenditures, but withheld their fire on relief proposals. Former Budget Director Lewis Douglas, who broke with the President over early New Deal spending, was in conference with Garner for more than an hour.

Relief proposals on which general agreement was reached at yesterday's White House conference with Appropriations Committee chiefs, called for $125,000,000 for WPA for the seven-month period ending February 1, 1939.

In addition, a $50,000,000 budget estimate, to precent a reduction in Civilian Conservation Corps camps on July 1 from 1,500 to 1,200, was promised by the President. The House already has approved the CCC appropriation, without an estimate, but it has been held up in the Senate.

Another $200,000,000, which would swell the total new relief outlay to $1,500,000,000 if finally approved, was seriously considered, without conclusive action. This sum would be divided: $150,000,000 for the Farm Security Administration and $50,000,000 for the National Youth Administration. It would be on a 12-month, rather than a 7-month, basis.

On insistence of Representative Clifton A. Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, the President agreed the proposed $1,250,000,000 for the Works Progress Administration should be subject to the so-called "Woodrum amendment." The amendment, originally attached to last year's relief bill, requires Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins to spread his new funds over the entire seven-month period.

Woodrum, ardent advocate of economy, said he would not oppose the relief increase because "notwithstanding my great desire to cut expenses, if we can get through this period without expanding, we will be doing a good job."

Majority Leader Rayburn is said to have suggested the relief request be limited to the $1,100,000,000 original budget estimate, pointing out that Congress would be back in January and could vote other funds needed. But after conference it was decided to clearly limit the new money to the seven-month period for which it is intended to be spent.

The WPA now has approximately $250,000,000 to carry it through July 1. It has approximately 2,400,000 jobless on its rolls at the present time, plus 200,000 more employed by other agencies with WPA funds. The present objective is to gradually scale down the number through the spring and early summer months to 2,200,000 in July.

Leaders were told that a new jobless problem is arising from expiration of limited unemployment insurance to workers who have been out of a job for some weeks. In the next few weeks it was estimated that 200,000 now drawing such insurance benefits will need work relief, unless business picks up.

Congressional chiefs, fighting to hold down spending increases to a minimum, said last night that even a $1,500,000,000 relief allowance for the next seven months will be difficult to hold to that figure. House liberals, with the backing of municipal officials, already are organizing to increase it.

Another spending bolt is in the offing on the Agriculture appropriations bill to be reported today. The bill is expected to carry only the $63,000,000 budget estimate for Federal-aid highways, as against the $150,000,000 voted last year. Members of tht strong House roads bloc will fight to boost it.

Following the early legislative conference at the White House, Senate Majority Leader Barkley said the proposed relief action would obviate alternative necessity of laying off 400,000 relief workers.

"We are simply preserving the situation as it is," Barkley said. "None of this is pump priming."

Attending the second White House conference were Chairman Carter Glass of the Senate Appropriations Committee and Chairman Edward T. Taylor of the House Appropriations Committee. Also present were Senators McKellar, of Tennessee, and Byrnes, of South Carolina, and Representatives Cannon, of Missouri, and Woodrum, of Virginia, all ranking Democratic members of the two committees. Secretary Morgenthau, Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board, Director of the Budget Daniel W. Bell and WPA Administrator Hopkins also sat in.

Later in the day, methods of expanding Federal housing activities in connection with the proposed new public works program were discussed at another conference. Participating were Secretary of Interior Ickes, Nathan Straus, head of the United States Housing Authority, and Stewart McDonald, Federal Housing administrator.

The housing authority now has $500,000,000 for loans and grants to public agencies for slum clearance and low cost housing. Some Congressional leaders said this program may be expanded by an equivalent amount.

Pickets White House Second Time

Mrs. Edna Cratty (above), 28, of Valley Stream, Long Island, was taken into police custody yesterday after picketing the White House offices in an effort to talk to the President about relief conditions in her community. She staged a "sit-down strike" in the White House about a month ago on a similar futile mission.

Mrs. Edna Cratty, 28-year-old seamstress, was unsuccessful again yesterday in her efforts to see President Roosevelt to talk about relief conditions in her home town of Valley Stream, Long Island.

Two policewomen took the woman, mother of two children, to the Women's Bureau from the White House grounds after she paced in front of executive offices for more than three hours. She was charged with violating a park regulation which prohibits "sleeping, camping or loitering on Government property for more than four hours."

Mrs. Cratty recently conducted a lone sit-down strike in the White House after she was refused an audience with the President.

Medical Society Offers to Aid Group Health in Serving Poor

Group

ical society has oposed it belligerently. Dr. Mario Scandiffio, practicing pediatrist, was expelled from the society when he accepted employment by Group Health, and the association has claimed its members were refused admittance to Washington hospitals.

Dr. Neill proposed a three-point basis for understanding between the society and Group Health and said if the purpose of the association is "to provide adequate medical care for persons of low income . . .

Health Association, Inc., and the medical society have a common goal. The program he suggested for an understanding between the erstwhile antagonist looked toward:

Adequate medical care for persons of low income.

Free choice of physician.

A system of regular monthly payments, in the nature of insurance premiums.

"Such programs," he said, "have been worked out elsewhere." . .

Free Choice Claimed.

In an address to members of the association last night, Kirkpatrick said the medical society has charged the association denied its members free choice of physicians. He declaired "there is absolutely no restriction whatever in the choice of any physician on the part of any member of this association at any time" and said the medical society itself refused to permit association members to choose their own physicians.

Dr. Neill said in his letter the medical society "has been willing at all times to work out with Group Health Association, Inc., a program" to provide adequate medical care for persons of low income, "and to contribute the time, talent and facilities of the medical profession to that end."

"The society hereby offers again," he said, "its unqualified co-operation in planning and carrying out a program to provide proper and adequate medical care for persons of low income.

Kirkpatrick Hails Service.

"If your organization is willing to adjust itself to conform with these simple requirements—ethics, legality, economic soundness, and a guarantee that standards of medical service will be maintained—the society is ready to negotiate with you at any time."

Speaking to members of the health association, Kirkpatrick said that contrary to one of the medical society's "loudest contentions . . . that there is no need for an association such as ours," 2,066 members received 10,000 examinations and treatments at the association's clinic in five months. The association's medical staff, he said, made 125 calls in the same time and its pharmacy filled 3,530 prescriptions.

"In spite of the service our staff has been able to render," Kirkpatrick said, "many of our members have found it necessary to postpone operations . . . by reason of the fact that hospitals in the District have refused to allow your surgeon to perform these operations."

"We have no objection to the society, as such, or to any of its members expressing their opinions of our project, but we serve notice on them now that we will insist that our rights as American citizens be not interfered with, and will resist to the end any action on the part of the society or its members to deny to us as residents of this community what we are entitled to have."

Speaking before the same meeting of the association, Perry R. Taylor, business manager, Rural Electrification Administration, said the medical society has an "economic stranglehold" on Washington hospitals. Directors of some hospitals, he said, are disposed "to go along with us," despite opposition of the medical society, and "the real quarrel is not with the hospitals but with the dominating physicians of the District Medical Society."

"In the early days of Group Health," he said, "some of the members of the board of trustees sought a conference with members of the District Medical Society for the purpose of making known our plans. At that time we offered to allow the District Medical Society to select every member of our medical staff. This offer was not accepted. Subsequently a group of physicians sought a conference with our board of trustees for the purpose of proposing a plan. No plan developed at the conference, but instead a barrage of questions was fired at the trustees. Those who attended that conference frequently refer to it as the 'inquisition.'"

"Whispers" Charged.

Work of the association, he charged, is being attacked through "a whispering campaign," attacks on association physicians, a threatened boycott against hospitals and restrictions on Medical Society physicians from consulting with Group Health physicians.

"All these measures which the members of the Medical Society are taking," Taylor said, "are supposed to be based on two fundamental Objections to group health. (1) Doubt as to its legality. (2) A doubt as to the economic soundness as to plan . . . We feel we are entirely within our legal rights. If the co-operative form in which we now exist does not comply with District laws, we will be glad to change it so that it will comply.

"As to the economic soundness of our plan—we are co-operatively formed — we are democratically managed. We feel that we certainly can afford to take care of ourselves much better in the way we have chosen than by paying in the way that the controlling members of the District Medical Society would like to have us pay."

Dr. McKinley attacked "socialized medicine" at a meeting of the conference of State and Provincial Health Authorities of North America after Senator Bridges (Republican), New Hampshire, demanded abolition of the HOLC because of what he termed "improper" activities in backing group health.

Dr. McKinley appealed for an intensive National public health program to wipe out preventable diseases which he said now cause "a colossal and monstrous waste of human beings" in this country.

"At present," he said, "the medical profession is under fire in this country. Socialized medicine and State medicine are becoming bywords for discussion. There is so much confusion about this subject that even the medical profession itself is befuddled concerning it.

"The people feel it is their rightful heritage to enjoy a reasonable opportunity to possess health and happiness, but I am sure that they will not be fooled by the vague and precarious promises of socialized medicine as we understand this term.

"Such experiments as group health (such as has been established here in Washington and elsewhere) are bound to fail them in their quest for a solution of this problem."

President Puts Rail Problems Up to Congress

Rail

at the House action last week in killing his Government reorganization bill.

He declared it would be only "common sense" to consolidate seven Federal agencies now handling transportation matters into two, one to perform executive functions and the other to be an expanded Interstate Commerce Commission, clothed with new powers to control all legislative and judicial activities in the transportation field.

Constitutionality Disputed.

Again he noted that Congress has vested in the I. C. C. "purely executive functions" which he believes are "unconstitutional" but added that he did not raise this issue at this time in view of the present railroad emergency.

One line in the President's message caused considerable adverse private comment on Capitol Hill: His assertion that "I have kept the chairman of the appropriate committees of the Senate and House of Representaties informed of the (ICC) report."

It is known definitely that neither Senator Wheeler nor Representative Lea knew of the contents of the ICC report until late last week, after most of the details had been revealed in The Post. Then they obtained copies by roundabout approaches to the non-Congressional persons who had them.

Wheeler, in a radio address last night over a National Broadcasting Co. network, stressed the basic importance of railroad prosperity in the national economic framework, noting that many persons "regard a solution of the railway problem as the very key to our present economic condition."

Lack of Business Cited.

He made the same point emphasized by George M. Harrison, prominent American Federation of Labor spokesman, and president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, in a letter analyzing the ICC report, which the President appended to his message. This was that the principal trouble of the railroads, above all other factors, is lack of business.

Both stressed the vital necessity of restoring predepression traffic volume to the carriers, although Wheeler added that "it is unlikely that the traffic volume will ever resume the constant expansion that it had prior to 1925."

All of the commentators whose recommendations were submitted by the President agreed with Wheeler's contention of last night that the railroad problem is double—the "immediate emergency" and the future situation.

Subsidies Assailed.

Wheeler struck at Government subsidies to the carriers, even "indirectly by loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation which cannot be paid back," and then stated his major thesis—that the railroads of the country must "go through the wringer," that fixed charges must be reduced, either by a reduction of indebtedness or of interest rates, through "realistic reorganization of roads now in receivership and by refraining from artificially keeping a few overcapitalized roads out of receivership."

Following this he demanded economies in operating charges, citing "wastes of the stockholders' money in buying stock of other railroads or other corporations at exorbitantly high prices; wastes in the purchase of materials and supplies at monopolistic prices; wastes in purchase of property at such high prices that they must be considered as amounting to and as intended in fact to be, rebates," and others.

Two Programs Suggested.

The ICC recommendations, made by Chairman Walter M. W. Splawn and Commissioners Joseph Eastman and Charles D. Mahaffie, included a six-point program and a four-point long-term program. The first of these, in summary, urged:

That $300,000,000 be made available by the Government for the purchase of rail equipment; that the RFC be empowered for a year to make carrier loans without ICC certification; that "other forms of Government credit be considered from the point of view of public policy;" that Government traffic hereafter pay full rates; that the ICC expressed no opinion as to the suggested reduction of railroad wages, and that reorganization procedure under Section 77 of the bankruptcy act be modified to favor railroads and that Congress consider establishment of a single court in charge of reorganizations.

The long-term program included: Creation of a Federal Transportation Authority for two years to "plan and promote action" by carriers to cut waste, aid consolidation and co-ordination; broadening of ICC powers to permit pooling of earnings and traffic and to allow intervention by the FTA before the ICC; investigation by the FTA of the transportation situation; investigation of railroad financial abuses.

Morgenthau Disappointed.

Among the most forthright of the appended comment was the letter of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, expressing frank disappointment at the ICC report as an "overcautious approach" which can "only intensify the need for drastic action at a later date.

Morgenthau struck at the idea of creating the FTA and demanded instead immediate creation by Congress of a Department of Transportation, to co-ordinate national transportation facilities.

RFC head Jesse H. Jones suggested Government loans to help roads reduce their fixed charges, at interest rates "substantially" lower than now paid. Chairman William O. Douglas, of the Securities and Exchange Commission, scouted the emergency program and indorsed the long-term program.

Henry Bruere, president of the Bowery Savings Bank, New York City, demanded "Government compulsion," while J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, spoke for reduced wages, increased freight rates, RFC loans and tax relief.

Rail Loan Authorized.

By the Associated Press.

The Interstate Commerce Commission authorized the Colorado & Southern Railway Co. yesterday to borrow $525,500 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to meet maturities of Galveston Terminal Railway Co. first mortgage 6 per cent gold bonds.

The ICC also authorized the RFC to purchase $546,500 of the Galveston terminal bonds which matured March 1, and extend them to March 1, 1948, at 5 per cent interest.

The orders covered in effect the refinancing of a $1,072,000 issue guaranteed jointly by the Colorado & Southern and the Chicago Rock Island & Pacific Railway Co., joint owners of the terminal firm.

Senate Defeats Bill to Restore Spoils System

Jobs

Washington" now appoints all postmasters, and demanded retention of the four-year term for postmasters.

But the Senate, under the leadership of Senators Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming; Robert M. La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, and M. M. Logan (Democrat), of Kentucky, effectively routed the Tennesseean. The white-haired old Nebraska Independent, Senator George W. Norris, who has never been known to ask any President for patronage, slashed repeatedly at the McKellar proposal throughout the day.

O'Mahoney's motion to substitute the House bill, a measure sponsored by Representative Robert Ramspeck (Democrat), of Georgia, chairman of the House Civil Service Committee, carried, and the House bill passed, 49 to 20. It has been amended to tighten up requirements, and provides for eight-year appointments.

Barkley Angered.

Then Hatch demanded recognition while Barkley was on his feet. Senator Sherman Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, recognized Hatch, to make his motion on the patronage-election bill, and Barkley, apparently miffed, slammed some papers down on his desk with a brusque and audible comment, as Republican leaders chuckled.

Airport

he suggested that an agreement could be worked out with the Naval Affairs Committee.

It is understood that Frederic Delano, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and a member of the disbanded Washington Airport Commission, persuaded the President to change his mind.

In a letter to leaders Mr. Roosevelt disclosed that he will sign the bill just passed by Congress closing Military road adjacent to Washington-Hoover Airport as a safety measure. Last fall he permitted a similar bill to die by pocket veto on the ground that Congress should make a more permanent solution of the airport problem.

Text of President's Letter.

The text of the President's letter follows:

"My dear Mr. Chairman:

"I am writing you again in regard to the serious, long-standing failure to get an adequate airport, or airports, for the Nation's Capital.

"The situation is such that if a serious accident takes place, the blame will fall, I fear, on the Congress itself.

"If you do not mind my offering unsolicited, but, I believe, practical advice, here it is:

"(a) The present Washington-Hoover Field can never be made of permanent service for commercial planes entering or leaving the Capital—because of its low altitude and the impossibility of providing long enough runways in all directions. Until a better field or fields can be provided, we shall have to continue the use of the Washington-Hoover Airport, and I am entirely willing, as a temporary matter, to have the Military road closed, and any other slight, temporary improvements made. This, however, is, of course, not a final solution.

"(b) We need to get a full-size, all-weather airport as quickly as possible. I have surveyed all available sites and conclude that the Camp Springs site is the only one which can be bought at a reasonable figure and put into actual operation inside of a year and a half. It requires little grading and the work can be done in large part by WPA labor. At the Camp Springs site we should buy at least 2,000 acres of land, and on this land we can get runways of any required length in all directions.

"Objection has been raised by the Navy Department, because of the Radio Receiving Station 5 miles away. This matter, I think, we can work out in conference between your committee and the Naval Affairs Committee, and it should not prohibit us from using what is by all odds the best all-weather airport for planes of every size.

"(c) The only objection to Camp Springs is its distance from the center of the hotel and shopping district. The Capital of the United States need not, and should not, be limited to one airport. For commercial and military reasons we should have two.

Whitney Given 5 to 10 Years; Mercy Denied

Whitney

Dewey's recommendation of a "substantial and punitive sentence," told Whitney:

"Your course, in the last six years has been a course of thefts and larcenies, of frauds and misrepresentations, of falsifications of books and financial statements covering losses of several millions of dollars.

Paried Year From Wife.

"You were caught, like a rat in a trap, when you had an unusual opportunity for understanding the effects of your actions on others. * * * You headed the greatest financial institution in the world. * * * By your example the decent forces of the world received a setback. I can see nothing in your record to mitigate the circumstances. * * *"

Whitney did not blink at his request, Tuttle said, Mrs. Whitney and their two daughters, as well as Whitney's brother, George, a partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., stayed away.

The probation report disclosed that Whitney and his wife were estranged from June, 1936, to June, 1937, but now were reconciled.

Whitney's cell is near that of Robert Irwin, sculptor, who is awaiting trial for the Easter Sunday, 1937, killing of Veronica Gedeon, a model, her mother and a lodger.

Whitney pleaded guilty to two indictments for grand larceny. He was sentenced to five to ten years on each, the sentences to run concurrently. The maximum penalty would have been 20 years, 10 on each count.

11,000 Guard Chicago Polls; Violence Flares

2 Sluggings and Shooting Are Reported Day Before Primary.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 11.—A quarterless fight for domination of the Democratic Party in Illinois pits Gov. Henry Horner's organization against the Kelly-Nash faction in State-wide primary elections tomorrow.

A force of 5,000 regular and special police and at least 6,000 watchers was recruited for duty at Chicago polls.

Factions joined in unusual precautions against violence amid reports of two sluggings and a shooting and conflicting interpretations of the election laws.

National Committeeman P. A. Nash, who shares leadership of the Chicago organization with Mayor Edward J. Kelly, instructed his watchers to challenge Republican voters who seek to cast a Democratic ballot. Nash contended all who voted Republican in the 1936 primary must do likewise in this election.

Gov. Horner appealed to Republicans to aid in "smashing the Kelly-Nash machine" by switching to the Democratic side. Horner and the Chicago board of election commisisoners insisted such action was permissible.

Republican chieftains urged the G. O. P. faithful to stay out of the Democratic struggle and compile a huge vote as a protest against the New Deal in the Nation's first primary.

Both parties will nominate candidates for United States Senator, 27 Congressmen, including two at large, three State offices and places in the State Legislature.

The Democratic bickering revolved about the Senatorial aspirants. Michael L. Igoe, district attorney at Chicago and veteran of 16 years in the State Legislature, was indorsed by the Kelly-Nash unit. Representative Scott W. Lucas of Havana, serving his second term from the district once represented by the late Speaker Henry T. Rainey, gained the support of the Horner organization.

Both campaigned under the New Deal banner. Each side charged the other with seeking to boss the entire State.

Harmonious Republican organizations united behind a ticket headed by the senatorial aspirant, State Representative Richard Lyons, of Libertyville.

In Chicago, the major battle was for county judge. The Kelly-Nash slate makers snubbed the incumbent, Edmond K. Jarecki, and indorsed Circuit Judge John Prystalski. Jarecki, supported by Horner, charged Kelly and Nash sought to seize control of the county election machinery since it had been under his jurisdiction for 16 years.

Estimates of the vote ranged between 2,000,000 and 2,250,000.

Dr. Gamow Tells Why Stars Are Hot

Dr. George Gamow, professor of Theoretical Physics at George Washington, discussed the sources of stellar energy at a meeting of the university's Graduate Council last night.

Changes from one element to another are the source of the stars' heat, he said.

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the university, presided at the meeting, held at 2005 G street northwest. Two graduate students in biochemistry, Madison Hunt and Washington Irving, were made fellows of the Graduate Council.

Mrs. R.M. Jones, G.O.P. Worker in N. C., Dead

Mrs. Rose M. Jones, wife of John R. Jones, only Republican solicitor in North Carolina, died yesterday in a hospital at North Wilkesboro, N. C., the Associated Press reported.

A Republican National Committeewoman for the State, Mrs. Jones was a sister of Robert H. McNeill, 3212 Garfield street northwest, and Mrs. C. C. Dimmette, 6227 Ninth street northwest. A daughter of the late Rev. Dr. Milton McNeill, Baptist minister, Mrs. Jones is also survived by another brother and five sisters in North Carolina.

Twyman S. Jones Rites SetThursday

Twyman Sullivan Jones, battalion fire chief and a member of the department for 33 years, died yesterday in George Washington University Hospital. He had been ill a month.

Chief Jones was decorated for bravery at the Kann warehouse fire in 1925. A native of Parker, Va., he came to Washington when he was 20 years old and was appointed to the department in 1905.

Chief Jones lived at 818 Longfellow street northwest. He leaves his wife; two sons, Revelle and Linwood Jones, and a daughter, Mrs. Romaine Irvine.

Services will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday in the Sixth Presbyterian Church, Sixteenth and Kennedy streets northwest. He will be buried in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

3 Packs of Cigarettes Taken by Holdup Man

Manuel Levin, storekeeper at 1017 K street northwest, has an appointment with a bandit at police headquarters. A man walked into the store last night, his hand in his pocket as though he were carrying a gun, and demanded three packs of cigarettes. As Levin cautiously handed them over, the bandit said: "I'll see you at police headquarters."

H. J. Gompers, Son of Samuel, Dies Here at 62

Monument Works Head Had Been in Bad Health After Heart Attack.

Henry J. Gompers, 62, son of the late Samuel Gompers, "father" of the American labor movement, died last night in his home at 3921 Illinois avenue northwest. Gompers had been in failing health since suffering a heart attack seven months ago.

Gompers was the owner of the Gompers Monument Works, 1932 Ninth street northwest, and for many years a leading figure in the Elks Order and the Samuel Gompers Lodge of Masons of which he was one of the organizers and the first past master.

Came Here 26 Years Ago.

Born in New York City January 23, 1876, Gompers as a young man learned the granite cutters trade. He joined the cutters' union, a membership he retained to his death, and later operated a building and monument stone works in Brooklyn, N. Y.

He came to Washington 26 years ago to be close to his father and other members of the family already here. A fishing enthusiast, he organized and became the first president of the National Masonic Fishing and Country Club at Shadyside, Md.

Leaves Wife, Two Sons.

One of his brothers is Samuel J. Gompers who after 51 years in the Government service is now chief clerk of the Labor Department. Another brother, Alexander J. Gompers, is referee in compensation for the New York State Department of Labor.

Other survivors are his wife, Mrs. Cora Gompers, and their children, Harry and Alexander, of Washington, and Mrs. Sophia Hurrell, of New York State.

The elder Gompers died December 13, 1924. Masonic services for the son will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow from the residence, with burial in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mrs. Mary Smoot's FuneralTomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary E. Smoot, 82, who died Sunday at her residence, the Pelham Courts Apartments, will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at the Episcopal Church of the Epiphany. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

A native of Easton, Md., Mrs. Smoot had been a resident of this city for many years. She was a charter member of the first board of lady managers of the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital; a member of the Washington Club and the Maryland Society of Colonial Dames of America.

Mrs. Smoot was also prominent in activities of St. John's Episcopal Church and the Aged Women's Home.

She is survived by a daughter, Miss Julia D. Smoot; three sons, Lloyd D., Alden and Francis Smoot; five grandsons and a great-grandson.

Rabbi Green to Speak.

Rabbi Zemach Green, of the Ohev Sholom Synagogue, will speak at the Jewish Community Center tomorrow at 8 p. m. on "Is There a Religious Awakening in American Jewry?"

Mrs. Blanche Hess To Be Buried Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Blanche Hess, who died at her home in the Canal Zone, will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Georgetown Presbyterian Church. Interment will be in Congressional Cemetery.

A native of Washington and a frequent visitor here in recent years, Mrs. Hess was the wife of James Albert Hess, an employe of the Panama Canal. She had lived in Pedro Miguel, C. Z., since 1924; earlier she had made her home here and in Philadelphia. Survivors, in addition to her husband, include a daughter, Mrs. Adrian M. Bouche, and three grandchildren, of Pedro Miguel; a son, Laurie F. Hess, of Washington, and a sister, Mrs. Harry Summers, of Suitland, Md.

C. J. Brenner Rites Tomorrow Morning

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning for Clarence Joseph Brenner, 35, of 315 Evarts street northwest, who took poison in a downtown hotel.

Services will be at 8:30 a. m., at the residence and a 9 a. m. at St. Martin's Church, North Capitol and T streets. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Brenner had been employed as a purchasing agent for the United States News.

Tokyo Leaders Urge War Now To Halt Russia

Best Troops Are Sent to Soviet Border Despite Reverses in China.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, April 11.—The danger of war with Soviet Russia is increasingly claiming the attention of Japanese leaders and the public.

Persistent rumors of war preparations and bellicose statements on both sides have intensified public anxiety.

Informed quarters it was understood Japan recently moved some regular army units from China battlefronts to Manchukuo to man the troubled border of Manchukuo and Soviet Siberia.

(Russia is believed to have an army of 500,000 men near that border; Japan's forces in Manchukuo and Korea have been estimated at between 200,000 and 300,000.)

Many Japanese leaders have been described as advocates of an attack on Russia before the Soviet army could strike.

Japan "Won't Hesitate."

The foreign office spokesman expessed widespread feeling when he said, in comment on alleged mistreatment of Japanese in Russian Sakhalin:

"If Russia cares to aggravate the situation we will not hesitate to respond."

Tokyo newspapers today gave prominence to a statement attributed to Marshal Vassily Bluecher, commander of the Soviet Far Eastern army, that "now is the time to fight Japan."

Best Troops Reserved.

(Japanese and neutral military writers have agreed that Japan's best divisions were not being sent to China but to northern Manchukuo. Recently there have been reports that the Tokyo high command refused to send additional divisions from the homeland to reinforce the armies which have met reverses or been held to a stalemate in central China.)

Three arguments are advanced by those who favor an immediate "preventive war" against Russia:

Since Germany—Japan's anti-Communist ally—annexed Austria, Russia's attention has been so fully occupied by European affairs that she would be unable to throw her whole strength into a Far Eastern struggle.

Internal Trouble Cited.

The recent Moscow trials have given evidence of increasing internal trouble.

The Japanese army already is partly mobilized, the nation is organized on a war footing, hence Japan would be able to strike first and effectively.

Friction in Sakhalin, the northern island of which Japan and Russia each own half, has been increasing for months. Several Japanese have been jailed in the Russian half.

The tokyo newspaper Miyako reported the Russians have concentrated new aviation units in northern Sakhalin and have carried out mass flights "apparently for demonstration purposes."

Fliers Invade Russia.

Moscow, April 11 (AP).—Soviet Russia today sent a protest to Japan against a flight of 11 Japanese warplanes over Soviet territory near the troubled frontier separating Siberia and Manchukuo.

Tass (official Soviet news agency) reported nine planes crossed the Manchukuo border today 8 miles south of Polavka and flew 3 miles into Soviet territory.

Two more planes from Manchukuo were said to have joined them a few minutes later.

Soviet planes chased them away except one Japanese plane which was forced down a mile inside Soviet territory. The pilot, who was seized, said he belonged to a Japanese squadron from Korea.

State Department Raises Overtime

By the Associated Press

The State department is expecting such a busy year because of troubled international conditions that it has included nearly 100,000 hours of overtime pay in its 1938-39 budget.

The present fiscal year ending June 30, officials estimated yesterday, about 90,000 hours of overtime will have been put in.

D. C. Wife Charged With Bigamy After Rockville Wedding

Mrs. Virginia Hawkins Armor Howard, 21, 635 Eighth street northeast, yesterday was charged with bigamy by her second husband, Lawrence A. Howard, 21, 812 D street northeast, in Montgomery County Police Court.

Howard, who said they were married in Rockville, Md., January 7, declared Mrs. Howard was wed to DeWitt Armor last September in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mrs. Howard told police she informed Howard of her previous marriage before the Rockville ceremony, but had been assured by him it was of no effect because Armor was already married. Howard charged he was not informed.

Defense Attorney John Oxley was granted a continuance until today.

$60,000,000 May Be Added To Naval Bill

Walsh Indicates Increase for Auxiliaries at Plea of Swanson.

By the United Press.

Chairman David I. Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, indicated yesterday that $60,000,000 more would be added to President Roosevelt's $1,121,000,000 Navy expansion bill to increase the number of auxiliary units of the fleet.

The bill at present provides for 46 fighting ships and 22 auxiliaries. The additional amount would allow 11 more auxiliaries, including three mine sweepers, one mine layer, four oil tankers, one survey ship and two fleet tugs.

Walsh said that Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson had written him urging that the bill be amended that way in order to bolster the weakest part of the fleet.

"Failure to include these ships can only result in further request of such authorization in the near future," Swanson wrote.

Walsh plans to end public hearings on the super-Navy bill today and report it to the Senate before the end of the week. It is expected to be the Senate's first order of business next week.

Meanwhile, William Griffin, editor and publisher of the New York Enquirer, told the Naval Affairs Committee expenditure of a billion dollars on naval expansion would be the "most profitable investment which this Republic can make."

He said it would serve notice on America's war debtors—whom he described as having "defrauded this land out of 12 times that sum"—that the United States will "be in a position to hand over collection of our unpaid war debts to the United States Navy, if need be."

He testified after F. E. Turin, of the Adequate Coast Defense Association, had recommend that a separate fleet be provided for the Atlantic Coast. Turin suggested that overage vessels of the Pacific Fleet be transferred to the Atlantic and modernized.

Thomas Healey, dean of the School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University, urged the United States not to join the world armament race and said present European troubles will be "liquidated" soon without a major conflict.

Italy and Japan Held Drafting War Alliance

Pact

market, to protect Italian interests from Japanese underselling.

Broad outlines of both agreements are being discussed between the Japanese government and a Fascist good-will mission," visiting Tokyo.

Should Japan find Italy's proposals acceptable, details of the two pacts would be formulated by an industrial mission, scheduled to visit Japan in May, and special envoys.

Significantly, the current negotiations, apparently initiated by Premier Mussolini, are being conducted simultaneously with the Anglo-Italian conversations in London and Rome.

The negotiations in Tokyo come as a sequel to a policy of open pro-Nipponism pursued by Italy since the outbreak of hostilities in China.

Having no important commercial interests in China to safeguard, the Italian government has backed Japan in both word and action. Italian advisers to the Chinese air force were recalled early in the conflict. Up-to-date Italian aircraft were sold to Japan in large numbers. Italy supported Japan in Geneva, and later extended diplomatic recognition to League-ostracised Manchukuo.

Premier Mussolini was reported to have given his blessings openly to Japan's "holy war on communism in China."

The mission now visiting in Tokyo brought with it the King's and Il Duce's messages to Emperor Hirohito, emphasizing Fascist Italy's "deep-rooted friendship" and "spiritual affinity" with Japan.

On his arrival in Tokyo, Marquis Giacomo Paulucci, head of the mission and former Ambassador to Tokyo, issued a statement declaring that "Signor Mussolini sent the mission here in token of his friendly sentiment toward Japan."

"Similarly," the statement added, "Il Duce will show his sympathy for Germany in receiving Reichsfuehrer Hitler in Rome this May."

Emphasizing the Italo-Japanese "spiritual union," on which the anti-Comintern pact is based, the statement said:

"Italy and Japan are compelled by ethnical and geographical needs to secure for themselves an adequate place in the world."

Sea-Food Craving Sends Five Men to Jail for 90 Days

The Lenten season, or perhaps just a normal liking for seafood, brought five men into Police Court and thence into 90-day jail sentences yesterday.

Charged with stealing oysters from the Seventh street wharf, Alexander McCray, 45; Ray Bess, 35, and Jesse Franklin, 45, pleaded not guilty. They told Judge Edward M. Curran they had planned to make an oyster stew but that Walter Bernall, 31, actually did the "marketing."

Bernall also pleaded not guilty, saying he didn't remember the incident. All four were sentenced to three months.

Fresh Invaders Stem Chinese Northern Drive

Threat to Tsinan Brushed Aside as Seasoned Troops Pour In.

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai (Tuesday, April 12. Trainloads of Japanese troops and ammunition rolled into north central Shantung Province today in a race against time as beleaguered Japanese at Yihsien continued to hold out against repeated Chinese attacks.

Chinese admitted that their threat to Tsinan, provincial capital, had been brushed aside as the Japanese reinforcements passed through that city and streamed southward on the Tientsin-Pukow Railway toward the southern Shantung front.

The Chinese right wing began to feel new pressure also, as Japanese reinforcements from Tsingtao, Shantung port, passed Chuhsien and began driving at the Lini sector.

Seasoned Troops Arrive.

In the opinion of foreign military observers there was no question but that the Japanese were preparing to intensify the Shantung offensive by using seasoned regulars and the latest equipment to avenge Chinese attacks at Taierchwang.

Chinese reports said trainloads of Japanese infantry, cavalry and artillery units from Jehol Province, in Manchukuo, were being brought into the Peiping and Tientsin area over a newly constructed railway from Chengteh, Jehol capital, to Tungchow junction, 15 miles east of Peiping, and hurriedly shifted toward southern Shantung.

Japanese Well Fortified.

Chinese asserted their troops had occupied several villages near Yihsien and were bombing the city, but still were unable to oust the Japanese who were well fortified with field artillery.

In Southeastern Shansi Province four Japanese columns began a concerted drive in mopping up operations against eight Chinese divisions entrenched in forbidding mountainous territory. This front was said to extend 40 miles from Chinquan to Wusiang, 100 miles southeast of Taiyuan.

Tsinhsien, from where Gen. Chu Teh, Chinese Communist army leader, was reported to have been directing the activities of Communist guerrillas, was said to have been captured Sunday, but Gen. Chu escaped.

Chinese reported thousands of refugees were streaming into Shanghai fearful of new hostilities in the vicinity of Sungkiang, where heavy Japanese reinforcements were said to be spread for 10 miles east and west of the Shanghai-Hangchow Railway, southwest of Shanghai, in an effort to stop the ceaseless guerrilla raiding.

Historian to Talk.

Washington, in the days when this city was represented in Congress will be discussed tonight by Clagett Proctor, of the Columbia Historical Society, at the Mayflower Hotel.

Daladier Seeks 3-Month Rule; Strikers Increase to 130,000

Paris

and mobile guardsmen moved into industrial districts in the Paris region to preserve order.

Employers said the strikes were purely political, designed to show the Leftist workers' discontent at the resignation of Leon Blum's People's Front government. Strikers, however, blamed the walkouts on the employers' failure to keep wages up to the rising cost of living.

The time limit on the proposed powers was cut from 6 to 3 months as a concession to Leftists in Parliament who let it be known they would vote against such long-term powers.

Daladier's program provides that the Cabinet shall have decree powers over all of France's internal and external affairs.

Sources close to the premier said he had abandoned his plan to limit the request to financial and economic affairs since he was convinced the Cabinet needed wider powers to get at the bottom of France's troubles.

The proposal will be submitted to the Cabinet tomorrow and, if approved, will be sent then to Parliament.

How much of the program would be disclosed in Daladier's ministerial declaration before Parliament tomorrow remained the premier's secret, but it was learned that as it now stands it includes:

1. Government by cabinet decree for three months with decrees to be ratified by parliament at the end of that period.

2. Fifteen billion francs (about $488,000,000) for a defense loan to be raised in France if possible, abroad if necessary.

3. Five billion francs (about $172,900,000) to be advanced by the Bank of France to meet the treasury's immediate needs.

The premier's associates said his immediate task was to get parliament to take a vacation of at least a month to permit him to tackle France's problems in peace.

Suvich in South For Propaganda, Denouncer Says

Baton Rouge, La., April 11 (AP).—Applause from his audience of Louisiana State University journalism students followed Walter M. Harrison's explanation today of his denunciation of fascism in the presence of Italian Ambassador Fulvio Suvich at a luncheon here last Friday.

"The ambassador, Signor Suvich, left his gates wide open, in my opinion," the former president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors told the students.

"He was obviously making his trip south a propaganda tour. I had just heard him speak with all his suavity. As an American I was tired of swallowing the stuff.

"This was my opportunity to say to the Italian Ambassador himself that we want nothing of his fascism in America. I did it. To have done otherwise would have been un-American and undemocratic."

Politics Charged In Seizure of Oil

Mexico City, April 11 (AP).—Great Britain charged in a note made public tonight that Mexico was motivated by "political desire" in expropriating the $400,000,000 foreign oil industry.

The note, presented the Mexican government last Friday by Owen St. Clair O'Malley, Britain's minister to Mexico, demanded return of the properties of British-owned companies taken over March 18.

O'Malley said he expected the Mexican government to reply tomorrow. It was believed generally Mexico would reject the British protest.

Britain Asks League Review Over Ethiopia

Swift Progress of Pact With Italy Adds Hopes of Splitting 'Axis.'

By the Associated Press.

London, April 11.—Great Britain laid the groundwork today for a new friendship with Italy which she hoped would wean Premier Mussolini from his working agreement with Adolf Hitler.

She showed her willingness to recognize the conquest of Ethiopia against which in 1935 she led the League of Nations' 52-country boycott of Italy.

Recognition of Italy's African empire is one of the chief terms of the Anglo-Italian friendship agreemnet being drafted in Rome.

Without waiting for formal signing of the pact, the British government asked the League of Nations to put the question of Ethiopia on the agenda of the League council meeting opening May 9.

Britain to Ask Freedom.

That will be the second anniversary of Italy's annexation of the country.

Britain intends to request that the League free its members of the pledge not to recognize the results of the Italian conquest.

Formal recognition of Ethiopia as Italian then could follow.

Britain's action today took the form of a note to Geneva in which she called attention to an "abnormal situation" which should be "cleared up."

The note pointed out "many States which are members of the League . . . Recognize that the Italian government exercises sovereignty over Ethiopia."

"Realists" Encouraged.

France's new government, headed by Edouard Daladier, was expected to act quickly to seek better relations with Italy in an apparent move by the two allied democracies to draw Rome away from the Berlin influence.

The speed with which the Anglo-Italian negotiations progressed since Germany's annexation of Austria on March 13 has encouraged supporters of Prime Minister Chamberlain's "realistic" foreign policy in the belief Premier Mussolini is anxious to relax his ties with Hitler.

To Await War's End.

It was understood the agreement would not come into full operation until Italy had withdrawn her fighters from Spain.

Britain was reported to have agreed withdrawal of the Fascists could await the end of the Spanish civil war.

Besides the Ethiopian and Spanish points, the pact likely will include recognition of British and Italian interests in the Mediterranean and Red seas, a British pledge to respect Italy's right of passage through the Suez Canal to her East African possessions, reduction of Italy's Libyan Garrison, and pledges to halt radio propaganda.

Axis Held Cooling.

Rome, April 11 (AP).—Drafting of the Anglo-Italian accord began today while usually well-informed sources reported the Italian government was anxious to relax the bonds which have tied fascism and naziism.

The German annexation of Austria brought German troops to the Brenner Pass and aroused Italians in all walks of life.

With Hitler's visit to Rome but three weeks off, it is taken for granted that if any alteration in the close official collaboration between the two countries is to come it will not be noticeable until after Mussolini has repaid the Nazi chief for the rousing welcome Il Duce was given in Germany last September.

The only official comment on the British move to have the League of Nations reconsider the Ethiopian situation was that Italy was "watching it with interest."

Italy to League?

Geneva, April 11 (AP).—The British move to bring the Italo-Ethiopian question before the League of Nations was viewed here tonight as possibly an effort to bring Italy back into the League.

Workers to Buy Spain Ambulances

Federal employes opened their campaign to purchase ambulances for Spanish loyalists last night at an inaugural dinner and rally at the Harrington Hotel at which Ogier Preteceille, secretary of the Central Union of Workers, termed the war in Spain "a struggle against barbarism and fascism."

"The war in Spain is the first stage of a new world war," the speaker said, "and loyalists need the help of America in this great crisis." Preteceille told members of a conference yesterday with William Green in which the labor leader offered "unqualified indorsement of our program."

Spanish Ambassador de los Rios was guest of honor. Others present were the chairman of the dinner, Edwin L. Smith, of the National Labor Relations Board; Carmen Meana, Spanish social worker; Jose Bergamen, writer, and Joel Berrell and Elwood Holstein who outlined plans to raise funds for the ambulances.

Two Planes Shipped To Polish Air Lines

Los Angeles, April 11.—Two new 250-mile-an-hour transports, bound for the Warsaw headquarters of Polish air lines, arrived in New York today, it was announced by officials of the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation.

The planes, all metal, twin-engined Lockheed "14's," were built at a cost of approximately $160,000 and are part of a $525,000 fleet order from the Polish company.

Gale Injures 40 on Queen Mary; Lily Pons Sings to Calm Fears

Waves 100 Ft. High Hurl Her Bed Against Wall; Ship 4 Hrs. Late.

By the Associated Press.

Plymouth, England, April 11.—The liner Queen Mary arrived from New York four hours late today after battling a 24-hour storm which sent great waves crashing over her decks, injuring 40 persons, most of them slightly.

It was the worst storm the big liner has encountered.

Marc Connelly, New York playwright and producer, said the storm was "worse than a West Indies hurricane."

"I saw dozens of passengers picked up by stewards and escorted for medical attention," he said. "The waves must have been 100 feet high."

W. H. Suydam, New York banker, was dozing in a deck chair when a piano in the saloon broke loose and crashed into a wall. He woke up in a tangle of wreckage with a broken arm and a black eye.

Lily Pons, French opera star, kept a promise and sang for the passengers during the 70-mile gale.

"I had little sleep the night before," she said, "because my bed crashed into the stateroom wall and stewards had to come to my rescue and clamp it down.

"But I had promised to sing and I kept my promise. Ropes were stretched across so the audience and the artists could hold on to them. While I was singing I let go of the rope and the next thing I knew I was sliding across the stage, but I kept singing."

South America Trade Subsidy LaGuardia Aim

Proposal to Protest U. S. Markets Seen as Bid for Presidency.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 11.—A broad Government subsidized trade expansion program with Central and South America was proposed tonight by Mayor F. H. La Guardia.

Many political observers interpreted the speech as a bid for the Presidency. It was broadcast nationally.

The mayor asserted European and Oriental nations, "particularly those under dictatorships," had "invaded the Latin American republics and captured our markets."

Urges Survey of Needs.

This country, he added, should be prepared to act boldly to "remove the danger of improper European and Oriental encroachment in the western hemisphere," should help make "the Americas for the Americans."

"Of course," he said, "some countries won't like it—some of the countries who boast of violating every principle known to civilization. What are they going to do about it?"

Put briefly, his proposal was this: An immediate survey of "present and possible needs in Central and South America," this Government to place orders for the manufacture of the export goods found to be salable.

Jobs Would Be Test.

"The range of the goods required for export would be unusually broad," he said. "They would come from every section of the country. Funds for this purpose can and must be made available.

"Fair and reasonable prices, based on production costs and a fair profit, should be paid for these manufactured goods. A Government agency could properly allocate these orders to factories and farm agencies all over the country.

"These orders would be placed on the basis of the number of new workers put on the job. Workers re-employed by reason of this increased production would be paid prevailing wages.

"The manufactured goods would be sold by the Government to exporters, at prices to meet the subsidized competition from abroad. The Government would absorb the difference."

"I submit this plan," he went on, "for the careful consideration of the American Congress and of industry, business, agriculture and labor. We must do something. Let us have the courage to try. Dictatorship is at our doorstep in the Americas. . . .

"In this way we may lay the foundation of peace and security for our world of the future."

AFL Sues for Cash Union Took to CIO

Alleging that the Aluminum Workers Union, 18,358, of New Kensington, Pa., had turned over a treasury fund of $29,212.72 to the C. I. O. when it deserted the ranks of the American Federation of Labor, officers of the A. F. of L., in District Court yesterday filed suit to recover the money.

Arthur E. Rayman, A. F. of L. attorney, said he is seeking to establish the principle that "Federal" unions (of which the aluminum workers was one) "can not go over to the C. I. O. and take their treasuries with them." He said this type of union was subject to the A. F. of L. executive council's orders and had no right to alienate its funds. The suit names John L. Lewis and other C. I. O. officials.

Ban on Radio to Norway Upheld by Appeal Court

Denial by the Federal Communications Commission of the application of the Mackay Radio & Telegraph Co., for a permit to operate a direct public radiotelegraph between its station on Long Island, N. Y., and that of the Norwegian government at Oslo was upheld yesterday by the United States Court of Appeals in a unanimous opinion.

5 Envoys in Rio Discuss Ills of Pan-America

Confer on Chaco Dispute, Smoothing Way for '39 Lima Talks.

By the Associated Press.

Rio de Janeiro, April 11.—North and South America met at Representatives of five nations in the foreign office today in what may be a prelude to the Pan-American Congress at Lima, Peru, in 1939.

Three topics on the agenda, hurriedly prepared yesterday by Oswaldo Aranha, Brazil's foreign minister, were:

Ways to end the Chaco controversy, which has persisted since an armistice stopped the war between Bolivia and Paraguay in 1935.

A joint policy of immigration to meet new conditions presented by recent upheavals affecting certain religious and political groups in Europe.

A united front to reach practical results at the Lima congress.

Those at today's conference, besides Aranha, who called it, were United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery, Jose Maria Cantilo, Argentina's new foreign minister; Jorge Prado, Ambassador from Peru, and Felix Mieto Del Rio, Ambassador from Chile.

7 Nations Join Studies to Aid Atlantic Flights

Courses of Storms to Be Charted in Planning Air Service.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 11.—A scheme to outwit the storms of the north Atlantic, for the first time since ocean traffic started between the Old World and the New, was in formulation today for protection of air transport passengers.

The course of storms originating in the Arctic Circle or the Caribbean will be plotted by an elaborate system of observations to which six nations and the Dominion of Canada will be parties.

When giant flying boats begin carrying passengers, mail and express between America and Europe this year, their captains will be able to fly around, under or over the "storm fronts" of the Atlantic with the aid of precise meteorological information gathered from the "rim of the ocean" and from ships at sea.

Facilities Cost $1,000,000.

Just returned from an international conference of the four nations planning on the inauguration of transatlantic air service, United States representatives said facilities for the ocean-wide weather service to be set up would cost more than $1,000,000.

Up to now, accurate weather information has been available to steamships and air transports over only the western half of the Atlantic.

Weather reports will be made and dispatched from the British Isles, the North Sea area, the Channel, Biscayne Bay and Mediterranean areas, Portugal, the Azores, Greenland, Iceland, Canada, the United States and from the West Indies as far south as Port of Spain, Trinidad.

Ships to Fly Balloons.

The American representatives at the conference, E. L. Yuravich, of the Department of Commerce, and D. M. Little, of the Weather Bureau, said elaborate upper-air reports from ships at sea, obtained with "sounding" balloons, would augment the data from land stations.

Pan American Airways, the American transport company which will compete with European lines over the Atlantic, pioneered much of the Atlantic weather information service. Col. Charles Lindbergh conducted initial survey work.

Girl Unseen, Bridegroom Bathes As Arab Prince Marries Beauty

By the Associated Press.

Biskra, Algeria, April 11.—A college professor's beauteous daughter and the favorite son of north Africa's ranking sheik were married today in a magnificent ceremony at which the bridegroom was absent and the bride unseen.

In strict accordance with Moslem rites, the modern-minded 22-year-old bride, Douja Ben Smaia, stood discreetly veiled behind a lace-like stonework in the gallery above the huge ceremonial hall.

Also holding to the ancient customs of his forefathers, the bridegroom, Si Mohammed Ben Gana, son and titular heir of the Sheik of Araby, was taking a ceremonial bath in a separate room of his father's ancient palace when the marriage contract was sealed.

Five thousand guests, including the French Governor General of Algeria and the highest Moslem and Arab dignitaries, attended the ceremony.

The guests, surrounded by all the splendor north Africa could muster, heard the choir of Biskra's Mosque chant passages from the Koran.

Then an Arab troubador sang the praises of the bridegroom's father, Bou Aziz Ben Gana, and his ancestors.

Finally the troubador sang the Arab song of the caravan and the marriage contract was sealed by the Sheik of Araby and other leading Arab and Moslem officials.

Meanwhile, the bridegroom left his bath and walked in his ceremonial robe to the bride's room.

He knocked and the door was opened by the bride's mother.

The 23-year-old Arab prince prostrated himself on the threshold and prayed. Then he entered to give his veiled bride a piece of gold as a sign of his fidelity.

The bride's mother left the room and went to the banquet hall to give the signal for the celebrations to begin.

The sheik's own palace guard—he maintains a personal guard of 15,000—fired a salute to announce the wedding was completed.

Riding pell-mell through the streets of Biskra, Arabian sheiks on their spirited desert horses shouted and fired their guns into the air.

Nazis Ponder What Fuehrer Will Do Next

Coups in Czechoslovakia, Memel and Danzig Held Possible.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, April 11.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler's next step was debated tonight in the wake of the greatest vote of confidence ever accorded him.

His annexation of Austria March 13 drew the approval of more than 99 per cent of the nearly 50,000,000 persons who voted in yesterday's plebiscite.

Issues seen as particularly pressing in this connection were:

The minority problem of the 3,500,000 Germans in Czechoslovakia.

The reunion with Germany of former German territory, such as Memel, now a part of Lithuania, and the Polish Corridor with the Free City of Danzig.

[Konrad Henlein, leader of the Sudeten German Party in Czechoslovakia, took occasion at the conclusion of the Austro-German plebiscite to declare that all concessions made to his people by the Prague government were insufficient, the United Press reported.

[Should alternative concessions by the Czechoslovakian government fall short of the demands of the Sudeten Germans, who were inspired to boundless patriotism by the Austrian plebiscite, it is considered quite possible that Henlein may attempt to emulate Dr. Arthur Seyss-Inquart, Nazi governor of Austria, and request Hitler to free his co-nationals in Czechoslovakia. —Editor's note.]

New Hope For An Airport.

Twelve-year-old hopes for action on the District airport problem revive with a letter addressed by President Roosevelt to the Senate and House Military Affairs committees. He suggests that Military road be closed temporarily to reduce the hazards of the present Washington-Hoover landing field. This is an altogether sensible proposal and one, in fact, which Congress has already approved.

The President goes on to declare his conviction that the Washington-Hoover field can never be made entirely safe. Again, he will be sustained by virtually every person familiar with the problem. He recommends, accordingly, that Camp Springs in lower Maryland be developed as a permanent airport. The Navy Department has protested this proposal because of interference with its radio station at nearby Cheltenham. Presumably the President has assurances that these objections can be overcome. Even so, there remains the difficulty of reconciling at least one commercial air line to the six-mile trip from downtown Washington to Camp Springs.

This last criticism at least can be overcome, as the President points out, by developing a second Capital airport at Gravelly Point. Washington, he notes fairly, probably can well use two landing fields as military and commercial aviation continue to grow in importance.

His estimate, however, that Gravelly Point would need five years for development as against a year and a half for Camp Springs seems exaggerated. A mere acceleration of the Army's Potomac dredging project could finish the necessary pumping at Gravelly Point within a relatively short period. Camp Springs, in contrast, will need a special appropriation and long condemnation proceedings before work can begin, since the Government's options on the site expired many months ago.

One point seems certain: If Gravelly Point is finally to become a model airport, work will have to stop on the Bureau of Public Roads' plant now rising on the ridge behind it. Bureau of Air Commerce experts, among others, have testified that the new buildings will create an air hazard. This being the case, the President can best further his constructive suggestions by effecting an immediate transfer of the projected road-testing station.

Middle Of The Road.

It is axiomatic that there can be no stable peace in Europe without a stable France. For this reason the efforts of Premier Daladier to rally the Nation behind his government will be watched with deep solicitude abroad as well as at home.

Daladier's task is not easy. The grave financial difficulties of France will not yield immediately to any change of administration. Nor will it be easy to bring order out of the chaos produced, in part, by rash and unrealistic experimentation in social reform. But grave as are the fundamental difficulties facing the new regime in France they are for the moment overshadowed by the immediate political barriers M. Daladier will have to hurdle to maintain his government.

In definitely and deliberately excluding the Communists from his cabinet, while handing over certain posts to representatives of center groups, Daladier has shattered the Popular Front. That coalition, formed after the general election of 1936, consisted of Radical Socialists, Socialists and Communists. Daladier, himself a Radical Socialist, hopes to preserve the support of the Socialists while excluding all Communists and broadening the government coalition to the Right.

This move places the Socialists on the horns of a dilemma. Many of them have no desire to break away from the Popular Front as hitherto constituted. They have a grievance against the Right parties for having turned down Blum's suggestion for a government of national union. Now their patriotism is tested by the request that they support such a government under more conservative leadership and with the Communists pointedly excluded. The latter, meantime, are showing their attitude to the new regime by fostering strikes, some semi-revolutionary in nature.

Unless doctrinaire considerations can be put aside, and partisan agitation suspended until the financial problem is brought under control, the prospects in France will continue gloomy. But the country is one which in the past has always manifested a saving sense of unity in critical times. The Daladier government represents solid, middle-class French liberalism. It has nothing in common with the fanatics of either Left or Right. It should appeal to all sober citizens who see, from the horrible example of Spain at their back door, what happens when the extremists of either side get out of hand.

The Rocks Loom Closer.

With the reorganization bill out of the way, only one major issue demands action before Congress adjourns. That issue is recovery. Of course various aspects of the country's economic plight demand consideration. Expansion of the WPA and relief for the railroads have already been requested by the President. In a very real sense, however, these merge into the larger problem of accelerating the sluggish pace of industry in general.

To date the Administration has made little effort to grapple with this dilemma. During the last few months, official Washington has been waiting, Micawber-like, for something to turn up. It has been disappointed. There is as yet no concrete evidence that policies which have led to uncertainty and discouragement for employers and employed alike will be put into reverse. On the contrary, another effort to pave the way to prosperity by deficit financing is being formulated.

Talk of a new $4,000,000,000 spending program is heard in official circles. As Senator Byrd has noted, that would mean a sharp increase in the already substantial deficit piling up this year, and an enormous spread between income and outgo during the fiscal year 1939. Even if these proposed outlays were to be added to moderate normal expenses, they would constitute a heavy burden. But the Government is already spending about $8,000,000,000 annually. To pour out more billions in these circumstances might easily create more consternation than relief.

The irony of the situation is that President Roosevelt himself has advanced the strongest arguments against such reckless spending. In 1933 he told Congress that:—

> For three long years the Federal Government has been on the road toward bankruptcy . . . with the utmost seriousness I point out to the Congress the profound effect of this fact upon our national economy. It has contributed to the recent collapse of our banking structure. It has accentuated the stagnation of the economic life of our people. It has added to the ranks of the unemployed . . . Too often in recent history liberal governments have been wrecked on rocks of loose fiscal policy. We must avoid this danger.

This clear-cut warning was issued after three depression years had resulted in the accumulation of deficits totaling only $5,000,000,000. In other words, the President was gravely concerned over our mounting Federal debt about $16,000,000,000 ago. Since this statement was made he has tried out the spending-for-prosperity idea, contrary to his own good judgment, and it has ended in failure. The stimulative effects of national extravagance were temporary. Now the "rocks of loose fiscal policy" loom much closer than in 1933.

The President evidently knew that inordinate spending was no cure for depression when he first applied the theory. An experiment has left no doubt as to the wisdom of his first decision. Yet Mr. Roosevelt now is planning to give that panacea another trial. It is not surprising that this turn of events, coming on the eve of the Congressional campaigns when legislators are most vulnerable to pork-barrel appeals, accentuates uneasiness.

Aside from the economic and financial dangers of hurrying faster down "the road toward bankruptcy," the psychological reaction ought to be considered. Outpouring of more money to relieve depression in part due to previous unbalanced budgets created an impression that the Administration is going around in circles. In the absence of constructive plans to remove the impediments to private enterprise, which must be relied upon in the end to absorb the unemployed, officials suggest only another dose of a drug known to produce dangerous reactions. That confession of weakness, perhaps more than anything else, casts a shadow of gloom over an outlook that should be changing for the better.

Promising The Moon.

The drive being made by the C. I. O. to organize the bus drivers, motormen, conductors and shopmen of the Capital Transit Co. raises an issue with broad and important implications.

For years the local street and railway workers have been represented by an A. F. of L. unit. With the aid of this labor organization they have from time to time achieved wage increases and improvements in working conditions. Leaving aside the question of whether any other agency could have been more effective, it is clear that the rival labor organization now seeking to win over the workers must, as a matter of tactics, promise them far more than they have thus far been able to get.

But the very same circumstances which make it possible for a radical union to win adherents from a more conservative union also make it very difficult, probably impossible, for the radical union to make its promises come true. The transit company has been having a hard time making ends meet. To satisfy the sweeping demands of the C. I. O., however desirable they may be on theoretical grounds, might easily lead to a situation in which the workers would, in many instances, find themselves without jobs through an enforced curtailment of service.

The situation is a vicious circle. The company's difficulties create fertile ground for C. I. O. propaganda. But unless the company's situation can somehow be markedly improved the implementation of such demands would make the outlook for the employes much worse. And the moral from this is by no means of merely local application.

Reorganization Still Urgent.

There is no reason why plans to overhaul the District Government should be affected in any way by the failure of the national reorganization bill. The issues involved are entirely separate. It would be most unfortunate if present efforts to give Washington a real municipal government should be sidetracked because Congress refuses to yield more power to the President.

Had the national reorganization bill passed, the President would have been able to shift District as well as Federal agencies into more logical and efficient relationships. But for one sponsoring the movement for modernization of the local government relied upon the now defunct House bill for accomplishment of that purpose. Washington's problem is not merely one of shifting bureaus, boards and commissions. The city needs a charter that will give it a larger measure of control over its own affairs. Only Congress can grant that request.

As a matter of fact, the recommittal of the national reorganization bill in the House will give Congress more time to devote to the local problem. And a number of Congressmen may be eager to undertake this task if only to demonstrate their desire to enhance governmental efficiency when proper safeguards are retained. The time ought to be ripe for consideration of at least the bills creating a civil service system for the District and eliminating the Federal Budget Bureau's control over the local budget.

Changes that are less clear-cut may properly await the prospective joint study by the Senate and House District Committees. Doubtless that inquiry will not be completed until Congress reassembles next January. Since the study will be largely a correlation of suggestions from reports already made, however, it should not be particularly difficult. The very limited fund precludes an extensive inquiry.

Under no circumstances would there be excuse for relaxation of efforts to bring about the much-needed reorientation of municipal authority in Washington. Experience gives little ground for hope of solving any of the city's acute problems until this basic reform is accomplished.

A Loss To The Post.

The departure of Franklyn Waltman, who is leaving this newspaper to become director of publicity for the Republican National Committee, is a real loss to The Post. We should be unfair to our readers, and grossly deficient in estimation of a valued colleague's tested abilities, if this were not frankly and publicly admitted.

Mr. Waltman came to The Post on October 30, 1933, less than five months after Eugene Meyer became its publisher. The long uphill struggle to rehabilitate a famous Washington institution in the eyes of a properly critical public was then only fairly launched. For a period of four and one-half years, in sunshine and shadow, this talented newspaper man has given himself wholeheartedly to the work of regeneration. To his unflagging and always cheerful effort is due no small part of the measure of success which has been achieved.

By the objective reporting and the lucid interpretative writing appearing under his name something of Mr. Waltman's ability has become apparent to all readers of The Post. But his contribution to the making of this newspaper goes far deeper than what is known in the craft as "by-line copy."

The success of a newspaper is not due primarily to the brilliance of individual writers but to patient coordination of skills, to synthesis of personal abilities in what is essentially a collective undertaking. Since he first sat down to his typewriter in "Waltman's corner" of the city room, this colleague has been a member of the team first, an individual performer afterward. In newspaper production such men are far more valuable than any mere "star" can ever be.

The loss to The Post is the gain of the Republican National Committee. This is one occasion on which that organization can be congratulated, without reservation, for the exercise of good judgment.

'Pantheon Of Pope.'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
Again is brought to my attention the matter of the Jefferson Memorial. Much has been said and written during the past year regarding the memorial as planned by John Russell Pope. A great deal of what has been said has been far from dispassionate; and it seems to me that the time has come when it is wise to drop the loud ravings of people with hurt feelings or political ropes to pull and view the matter in consideration of its esthetic effects upon the city.

It is hardly necessary for me to repeat what has been said by others regarding the inappropriateness of such an impressive and pompous mass of architecture as a memorial to Thomas Jefferson, as simple and reticent a man as we find anywhere in our national history.

But, as a graduate landscape architect, I can not but be disturbed over the effect such a building in the center of the Tidal Basin would have on the well-planned beauty of our most beautiful city. The placing of a building of the proposed size and form on the axis of the White House and the Washington Monument immediately blocks out the view from the White House to the river, and thus helps to place a cage-of-walls around the city.

The beauty of any city, and of Washington in particular, is in its open spaces. A drive around the city should convince anyone of that fact. Buildings, however beautiful on paper, cannot be seen and appreciated when crowded closely upon other buildings. If one studies the plan of l'Enfant for the city of Washington he easily sees that the great planner planned for much open space. Certainly, it is unwise to destroy the most valuable attribute of such a city; when once destroyed it is irreplaceable. I should not like to see the memorial built as proposed.

Through the years we have frequent occasions for commemorating the memory of our greatest citizens, and it is logical that many of these commemorations should be located in our capital city. Why, then, in the light of all common sense, is it not wise that a comprehensive plan be worked out to provide for future locations of such memorials? This would obviate many mistakes and misplacements, and should insure the continuing beauty of our most highly prized city.

I have no suggestions to make regarding other locations and designs for the Jefferson Memorial, but I should be greatly grieved to see the Pantheon of Pope dropped into the Tidal Basin.

Religion And Lotteries.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
Last week one of your readers expressed his views on the lottery question and signed his letter "Church Member." He advocated a national lottery and stated how beneficial it would be to the Treasury of our country.

To me it seems most unreasonable for a Christian to advocate gambling in this or any other form, simply because it is against the doctrine of the Christian Church to gamble. I am afraid some of our churches and church members are becoming too modernistic.

The churches today should stick to the old-fashioned methods and discourses more than ever before. In other words, the great cry of churchgoers today is to give them that "old-time religion" so the spirit of Christ may be felt within their souls. If this is done "Church Member" won't advocate a national lottery.

Anthropological Attitude.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
After 15 years in Washington, observing the shifting political and economic scene, I have come to adopt an anthropological attitude toward public affairs. I have seen booms and depressions, politicians and counselors, come and go. I have seen bright meteors flash suddenly in the political sky and as quickly disappear. I have seen stars, big and little, strut their day across the public stage and fade away in the wings of obscurity. The big names of a decade ago are all but forgotten now. The bright lights of the thrilling 30's will be dimmed by new luminaries of the climaxing 40's, still concealed beneath the eastern horizon.

Political faces change; few Congressmen survive their first or second term; the endless parade of Cabinet members, bureau chiefs and wise men passes by. But the same economic and social problems of yesteryear remain with us still; they are discussed without end in the same terms, and the same old proposals for solving them are dusted off, refurbished and brought forth with cyclical regularity.

In the newspapers and journals of 50 years ago, you will find men pondering much the same problems, agitated by the same concerns and advancing the same arguments and proposals that we hear today. There isn't a new idea in the bunch! History may not repeat itself, but it often closely resembles its earlier forms. The Adamses, Henry and Henry Carter could make much the same observations and inferences today that they did in the 1800's.

To be sure, a vast change has taken place since 1900 in the climate of opinion, a change difficult to define for those not then alive, but a change manifest in the American mentality and conduct today.

All of which may raise a question as to genuine progress in matters political and economic; but like the star that has no parallax to speak of, it conduces to a cosmic repose.

One can view the shifting yet changeless Washington scene, even in brief historical perspective, if he is happily removed from the petty rivalries and routine of departmental or legislative life and the syllabub of social life, derive a deal of interest from the passing show, sympathize with the perplexities of public men, rejoice in their successes and regret their failures and reflect withal that human destiny is not determined by what transpires here and that, in all probability, the Washington picture will look much the same 15 years hence, Deo volente, except that a new set of faces will have replaced those that now adorn the public prints.

Motorist's Reaction.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
If ever the motorists of any community had just grounds for complaint, such grounds are present in the case of the 100-foot parking restriction at light-controlled intersections. The authorities responsible for this regulation again demonstrate their inefficiency by promulgating a regulation so drastic as to be childish and too foolish to merit serious consideration. Every child knows that lack of visibility has little, if anything, to do with collisions at light-controlled intersections, but that such collisions are the result of drivers ignoring the traffic lights; and even though lack of visibility were the cause, a 50-foot restriction would be ample.

Poor visibility at street intersections does result in accidents, but such occur at "blind" intersections, and these are the intersections to which attention should be directed, whether they are controlled by lights or not.

Renewed Pump-Priming Prospect.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
The New Deal proposals to begin a fresh spending campaign in an effort to cure the present depression are to me terrifying. From extensive reading of current news I feel sure that very many other citizens feel the same way. Some evidence of this feeling is that in three separate surveys by the American Institute of Public Opinion during the last four months increased Federal spending has been opposed by an overwhelming majority of voters.

Spending by the Government for relief or for subsidies, when the money can be borrowed so easily, grows insidiously. To realize this one has only to examine the many bills for Government spending now being urged in Congress. It discourages the taxpayers and often demoralizes the recipients, and, in some forms, plays into the hands of speculators, ultimately leaving the Government and many individuals "holding the bag" or "paying for a dead horse." To taper off such spending requires great moral courage, great patriotism and great wisdom, but it must come soon—the alternative is ruin.

One of the avowed objects of the Congressional efforts to revise the present tax laws is to restore business confidence. We are now witnessing, in the present depression, the ultimate failure of the first spending orgy. Accompanied, as a second campaign must be, by a further heavy debt increase, by an indefinite prolongation of the budget unbalancing, and by increasingly heavy taxation, and occurring at a time when huge military expenditures are planned and when many other factors are highly unfavorable, can renewed "pump-priming" be regarded by business with other than the gravest apprehension?

It does not seem possible, under all the circumstances, that the Administration would be willing to undertake such a frightful gamble. It is true that a certain amount of business stimulation would follow renewed heavy spending, but practically everybody would remember the present depression and realize that, like all artificial stimulations, the improvement could not last. The very psychology of the people would be against it.

There have been many instances of the concern felt by great men regarding what history would say of them. I cannot believe that President Roosevelt would be willing to risk the obloquy of going down in history as the President who had brought the country to the verge of bankruptcy, or beyond, by a series of unsuccessful experiments. This would make an unpleasant contrast with what history will say of the golden age of Mr. Coolidge, who paid off many billions of dollars of the national debt.

From what I know of the conservative tendencies of Secretary Morgenthau, from having been a Treasury official under him, and from current news since then, neither can I believe that he would be willing to risk appearing in history as the Secretary of the Treasury during such unfortunate experiments. It would make too unpleasant a contrast with what history will say of Mr. Mellon as the great conservator. Mr. Morgenthau's retirement as a protest against the prospect of ever being able to balance the budget would be a most patriotic and helpful gesture and would constitute the greatest contribution to soundness of Government that he could make.

Spring Journey.

ADVENTURE and exploration are denied most people in this workaday world. But almost everybody can read about them. That is why I have kept a record of our journey.

We planned it ahead of time and set its boundaries—yet, first thing we knew we were off our course. We could not resist crossing over to the Plaza. It was one of the first warm days of spring. The grass seemed so soft and new that it might have been in very truth the divinely dropped handkerchief that Walt Whitman called it. And the sky was clear except where a few flecks of clouds had gathered around the setting sun to watch him die. There they became glorified by their vigil, haloed with red and gold like little angels.

A row of young trees stretched down one end of the grass—a flimsy little forest with a single robin singing from the bare boughs. I could see him against the evening sky, black as a stone gargoyle. Angelica, being untaught, pointed an upraised finger at him and ran directly under the tree. He flew away where we could not follow.

We could see the fountain. Somebody, no doubt to celebrate the return of the cherry blossoms, must have dumped gallons of pink dye in the water, for it looked like a huge strawberry soda fed from unending stores. We viewed such an effusion of sweetness with suspicion and went no closer.

We were not alone on the Plaza. In the middle of the long stretch of grass, seated on deck chairs, were two women with two children playing about them. Now Angelica is always intrusive but seldom rebuffed; so I let her pull me toward them. One of the children had flaming red hair, and they both ran up and down the hill made by the terraced grass. Angelica, not to be outdone, must run down the hill.

"The little girl likes to run down the hill, too," said the perfectly strange woman.

"This is her first hill," I said—as, indeed, it was.

Soon they folded up their chairs and were gone, and we did not even see which way they went. It was now twilight, and we were absolutely alone on this end of the Plaza. Only a thin stretch of deep red cloud, mysterious distance, lay across the western sky. Beyond us stood Union Station, gray, with cavernous arches scooped in its face, like a colossal gate in the city walls. All around, whirling in everlasting monotony, sped the streetcars and automobiles. We were like two mice in a mechanical toy store at night where the janitor had forgotten to turn off the works. The loneliness of our position seeped in and reminded us that most of our journey lay ahead.

We went back to the street and soon came to a building with a wide open doorway. Angelica insisted on going in. I knew it was the wrong thing to do, but she was adamant and I hate scenes. So we went in. Hardly had we crossed the threshold when a man in a uniform stepped from a side room and asked with affected politeness, "Can I be of any service to you?" as if he didn't mean to be of any service to us at all—except perhaps to lock us up in jail.

"No, not at all," I said. "She just wanted to look around." I blamed it all on Angelica. We hastily left. Angelica needed no urging, either.

Just before we reached the corner we saw a snow-white cat come out of the cellar window of the corner house. No doubt he had been making explorations of his own, delaying his exhibit by poking his curious nose in underground places until fate, with perfect timing, had brought us face to face. He came toward us as if expecting us, and Angelica, in an ecstasy of glee, pointing and talking, ran to meet him. He stood behind the iron railing around the yard, however, just beyond the reach of her ardently outstretched hands and looked at us. Then he went down through the dark cellar window again. And that is all we saw of him.

We rounded another corner and came upon a duel. Several shots were fired with cap pistols, but they were all disqualified. The Marquis of Queensbury could not have been fussier about rules than these two duelists. They were surrounded by seconds, and even thirds and fourths, representing several races. Ominously from down the street came the sound of digging. We moved on.

Closer and closer we came to the digging. High in a walled-up yard a colored boy was making a garden. We stopped. I explained to him that Angelica liked nothing better than to watch people work. He said it was all right. But soon it was so dark that we could see nothing but his grin—like Alice's Cheshire cat.

We had but a little way to go. There, just ahead, shining brightly (second floor, third window back) was home. We had gone over our prescribed course. We had circled the block.

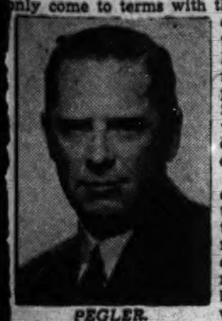
Contracts Required.

AFTER FIVE MONTHS of hearings in which hundreds of witnesses appeared, the National Labor Relations Board has ruled that an employer must not only come to terms with the bargaining agent of his employes, but must put the agreement in writing. Formerly it took two to make a bargain, but that principle has been waived in favor of a movement which has ambitions to become a dominant or decisive political power.



PEGLER.

Now it is held by a decision of a mere board that the bargain must be written down and that lack of responsibility on the part of a union is no excuse for refusal by the employer to bind himself to terms which may not be enforceable on the union. The board chides the Inland Steel Co., defendant in the case, for refusing to treat the union with the same dignity that it would show to another soulless corporation in a complicated business deal but ignores as of no importance the fact that the other soulless corporation may be compelled to observe its contracts or pay for losses resulting from its failure to do so.

• • • •

IF IRRESPONSIBILITY were a valid reason for an employer's refusal to enter an agreement, says the board, it would be a valid reason for a refusal to deal with the union at all. That is true, but the law now compels the employer to treat with the union, and from that first compulsion the board has now amplified the law to mean that he must negotiate and agree and post forfeits, including the liberty of company officials, to secure an agreement whose other party has the right to flout the contract at great loss to the employer.

The employer is represented in these dealings and in the public imagination by a high-salaried captain of industry, but his name is George Spelvin, average American, and the losses which the union may inflict under the immunity of that irresponsibility which the board so airily disregards must be borne by him. To say it a little more directly, Mr. Legion or Mr. Spelvin, with a little money invested in a soulless corporation, must make a contract, guaranteed by his invested savings, with a political group which carries in its pocket a writ virtually relieving it of responsibility.

It would be silly to quarrel with the proposition that any agreement as intricate as an employment contract between a huge company and the workmen ought to be written in precise terms, signed and witnessed, if both parties were equally bound, but those terms would be enforced as written and the labor board, which is always in the union's corner and has yet to be accused of impartiality, would be quick to disallow any attempt by the corporation to read into such an agreement any implied or unwritten extensions or evasions of the black-and-white provisions.

YET THESE amplifications of the law itself constitute just that, and the long and expensive process of hearings and wordy judgments could have been obviated by nothing more than a nickel telephone call to the office of Senator Wagner, of New York, who wrote the law and surely must know what he intended it to mean.

Senator Wagner is no recluse, and a word from him would clarify the intentions of the act and remove it from the field of mind-reading and guesswork. It does seem odd, however, that he refrained from writing in a definite requirement of written agreements between employers and unions unless he had some studied reasons for this omission and even more curious that he has not been asked to say whether he meant anything that he didn't write. If boards with apparent prejudices are now adding riders to acts of Congress, the famous complaint against the nine old men that they nullified the will of the statesmen seems insincere.

• • • •

THE POLITICAL ambitions of the C. I. O. have been apparent for some time and a national Government enjoying the power and privilege that John L. Lewis thought he had bought by his contributions to Mr. Roosevelt would establish in the White House the principles of the sitdown, the quickie and the one-sided contract.

The Wagner act may have hidden meanings, but it would have been more honest and constructive of the board to say that while agreements obviously should be reduced to writing the irresponsible party should be compelled to assume obligations as binding as those which it demands. Mr. Lewis sometimes contends that the C. I. O. is responsible, but that is debatable and beside the point of the current decision. That decision takes the attitude that it makes no difference whether it is responsible or not.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

If President Roosevelt Would Say This—

My friends and neighbors—and I'm making no exceptions—I think the time has come to cheer up America, give American business a semifriendly smile, stop calling names and, in the words of Jack Garner, give the cattle a chance to fatten. First of all, I think it time to admit that I can be as wrong as anybody else, always excepting Mr. Hoover, Republican editors and the pitcher who used to throw a fast ball to Ruth with the count two and three. . . .

• • • •

I once made the promise that if my experiments proved wrong, I would be the first to admit it. I am a little too late to be the first, but I still wish to take a place well up in front in the confession of error.

• • • •

It doesn't hurt any man to admit his mistakes, provided he has been motivated by a desire to do what was best for his country. Everything I have tried has been tried in the interest of a better America, but it has now become obvious that you can't get a sick man out of bed with the entire hospital staff sitting on his chest.

• • • •

It is my sincere belief that my Administration has cleaned some Augean stables, purified the atmosphere and given certain phases of American life a much-needed hair cut and shave. I think much remains to be accomplished, but I have decided that it can't all be done on roller skates between the changes of the moon.

• • • •

As a nautical man I have reached the conclusion that there is no sense in trying to ride out a second storm by the same mistakes made in the first storm, and I am through using a microphone for a tiller, employing a fever chart for a compass and stirring up the sailors on the upper deck against the sailors on the lower deck.

• • • •

Don't get the idea I am an old softy who can't stand the gaff and who is now going to kiss businessmen, reading from left to right, and give the stock market back its romping suits.

• • • •

I still believe my goals are worth while and I hope for their ultimate attainment, but I am going to let up for at least 18 months on the custom of jumping on the patient with the idea of keeping him alert to his responsibilities.

• • • •

"I have decided to regard all classes of Americans as essentially honest, to cease picturing a man with money as a cannibal, to stop calling people names over the radio, to scrap the idea of America's perilous plight as being due to a selfish group in a leaking lifeboat, and to work for one thing: good feeling, co-operation and the business of selling the country something that will stop its hair standing on end.

• • • •

I am for the more abundant life. I am for a happier America, but I have come to the conclusion that a little slower backswing won't do us any harm.

The Housing Problem

Disintegration Of Residential Values Has Forced Cities To Strike At Roots Of Blight Threatening $100,000,000,000.

By Miles R. Frisbie.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Mr. Frisbie is the executive director of the American Federation of Housing Authorities.

WHEN THE LAW of supply and demand fails to work in so vital a sector of the national economy as housing, it becomes socially pertinent and economically important to explore the reason for such a state of affairs.

Millions of low and medium income families are without decent, sanitary shelter within their means. In the cities a blight is spreading through the great central areas. Slums are extending into new areas. Beyond city borders, tent and shack communities are growing up without sanitation or civilized amenities.

But practical and experienced men in construction and finance protest that "private industry cannot today profitably rehouse slum dwellers in decent homes."

However, there is a residential shortage in a field in which private capital can operate but does not.

Statisticians of the industry sponsor the statement that during the years 1930 to 1937 the construction industry built an average of 175,875 dwelling units per year. Of this number 51 per cent cost $5,000 or more. This 51 per cent was available only to the income group able to pay $50 a month or more.

Family income economists publish this statement: "From 1933 to 1935 the number of families receiving incomes of $3,000 or more per year did not increase as fast as the national income increased in that period." Since 1933 the number of families paying $50 or more per month rent has decreased. This indicates a positive resistance in these income groups to paying the 1929 proportion of income for rent or its equivalent. In 1937 the number of families paying $50 or more per month for rent fell to approximately two-thirds of the number of families paying $50 or more per month in 1930.

There are other factors that enter the picture. The most striking is the obsolescence of American urban housing. Often it has been skillfully masked by a new coat of paint or superficial repair. Largely it has been in neighborhoods where only the occasional passerby took note. But assessment rolls of the cities and rising tax bills on standard properties which had to make up the shrinkage of values spreading through deficit areas have reflected the deterioriation clearly.

Following is a statistical study of a geographically representative group of eight American cities. It reveals a consistent growth of population accompanied by a steady decrease in per capita assessed valuations of real estate. These cities are not exceptions. In many cities the situation is far worse.

City.	% Population Increase 4-Yr. Period	Population Index	Assessed Valuation Decrease Index, 4 Years	% Decline in Per Capita Assessed Valuation
N. York..—	5.68	94.32	85.6	91.0
J'sonville.	56.6	156.6	71.3	54.5
Chicago..	10.0	110.	64.7	41.2
Flint.....	28.32	128.32	77.0	40.0
Houston..	44.56	144.56	87.5	39.5
L. Angeles	45.88	145.88	98.0	32.9
Kans. City	8.16	108.16	92.5	14.5

The cities all were growing in population—some slowly, others rapidly—but in all the assessed valuations of property were falling. In some cities property is assessed at 85 per cent of estimated evalue; in other cities it is as low as 33 1-3 per cent; the average would be somewhere around 50 per cent. But whether the assessment was at 85 per cent of the value or 33 1-3 per cent, the story was the same. A steady decline in value over the years 1932 to 1936, a decline which is continuing. In the richest and most populous State of the Union values fell more than a quarter of a billion dollars a year in 1937 and this drop has been accentuated in 1938.

Deflation Not Only Cause For Depreciation.

MORE FAMILIES . . . fewer dwelling units . . . residential values steadily declining. The cause of this decline in urban realty values has not been deflation. That took place earlier. It has been rather the evaporation of values due to neighborhood disintegration in vast areas of the central residential belts of cities.

A home is a type of property different from all others. The value of an automobile is not affected by the care a neighbor gives his car. Millions of junkers may crowd the roads, without lessening by a dollar the value of a relatively new, well-maintained automobile. But let a man fail to paint his house, neglect his lawn and sidewalk and immediately the value and salability of the property next door is impaired.

So long as individual ownership of homes continued under the American land policy neither private interest nor public welfare could bring about that community protection which would lend stability of value to the individual home.

There have been other factors behind the drop in residential values. The type of residence built 20, 30 and 40 years ago does not fit the modern family income, need or taste of today. Families of previous owners have passed on or have disposed of the old homes and escaped into new neighborhoods on the periphery of the city, or even beyond city borders into the countryside.

As one income group moves out, lower income groups move in progressively. Individual residences become "apartments," rooming houses, boarding houses, or they are converted to small business uses. Congestion of population begins, the forerunner and primary cause of a slum.

This Nation-wide change of character in neighborhoods reflected itself in school attendance, in church congregations, in the whole aspect of the central residential belts as they changed from decade to decade for the worse.

Zoning Ordinances Resorted To By Cities.

TO AVERT the deadly threat of this spreading blight, the cities resorted to various tricks, devices, schemes and nostrums. Zoning, perpetrated in the guise of city planning, was the main reliance.

By prohibiting any or certain types of industry or business from locating in certain areas, it was sought to bolster neighborhood character and preserve realty values. But zoning regulations against business intrusion would not stick. The decline continued—accelerated.

Resort was then had to giving these areas a fictitious value through zoning them as "commercial and industrial" and raising assessments accordingly. For a time owners struggled with the heavier taxes in the hope that some industry would buy their properties for factory sites. The economics of industry were ignored, the decentralizing trend of large business was overlooked. Hoping for a miracle, owners ceased to keep their property in repair. This produced a still more rapid decline in values which finally found its reflection in an enforced reduction of assessments, which is now proceeding.

To what extremes cities went may be seen from the fact that one of the larger cities of the United States has so much zoned as "commercial and industrial" that it would require a population virtually the size of China's to absorb the area, while many cities whose population is either stationary or declining are zoned for cities four and five times their present population. The Federal Government has made available huge sums for renovation and repair of dwellings. It has not checked the decline because it did not restore or even stabilize the neighborhood.

Within the past four years the cities, under the leadership and counsel of the United States Conference of Mayors, have abandoned nostrums for realism. Resolutely the fact is being faced that the only way to correct the blight of these highly desirable residential sites is to purchase and clear large areas. These areas are then to be replanned and rebuilt with rental housing, so designed, protected and managed as to create not only blight-proof housing but blight-proof neighborhoods. Cities are not engaged in housing because they wish to, but because they must, if the more than $100,000,000,000 realty investment in land, mortgages and municipal obligations is not to be lost.

Japan's Tradition Of Victory.

AT TAIERCHWANG last week the Chinese did something more than merely win a battle from the Japanese. They also smashed an impressive record and a powerful myth. And because of this the consequences of their surprising feat can be world-shaking.

The record was that of an unbroken series of victories won by Japan over a period of 44 years. The myth was of Japan's invincibility. And with the disappearance of the first as a result of the rout of the Japanese forces at Taierchwang the second obviously loses its potency. In this respect, therefore, Taierchwang may prove one of the truly decisive battles of the world.

• • • •

THIS DOES not mean that ultimate victory for the Chinese in the present undeclared war is assured. It does not even necessarily mean that China's newfound offensive power will continue to manifest itself. But it does mean that given intelligent leadership, adequate equipment and some sort of trained personnel China can be a match for its island neighbor. What was done at Taierchwang can be done again. The lesson will not be forgotten by the Chinese—or others.

On three occasions since 1894 China and Japan have been in a state of war, declared and undeclared. That year saw the beginning of Japan's spectacular advance to the status of a world power. Using a dispute over the status of Korea as a pretext, Japan attacked China. The Manchu empire was helpless. Its army existed chiefly on paper and what there was of it was equipped principally with muzzle-loading muskets and spears. The Japanese won every battle.

• • • •

AT THE TIME of Japan's Manchurian adventure in 1931-32, the invaders met with practically no opposition. Instead of fighting, the army commanded by Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang retreated. Ultimately it was forced out of Manchuria altogether. And while, at Shanghai, the Nineteenth Route Army surprised and startled the world by holding up the Japanese steamroller for several weeks the final outcome was another victory, if a somewhat tarnished one, for the island empire.

And from July, 1937, when the present war began until last week the Japanese could also lay claim to an unbroken succession of victories. Peiping and Tientsin fell into their hands without much difficulty. Shanghai was a harder nut to crack, but superiority of equipment finally told in favor of the invaders and the magnificent defense of the Chinese was smashed. Nanking was taken in short order.

THE SAME record of unbroken victories was achieved by Japan in the other wars she has fought. The Russian colossus was overwhelmed in 1904-05 and a decade later German-held Tsingtao was captured.

Outwardly the record is unquestionably impressive. Thus it is not surprising that the army has ruled the roost in Japan. And it is also not surprising that army and people, both, have been firm believers in the myth of Japan's invincibility with the result that, as the so-called Tanaka memorial reveals, the militarists of the island empire have entertained the most sanguine hopes of Japan's possibility as a conqueror. Nothing less than the domination of all Asia has been the goal of their aspirations.

TO BE SURE, all of Japan's military victories since 1894 had been achieved under circumstances exceptionally favorably to the Nipponese. The Manchu empire at the close of the last century was in its final stage of incompetence and decay. The war with Russia was fought in Manchuria—thousands of miles from the centers of population of the corrupt and inefficient Czarist empire. Russia's troops had to be sent clear across Asia over a single-tracked railway. The war against Germany was a highly localized affair with the Reich's energies absorbed elsewhere. The China of 1931-32 was a weak and disunited nation.

Nonetheless, Japan's military prestige grew by leaps and bounds as a result of this unbroken succession of triumphs on the field of battle and the myth of Japan's invincibility against any single foe was accepted as truth not only by the Japanese themselves but by a great many others as well.

• • • •

THE FALL of Taierchwang to the Chinese, together with the campaign that preceded it, may bring about a sharp revision of hitherto held opinions regarding Japan's military prowess. Harassed by guerrillas to whose depredations their over-extended lines made them vulnerable, the Japanese troops moving down toward Suchow met their match in Li Tsung-jen's army. The result was China's first great victory of arms and Japan's first important defeat.

Now victory has been the Japanese militarists principle stock in trade. In recent years they have displayed no high order of statesmanship. Their ignorance of finance and economics has proved abysmal. But their hold on the people and the nation remained great, nonetheless, for they could boast that they had made Japan a modern nation, built its empire, extended its power, caused it to be feared and respected. Thus no one at home could say them nay. With the defeat at Taierchwang, if and when they ever hear about it, the harassed Japanese people may radically revise their opinion of their military oligarchs who, for so long have ruled over them in effect if not in name. For without victories to feed the people, the Japanese army's pretensions are certain to collapse like Humpty-Dumpty thrown off his perch.

Outer Mongolia

By Leonard Ludwin

Japan Due For Shock.

FROM MY observations in Mongolia on my first visit in 1921 and my recent visit to the territories comprising the heart of Central Asia, I am of the opinion that the Japanese may get the shock of their lives when they come up against Outer Mongolia's military forces.

The outstanding factor in the modernization of Outer Mongolia is the compulsory army service. Under normal conditions approximately 15 per cent of the male population receives military training, but through rotation, the army is being steadily enlarged. Not restricted to men, the army uses women in various capacities, some occupying high positions. Under the careful instruction of Soviet military experts, Outer Mongolia has built an army of more than 200,000 men, equipped with the most modern means of warfare. It has been mechanized to suit the physical condition of the country and includes tanks, flame-throwers, artillery and other up-to-date equipment, plus more than 300 airplanes of the latest types.

Of high mobility, this powerful fighting machine seems to be ready for any emergency. The Mongol soldiers are living today under the same trying climatic conditions as their forefathers and have retained the physical characteristics which made them outstanding warriors eight centuries ago. Accustomed to the endurance of hunger and cold, they are admirably suited to operate with great advantage over any enemy in the difficult desert territories of Mongolia.

Text of President's Message

Communication Is Sent To Congress On The Railroad Problem.

The text of President Roosevelt's message to Congress on the railroad problem, follows:

To the Congress of the United States:

During the past month I have consulted with a large number of individuals on the increasingly difficult problem of our railroad transportation. As the Congress is aware, the relationship of the Federal Government to the railroads has been for 50 years through the medium of the Interstate Commerce Commission. This distinguished body was originally set up with the primary purpose of ending serious abuses on the part of the carriers, such as rebating and cut-throat competition.

As the years went by the Congress from time to time has extended the authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission, vesting in it other quasi-legislative and quasi-judicial powers and giving to it also a number of purely executive functions. While the latter powers are, in all probability, unconstitutional in that they create executive authority in a fourth branch of the Government instead of in the President, I do not at this time raise that issue because for the present it is more important for all of us to co-operate in preventing serious bankruptcies among a large number of railroad companies, great and small.

I invited Chairman Splawn of the Interstate Commerce Commission and Commissioners Eastman and Mahaffie to present, somewhat hurriedly and informally, recommendations relating to this serious situation—and I have kept the chairmen of the appropriate committees of the Senate and House of Representatives informed of the report.

Recommendations Cited.

Summarized, the three members of the Interstate Commerce Commission recommend as a means of immediate relief the following:

1. That approximately $300,000,000 be made available from Government funds for the purchase of railroad equipment, the equipment to be the security for the advance.

2. That for 12 months the Reconstruction Finance Corporation be empowered to make loans without certification by the Interstate Commerce Commission that the railroad can meet its fixed charges.

3. That other forms of Government credit be considered from the point of view of public policy.

4. That Government traffic pay the full rate by eliminating land grant reductions.

5. That the commission does not feel justified in expressing an opinion for or against reduction of railroad wages.

6. That reorganization procedure under Section 77 of the bankruptcy act receive the attention of the Congress, and they suggest consideration of the establishment of a single court in charge of reorganizations.

Program Stressed.

The long-term program suggested by the commissioners includes:

1. That a Federal transportation authority be created for two years to plan and promote action by railroad companies to eliminate waste, aid consolidation and coordination.

2. That the interstate commerce act be amended to broaden the powers of the commission with respect to pooling of earnings or traffic, to eliminate "the consolidation plan" and approve unification; that the authority be permitted to intervene in such proceedings before the commission, and make recommendations through the commission to the President and the Congress.

3. That the authority investigate economy and all types of transportation, encourage special fitness and abate destructive competition.

4. That attention be given to railroad financial abuses now under investigation.

Transmits Report.

The full report of the three members of the Interstate Commerce Commission is transmitted herewith, and I am transmitting also certain comments which have been made by others with whom I have talked:

Consideration Asked.

Insofar as information in regard to the railroad problem is concerned, there is probably no other subject to which the Congress, year after year, has devoted more study or obtained more information. The troubles of the railroads are not new but they have been getting, on the whole, steadily more difficult since before the World War. It is true that a general upturn in business would undoubtedly help to keep many railroads from actual receivership. But it is also true that resumption of traffic at last year's level would not solve their growing difficulties permanently.

Most of us have definite objection to Government subsidies to the railroads to enable them to meet the interest on their outstanding bonds or for any other purpose, and most of us also oppose Government ownership and operation of the railroads. I do.

The suggestions made by the three members of the Interstate Commerce Commission should, of course, be read in the light of the comments thereon made in the letters appended thereto.

I ask your special consideration of the fact that matters relating to transportation in its wider sense are now dealt with by the following departments or agencies of the Government:

1. The Bureau of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture.
2. The Bureau of Air Commerce of the Department of Commerce.
3. The United States Maritime Commission.
4. The division of transportation of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the Department of Commerce.
5. The Interstate Commerce Commission.
6. The Lighthouse Service of the Department of Commerce.
7. The Bureau of Navigation and Marine Inspection of the Department of Commerce.

Swift Legislation Needed.

These agencies deal with special phases of transportation rather than the transportation problem in the broader national aspect. Some of the functions are executive, some are legislative, some are judicial.

From the point of view of business efficiency, such as a private corporation would seek, it would seem to be the part of common sense to place all executive functions relating to all transportation in one Federal department—such as the Department of Commerce, the Department of the Interior or some other old or new department. At the same time all quasi-judicial and quasi-legislative matters relating to all transportation could properly be placed under an independent commission—a reorganized Interstate Commerce Commission. And such action would be highly constitutional.

I refer to this, not by way of recommendation, but only as one method which should receive Congressional study.

In the meantime, and until it has been possible for the Congress to make any and all studies for permanent solution of the railroad problem, some immediate legislation is, I believe, necessary at this session, in order to prevent serious financial and operating difficulties between now and the convening of the next Congress.

Facts About the Railroads

Pertinent facts about the Nation's railroads as compiled by the Associated Press.

Capitalization—About $25,000,000,000 for all classes of steam railroads. Funded debt represents about 55 per cent ($12,600,000,000). The largest item of funded debt is mortgage bonds.

Earnings—Class 1 railroads (those with annual gross revenue of $1,000,000 or more) had net railways operating income of $590,180,665 in 1937, a return of 2.27 on their property investment. This compared with net operating income of $667,174,165 or 2.57 per cent in 1936 and $868,719,483 or 3.36 per cent in 1930.

Class 1 railroads had an operating deficit of $2,136,481 in February, the first for any month since February, 1921. Net railway operating income for the first two months this year amounted to $4,783,395, compared with $77,695,851 for the same period of 1937 and $113,013,227 for January-February, 1930.

In the red—23 Class 1 railroads failed to earn expenses and taxes in 1937. In the first two months this year 69 failed to earn expenses and taxes.

Defaults—in 1936 railroads failed to pay $110,000,000 of interest due on bonds.

Employment and wages—In 1937 Class I carriers had 1,115,077 employes and the pay roll for the year was $1,965,323,363. In January the number of employes was 959,391.

Carloadings—For the week ended April 2, loadings of revenue freight totaled 523,589, a decrease of 197,740 cars from the corresponding week last year and a decrease of 361,835 compared with the same week of 1930.

Value—As of January 1, 1937, the Interstate Commerce Commission valued the Nation's railroads at $21,000,000,000.

Mileage—242,000 miles or about 30 per cent of the world's total.

Taxes—Class 1 railroads paid $325,689,094 in taxes in 1937, compared with $319,701,180 in 1936, and $348,536,962 in 1930.

Railroad Recommendations

The report of the three-man committee of the Interstate Commerce Commission recommended in part:

That $300,000,000 be made available from Government funds for the purchase of railroad equipment, the equipment to be the security for advances.

That the RFC be empowered for 12 months to make railway loans without certification by the Interstate Commerce Commission that the railroad can meet its fixed charges.

That other forms of Government credit be considered.

That the Government traffic pay the full rate by eliminating land grant reductions.

The committee members—Commissioners Walter M. W. Splawn, Joseph B. Eastman and Charles D. Mahaffie—said they did not feel justified in expressing an opinion on whether railroad wages should be reduced. Without making a definite recommendation, they suggested that Congress consider changing the bankruptcy laws to permit establishment of special courts to handle railroad reorganization.

The ICC committee recommended as a long term program:

That a Federal transportation authority be created for two years to plan and promote action by railroad companies to eliminate waste, aid consolidation and co-ordination.

That the interstate commerce act be amended to broaden the powers of the commission with respect to pooling of earnings or traffic, to eliminate "the consolidation plan" and to approve unifications; that the authority be permitted to intervene in such proceedings before the commission, and make recommendations through the commission to the President and the Congress.

That the authority investigate economy and all types of transportation, encourage special fitness and abate destructive competition.

D. O. C. Reorgnaization

The initial organizing drive of the U. F. W. A. in the District being completed, the hard-working District Organizing Committee—which nursed the baby U. F. W. A. into the fairly strapping fellow he is now—will soon reorganize itself. The D. O. C., on the first Friday in May, will reshape itself into a permanent Federal workers' council for the District with an enlarged work, if that is possible.

The vote to reorganize was taken at the last membership meeting of the D. O. C., when the admission into the U. F. W. A. of the twenty-eighth Washington local was announced. (This newest union is in the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, holding charter No. 107.) Following the vote to reorganize, the D. O. C. executive committee appointed five members to draft a constitution for the new council and drew plans for consolidating organizational gains and expanding membership activities.

The committee will recommend that during the first six months the council pay special attention to the functioning of the newer and smaller locals and that council members be assigned to attend local meetings to assist in building membership and establishing the local in the agency.

Arthur Stein, chairman, in discussing the problems with the committee, stated that the reorganization of the D. O. C. will enable it more efficiently to co-ordinate the activities of the various Washington locals.

The National Park Service brings you history: Morristown, N. J., of 1780 and 1781; a bustling little frontier town suddenly thrust into prominence because nature and military strategy combined to make it the military capital of the struggling Colonies, is the site of this week's broadcast in the National Park Service's current radio series, "America's Hours of Destiny." There, on January 1, 1781, occurred an almost bloodless mutiny which threatened to end the Colonies' fight for freedom. The story will be told over Station WOL tonight from 7:30 to 8 o'clock. In the cast will be Mad Anthony Wayne, Sergt. Maj. Bawser and others, portrayed by members of the Washington Civic Theater. Today Morristown National Historical Park embraces the most important areas of the military encampments of the mutiny period.

Despite all the correspondence, this friction between Government cafeteria workers and the Welfare and Recreational Association is far from quieted down, we hear . . . And the A. F. G. E. keeps hammering along for an entire application of the night differential to all positions requiring night shifts. They point out: "The night differential is so general in private industry that it is difficult to understand why the same thing is not true in the Government service. The Government is again lagging behind the procession instead of being out in front where it belongs." . . . The U. F. W. A. forecasts some coming events: Saturday night, Saturday night hop at the headquarters, games, refreshments, lots of fun, and Sunday, Softball League, 11 a. m. and 12 noon, reflecting pool diamonds.

The Postoffice Department on May 15 celebrates the twentieth anniversary of the inauguration of scheduled air mail services, and in commemoration thereof will observe National Air Mail Week—the 15th to 21st, inclusive. "When the service was inaugurated on May 15, 1918, the schedules called for a total flying mileage of but 436 miles daily," the Postmaster General has pointed out. "Now the airlines of this country regularly fly upwards of one-quarter of a million miles every 24 hours . . ."

The modesty of the A. F. G. E. is refreshing. All through the reorganization controversy they did battle against the bill, centering their opposition, of course, against the proposed change of the civil service administration setup. And since they won not one statement has been issued from the offices on F street to the effect that "we did it" or "we told you so." And that the A. F. G. E. had much to do with defeat of the objectionable measure none—not even the A. F. G. E.'s foes—will deny.

The Veterans' Administration announces certain minor changes which affect personnel: Under the new ruling, suspensions as disciplinary measures will not be effected without prior approval of the administrator, except suspensions of unclassified personnel (attendants, chefs, cooks, bakers and unskilled laborers). The administrator reserves the right to reprimand or criticize the action of an assistant administrator, the solicitor of the executive assistant to the administrator in central office and an official in charge of a field station. Derelictions of such officials justifying displinary action will be brought to the attention of the administrator. Letters of reprimand to all other employes will be signed by the administrator. Letters of admonishment may be signed by others.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

ll Her 'Dates' Are Procured for Her by Friends; They Never Come Back; Girl Asks What Is Wrong.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a young girl of nice amily, educated, average looking, go with the right people, nd am employed in an office. I live with my family and, on he whole, have almost everything that a girl of 20 would ant, with the single exception of one thing—boy friends. I ve dates and go places where my crowd goes, but each time I go out it with a different boy, because those I have dated previously never ask e for a second date.

• • • •

My own common sense tells me that I am not a dull date, for I am always nice to the boy, I try not to let the conversation lag, I am willing to do what the rest of the crowd wants to do and I can dance as well as most girls in my set. But still I do not get that second date that most boys seek with a girl after they have once met her. At least, that is the rule among the girls of my set. Naturally, I wouldn't expect every boy I date to come running back for more dates, because I realize my personality couldn't be expected to appeal to everyone.

• • • •

All the dates I have are gotten for me by girl friends, when they have extra boy and arrange a double-date. I am not looking for a steady y friend. I have no intention of getting serious with anyone, because I ve seen too little of life as yet to wish to settle down. My most rnest wish is, simply, to have dates like other girls. Have I been plain ough in my story, and can you help me? Sincerely,

AVERAGE GIRL.

The Spinster Attitude.

DEAR AVERAGE GIRL: This usiness of annexing "dates" dious term!) through the medium a go-between puts you under a ndicap from the start. The boy, hether or not he realizes it, brings me psychic resistance to the meetg. Either he has been persuaded squire you as a favor to the her boy, or the other girl; or he s been told in some detail that u are a swell person, but for me unknown reason not popular; he is canny enough to decide for mself that a girl who is at such se ends, socially, as to be ready d willing to accept a second-hand vitation, stands at the foot of the pularity class. Therefore, as I say, brings an attitude of skepticism, ther than of susceptibility, to the counter.

• • • •

You, I suppose, make matters worse by working too hard to please the boy, from the very moment of meeting, thinking thus to procure for yourself a second invitation. You fail to employ that casual insouciance which belongs to the girl who knows (or feels) that she is making a boy happy simply by accepting his invitation to go places and do things with him. Maybe you are a little too nice to the boy; a little too pointedly and exclusively attentive to him; perhaps you bore him a trifle by your too pronounced conversational adequacy. One almost invariable characteristic of the spinster-type of girl, the girl who is not easily accustomed to the attentions and the companionship of men, is her nervous incessancy of conversation and her tendency to punctuate his every remark with a giggle, titter or other indication of excessive applause and appreciation. Her awareness of what she supposes to be the social exigencies of a "date" is almost too brittle. It is nerve-wracking, tiresome, cloying.

• • • •

I can only suggest that, hereafter, ou treat your commandeered esort as a pleasant social convenince, and employ these manufacured "dates" as opportunities for ttracting the interest of some other boy who doesn't know you aren't a belle in your own right. Just the other evening I heard a spirited teen-age girl tell how she manages to set herself afloat, socially, in a new environment or new social circle. She says she doesn't mind accepting a date from the ugliest or dullest boy who ever lived, supposing he is a nice boy and gets around socially, because she has learned from experience that if you get out where you can see and be seen, and make the most of your opportunities, you can always run across another boy who is more to your liking, and who likes you as well as you like him.

• • • •

The whole idea, you see, is in making no attempt to fascinate those boys who take you out, at your friends' requests, from a sense of duty, but in using them as a stepping stone to a forthright, first-hand invitation from some other young man. If your commandeered escort observes, from your actions, that you are no more interested in him, as a romantic possibility, than he is in you; that you seem, indeed, to be a little more interested in some other chap, his curiosity and egotism may be piqued, and he may come back for a second date just to assert his powers of attractiveness. He may try to make a conquest of you in order to satisfy his own vanity. I think that, by being just self-interested enough to be willing to use these manufactured dates as a means to an end; or by being clever enough to give the impression that you distinctly do not regard them as an end in themselves, you can correct this situation eventually.

M. H.

Purse Shaped Like Book.

Paris (AP).—Smart new purses include one shaped like a book, with sides in black leather and back in royal blue. This is carried under the arm like a book and makes an accessory to a frock in black and white plaid trimmed in royal blue.

Silks and Cottons for Juvenile Easter Dresses

An attractive little Easter frock made of flower-striped dimity. Note straight full skirt with patch pockets, back tie sash and white accessories. The white note is echoed in muslin bodice trimming. Upturned straw sailor flaunts long streamers.

A bit more formal are the two dresses above, made of silk. At left the high-waisted styling is outlined with ric rac braid and finished with a huge button. The checked model at right features pleating—in the collar trim and full skirt. Bows and belt are velvet in contrasting color.

Flowered dimity is the medium for this gay little number with shirred waistline and lace-trimmed square neckline. A pinafore effect is gained by the sash tied in back. The doll, "Ann McGuffey," is also dressed in the latest juvenile manner, inspired by the old-fashioned pinafore.

TheOldPinafore ReturnstoVogue In New Versions

By Ethel Ehlen,
The Post Fashion Editor

THE EASTER parade of fashions for children are as interesting and feminine as those for mother and big sister. And, it is significant this spring that juvenile styles are exactly that, and not something copied from adult fashions as in former years.

The majority of children's clothes in the newest collections are made from materials and styled in a manner that is definitely juvenile. The old-fashioned pinafore is back, also the clever little high-waisted model so generally becoming to small girls. Suspender jumpers worn with white blouses have returned to vogue. Sashes vie with belts, and animal prints are running a race with the more conventional flower patterns for first honors in the realm of fabrics.

Silks, rayons and cottons are all represented in attractive juvenile models, topped by flower-trimmed straw bonnets and huge turned-up sailors with long streamers down the back. The cottons include tissue dimity, percale, broadcloth and ever-fast materials in prints and solid colors. Smocking is much in evidence as a decorative meduim, also shirring to mark the diminutive waistline. Pleats and pockets abound; ric-rac braid, buttons and velvet bows are much to the fore as trimming. Tiny tailored collars and more intricate affairs edged with pleated ruffles share honors equally, depending upon the material and styling of the dress.

Dots and candy stripes are seen in practically all kinds of fabrics; also flower stripes and small all-over flower patterns.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, April 11.

AS HAS BEEN said here too many times for your comfort, there isn't a more popular career at the moment than modeling. In my essays on the matter, I've always stressed the streamlined young beauties who wear fine clothes and reach for cigarettes — but they form only a small though beautiful bit of the New York model picture. For instance, there's Maggie, who works for my sister Frances.

ALICE HUGHES

Maggie has only had two jobs in the past six months—total intake, $10, at five the hour—but she'll get more, for there are few girls in Gotham who possess her points. Mag, in short, is a young, handsome and very well-bred collie who belongs to Frances and her husband—and is now registered with the famous Powers Model Agency just as thoroughly as Anita Counihan, Janice Jarrett, Betty Wyman or any other professional medal winner.

And Maggie got her first modeling job purely by chance. It seems there are so few well-bred collies in town that they are in demand for camera purposes, and model scouts often check with vets and dog hospitals for likely posing prospects. That's the way Mag was discovered, and before she and her family knew it, she had been photographed to advertise a well-known brand of liquor. She was very proud and happy about it all. Frances and Albert divvied the $5 and patted Maggie gratefully.

Since then the girl has earned another five-spot by her beauty and patience. Of course, Frances and her spouse are not quite able yet to retire on Maggie's life as a famous model for the camera, but they have hopes. Albert stays up until 2 a. m. combing the night before Mag goes on a job. But he loves Maggie, and after all, he and Frances must consider her career! I'd register Martin, who'll soon be 6, except that no still camera could ever catch him without blurring, and I hear that the movies are overpacked right now with young tornadoes. I tell you, there's no place like New York for a young collie of good family to get ahead!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—These are the nights that bring out those "gay crowds" on Broadway. From the subway station at Forty-second street to the Capitol Theater at Fifty-first, countless thousands of people shuffle every fine evening. Many, of course, are movie shopping, but the great majority just shuffle and push and stumble, evidently enjoying the fancy electric lights and an occasional orange drink. I advise against peering at close range, for the "gay Broadway crowd" is gay neither individually nor en masse. Dogged is a better word.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

The Persistent Spring Cold.

ABOUT THIS time of year a number of people find they can't lose their winter cold. They keep coughing and spitting and getting chilled.

If this happens to a person spring after spring so that the winter cough is prolonged into the hot weather, it probably is bronchitis or bronchiectasis, which is a dilation of the bronchial tubes, and strenuous steps should be taken to treat it in the early stages.

These people are very subject to drafts, and changes of temperature make them catch cold all over again. They always have a good coughing spell in the morning and drain a great deal of matter out of their bronchial tubes. It finally becomes serious enough so that they are emaciated and anemic and chronic invalids.

Treatment consists in, first, clearing up the nasal condition; second, postural drainage of the bronchial tubes by hanging over a chair with the head down so that the lungs and bronchial tubes are drained; third, change of climate.

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

Court Dilemma.

"Of course I don't care personally . . . it's just the principle of the thing. That gets me. As far as Jane's concerned, she was just going to London for the trip anyway, and being as she was over there, we thought it would be nice for her to meet the King and Queen. Just as a matter of education, you know . . . and then, of course, you know those things do help a girl socially.

"Anyway, as I told my Congressman, we certainly had as good a right as anybody to be presented at court. My people have been in this country since 1632 . . . I had ancestors on both sides in the Revolution—and in the War of 1812, too, for that matter.

"Now understand I'm not snobbish about those things. I'm just as democratic as anybody. My people have always been that way. We don't go in for show. We're just good solid Americans.

• • • •

"It's not the part about Jane's not being presented at court that I mind—though I do think it's an awfully nice thing for a girl to be able to tell her friends about—but what I want to know is, what right has this man Kennedy to stand up and dictate to us Americans?

"It's just another one of those infringements on personal rights. Nobody has any individual liberty any more. I tell you this country is headed toward a dictatorship. Now you watch and see!

"Another thing, I think it's a shame to see all the little formalities and niceties of life done away with. That's what's the matter with this day and age. No dignity. No formality. You know what I really think is back of it all? The Communists . . . or at least the Socialists. This foreign element simply can't stand for anyone else to have any fun. They want to turn everything topsy turvy.

Honestly sometimes I wonder what the world's coming to with all our institutions being swept away. I've gotten so I just live from one day to the next. If we don't have a revolution some day I miss my guess.

• • • •

"You know when I think about all the young girls that'll be so disappointed about this thing, it makes my heart sick. And this man, Kennedy, what excuse does he give? That it's 'undemocratic.' Well I know one thing—I'm just as democratic as Mr. Kennedy when it comes down to it. And I know plenty of girls who have been presented at court who are as democratic as anybody.

"And then this Kennedy, what else does he say? That there are 'too many to pick from.' Why that excuse simply doesn't hold water! Why all he has to do if he manages it right is to choose only the girls from the best old American stock and eliminate all these pushers and snobs and social climbers. Isn't that the simplest thing in the world? Of course it is! I'm going to write and tell him so."

To Cook Mushrooms.

In preparing mushrooms, start with firm, light-colored plants. Soak them 5 minutes in cold water to loosen any grit, then scrub them with a stiff brush. They do not have to be peeled. Cut off stems and dice, slice or leave the tops whole. Put them in a double boiler, add a tablespoonful of lemon juice for each two cups of mushrooms and cook until the mushrooms are light brown. The liquid produced in cooking is fine for soups and sauces.

Cotton and Silk Take Spotlight At Style Show

Looking forward to summer the Charlotte Parker fashion show at the Shoreham Hotel last Saturday gave a preview of what to expect come warm weather. Included were play clothes of cotton crash; silk shirtmaker dresses with leather accents; twin print chiffon suits with reefer coats; soft pastels with striking dark accessories; lovely waltz dresses for evening of filmy chiffon, bouffant nets and laces, gay printed and striped crepes.

For immediate wear, reefer suit of raspberry wool with navy blue accessories received a lot of favorable comment. A navy sheer made on simple lines, accented with bright red stitching and topped by a navy straw hat trimmed with about a dozen red peppers, was another model in this group. In one and two-piece print frocks, the conservative navy and white vied with gay tri-colored affairs with such effective combinations as red, green, bright blue and black.

Evening clothes have just about reached the epitome of loveliness and charm this spring as evidenced in this showing of dinner and dancing gowns. Stressing romance and femininity was an ensemble of cloud-blue chiffon trimmed with purple; the finger-tip length blue cape flaunting a monk's hood and ties of the purple chiffon. A delightfully swishy evening gown of net was fashioned of several dark and light colors—making for individuality and chic. Another distinctive gown, of chartreuse crepe, was entirely pleated and tucked; made with the new long waistline, short sleeves and square decolletage.

Your Figure Madame!

Rat Without Vitamin G Only a Shadow of Well-Fed Brother.

By Ida Jean Kain.

THIS LITTLE WHITE rat had vitamin G . . . but that little white rat had none! And you should see the difference. The one that had plenty of vitamin G attained better than average growth, had a rich, glossy coat, and was really handsome. The other fellow weighed only one-forth as much, appeared weak and depressed, had a very poor posture and lost his hair in big patches.

Personally, you may not care for little white rats, but the nutritionists regard them as the real benefactors of humanity. Since their life is 30 times as rapid as man's, it is possible to study in a comparatively short time the effect of certain foods or the lack of those foods on several generations. The insidious thing about malnutrition in children is that the ill effects are not discovered until too late.

Laboratory nutrition furnishes a control diet for the rest of the world. The discoveries about vitamin G show it to be a necessary factor in growth and in adequate nutrition at all ages. On a diet low in vitamin G the results are a susceptibility to skin infection, increased nervousness and premature old age.

Extra Vitamin, Extra Vigor.

In a group of experiments conducted at Columbia University the object was to determine the properties of vitamin G in food which gave the best results. The rats, which were already being fed adequately, were given extra amounts of vitamin G and the effect of the diet was observed carefully. On three times the amount of vitamin G as had been contained in their normal healthy diet the animals showed increased vitality and more vigorous health. The experiments were then continued with the next generation, which was given up to ten times the normal amount of vitamin A and which continued to show increasing benefits to health.

In a report before the American Chemical Society, Dr. Henry C. Sherman, of Columbia University, said: "Thus it is found that differences in the relative proportions in which we choose our everyday staple foods may make sufficient difference in the body's internal environment to influence measurably one's well being, especially when such differences are continued throughout a lifetime."

Vitamin G, being one of the lesser known vitamins, needs a little publicity. Scientifically it is known as riboflavin and also as vitamin B2. The sources of this vitamin are eggs, lean meats, milk, fruits and vegetables. Liver is richer in the vitamin than the muscle meats and eggs are richer than most meats. Milk, according to Dr. Sherman, is the most important source in that it supplies so many other essential dietary factors.

Extensive research indicates that it is possible to get too many vitamins in concentrated form. Nutritionists urge us to think of vitamins as food rather than as medicine—and it is not possible to get too many protective foods.

Milk is the most important source of Vitamin G.

FEMININE HYGIENE Made Easy

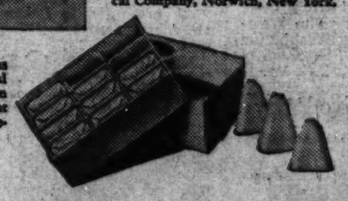
Every day, more and more women are adopting Norforms for Feminine Hygiene, because:

1. Norforms are so easy to use. They require no awkward apparatus for application. They come in a convenient package of twelve.
2. They contain Parahydrecin—a powerful and positive antiseptic developed by Norwich, makers of Unguentine. No danger of an overdose or "burn" with Norforms.
3. They leave no embarrassing antiseptic odor about room or person. In fact, they are deodorizing, and many women use them for this purpose alone.
4. They remain in effective, antiseptic contact for hours.
5. Norforms can be used regularly. They are soothing and beneficial as well as antiseptic.

MILLIONS USED EVERY YEAR—Buy a box of Norforms at your druggist's today. 12 in a package, complete with leaflet of instructions. The Norwich Pharmacal Company, Norwich, New York.



NORFORMS-ACTION EXPLAINED—Norforms are easy-to-use antiseptic suppositories that melt at internal body temperature and spread a protective, soothing film over delicate internal membranes—an antiseptic film that remains in effective contact for many hours. They are deodorizing as well as antiseptic and soothing.

Many Functions Given For Mrs. Elena Scaith

Popular Guest of Mrs. Doak Will Visit Williamsburg Today and Plans to Prolong Her Stay in Washington Until Easter.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

Arriving in Washington recently for a brief visit with Mrs. William N. Doak, widow of the Secretary of Labor in the Hoover Administration, Mrs. Elena Murdock Scaith, of Ottawa, Canada, is being widely feted. In fact, parties for her have piled up so rapidly, she has decided to extend her stay until after Easter, and probably longer.

This bit of information was gleaned in table talk at a small luncheon given for her yesterday by Mrs. Doak at the Willard Hotel. One of the most attractive visitors in the Capital's current crop of out-of-towners, Mrs. Scaith wore a cornflower blue velvet suit that matched her feather turban and contrasted nicely with her brown hair. Mrs. Doak had on a navy blue suit, made with a cape, trimmed in black and piped at the neck in white. A dark blue breton sailor and a silver fox neckpiece completed her ensemble.

HOPE R. MILLER.

Since several guests at the luncheon were members of the press, Mrs. Scaith was subjected to a siege of questioning before the party was over. However, she declined to talk about herself; and any in information about her had to come from other sources.

An interesting young woman on many accounts, she has been a prominent member of Ottawa society for several years. During one of the visits of the former Prince of Wales to Canada, she was selected to dance with him first, and a friendship stemming from that time has continued. In recent years, Mrs. Scaith has taken an active part in Little Theater activities in Ottawa and has done some radio broadcasting. A few seasons ago, she came to Washington for an extended visit, was widely entertained, and made an extensive circle of friends during her stay.

Mrs. Scaith will accompany friends to Williamsburg, Va., today, returning to Mrs. Doak's home this evening. Small luncheons, dinners and teas will fill her calendar the remainder of the week. Tomorrow she will visit Capitol Hill and have luncheon with Mrs. James J. Davis in the Senate dining room. On Saturday she will go to Monticello for a few hours' visit and on Sunday evening she will be guest of honor at a supper party to be given by Mrs. Doak at the latter's home, Notre Nid, in nearby Virginia.

HERE AND THERE: The Netherlands Legation is to have an addition to its staff. Capt. J. E. Meyer Ranneft, recently appointed naval attache, is scheduled to arrive in Washington next week . . . Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beck, who are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Henning, have been attending a round of parties since they came to the Capital on Saturday. Mr. Beck, who is connected with the Chicago Tribune, attended the Gridiron Club dinner Saturday night. Last night they were guests at a small dinner given at the Mayflower by Mrs. Louis Caldwell, who took her party on to the National Theater. Yesterday the Becks were luncheon guests of Mrs. Merle Thorpe and on Sunday evening they were guests of honor at a supper party given by the Hennings . . . Two young ladies who are sure to be popular additions to Washington society will be busy the next few weeks learning to speak English. They are the nieces of the Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga, who brought them with him when he returned yesterday from Miami. Senorita Anna Maria Carabia, the elder, is 19; her sister, Esterh Carabia, is 18 . . . Both are exceptionally pretty.

THE WILMINGTON Horse Show, sporting event of the duPont Domain, is sure to attract a large contingent of Washington society when it takes place May 19, 20 and 21. The show will be held at Meadows on the Brandywine, near Wilmington, the home of Miss Deborah G. Rood, secretary of the show.

More than likely young Franklin Roosevelt, jr., and his wife, the former Ethel duPont will be on hand. They've been "hunting" with the horsey set near Charlottesville this past season, and are more than apt to be interested in similar events up in Delaware.

Phyllis Gallatin To Be Married

Of interest to society in Washington and Virginia is the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gallatin, of New York, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Phyllis Almy Gallatin, to William Appleton Aiken, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Laurence Aiken, of that city.

Miss Gallatin was graduated from the Foxcroft School in Middleburg, Va., and later studied for a year in Florence, Italy. On the paternal side she is a descendant of Albert Gallatin, who was Secretary of Treasury under Madison and Jefferson, and of Elbridge Gerry, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. She is a sister of Mrs. Clement B. P. Cobb, the former Miss Margaret Hoffman Gallatin, and of Albert Frederic Gallatin and James Peter Gallatin.

On both sides Miss Gallatin's fiance is of New England ancestry, being descended from the Edwards, Hopkins and Appleton families. His great-great-grandfather, Jesse Appleton, was president of Bowdoin College, and his great-grandfather, William A. Buckingham, was Governor of Connecticut during the Civil War and later Senator from that State.

The wedding will take place early in June.

Mrs. George Barnett Plans Luncheon for Mrs. Irving Chase

Mrs. George Barnett will entertain at a luncheon next week—she has not yet announced the date—in honor of Mrs. Irving Hall Chase, who is arriving on Saturday for a stay with Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark Bristol.

Mrs. Chase is en route from Palm Beach to her home in Waterbury, Conn. Mrs. Barnett spent several days with her at the Florida resort last month. Mrs. Chase will be here until Thursday, April 21.

Helen Rinde To Be Married

Miss Jean Knox Davidson announces the engagement of her niece, Miss Helen Louise Rinde, of 2311 Connecticut avenue, to Dr. Hugh Alexander McAllister, of Lumberton, N. C., and this city, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. McAllister of Lumberton. The marriage will take place this month.

Miss Rinde attended the Farrank Sherman School in McLean, Va., Strayer's Business College, and the Graduate School of Nurses at Emergency Hospital.

Dr. McAllister attended Davidson College, the University of North Carolnia, and Duke University. He is now on the staff of Emergency Hospital.

Mrs. Dougherty to Go North to Start Garden

So that she may get her spring planting done before the season is too far advanced, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty will leave Washington April 21 for her summer home, Little Cedars, in Westport, Conn.

Mrs. Dougherty's specialties are roses and lilies. She has several rock gardens and a vegetable garden.

After a brief visit in New York, Mrs. Dougherty will go to Westport, returning to Washington after her planting. She recently returned from Hot Springs, Va.

Mr. Hewes to Give Party For Louisiana Guests

Clarence Hewes has issued cards for a cocktail party April 22, from 5 to 7 p. m., at his residence, 2358 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Guests of honor at the affair will be Mrs. Harry McCall and Miss Dorothy Spencer, of New Orleans, who will arrive April 21 to visit Mr. Hewes. He will entertain at a dinner for them the evening of their arrival.

Washington's Her Assignment Now

More Patronize Brown Lecture

Additional patronesses for the lecture, "Broadway in Review," which John Mason Brown, dramatic critic of the New York Evening Post, will give next Saturday afternoon at the Mayflower at 4 o'clock, include Lady Lindsay, Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, Mrs. Stanley F. Reed, Mrs. Cordell Hull, Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark, Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge, Mrs. Bruce Barton, Mrs. Sumner Welles, Mrs. J. Pierrepont Moffat, Mrs. Daniel Devore, Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose and Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean.

Sponsored by the Washington Committee of the Frontier Nursing Service, of Kentucky, of which Mrs. D. Lawrence Groner is chairman, proceeds will go toward financing this voluntary organization for rural work.

There's a decided Kentucky flavor about the forthcoming lecture. John Mason Brown is a son of Kentucky; Mrs. Robert J. Bulkley, wife of the Ohio Senator, is a Kentuckian by birth and very active in work of the Washington group and has charge of posters for the lecture. Mrs. Henry M. Waite, chairman of patronesses, an aunt of Mr. Brown, comes from Kentucky also.

Tea and cocktails will be served in the Chinese Room at the Mayflower following the lecture.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

THE SCHLATTER name has cropped up in print so often these past few weeks that the retiring attache of the Swiss Legation and his wife have started keeping a scrapbook of newspaper clippings. Several volumes must be bulging by now, for hardly a day has passed without a party of some sort in their honor.

DUDLEY HARMON.

Even Holy Week fails to slow up the deluge. Yesterday afternoon the Swiss Minister and Mme. Peter entertained at a very pleasant tea in honor of the Schlatters, who will sail on Saturday for a vacation in Switzerland before going to Brussels, their new post.

• • • •

IT WAS only a little over two years ago that the Peters gave a huge tea in honor of Mme. Schlatter, who was then Senorita Zoe Patterson and about to be married to M. Schlatter. The legation on Kalorama road is an excellent setting for a party, with its drawing room walls decorated with oil paintings and water colors by well-known Swiss painters. One small sitting room, which the minister calls his Swiss room, is entirely furnished with things made in his country; handsome chairs of fine wood, cabinets containing beautiful china, pottery and glassware, as well as pictures painted by Swiss artists. The minister also has a notable collection of books.

Mme. Peter received her guests in the drawing room, wearing a long frock of beige lace and the earrings she seldom is without.

• • • •

AMONG THE GUESTS were M. and Mme. Lucet, Mme. Champsaur and Capt. Benech, all of the French Embassy (Capt. Benech told us that his wife is laid up for six weeks, the result of an automobile accident); Senorita Olga Patterson, who will accompany her brother-in-law and sister to Europe; the Latvian Minister, Dr. Alfred Bilmanis, Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, who poured tea; Miss Vera Bloom, Mrs. Marshall Exnicios, Mme. Freer, wife of the Counselor of the Swiss Legation, who assisted during the afternoon; Mrs. William Barrett Ridgeley, Mr. and Mrs. William Chapin Huntington, Frau Blankenhorn, in a new spring outfit, and Dr. Hans Thomsen, Counselor of the German Embassy.

On Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Merton English, jr., entertained at a buffet supper at their Maryland home in honor of the Schlatters. Mrs. English is the daughter of Mrs. Millard West.

• • • •

WEDNESDAY EVENING, May 18, has been selected by Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., as the date of her stunt party, for which invitations will be issued shortly. Some of those who will write and act are Arthur Krock and Turner Catledge, Miss Margot Garrett, Miss Phyllis Thompson, Mrs. Granger Blair, Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt, aunt of Mrs. Robert; O. Max Gardner, former Governor of North Caroling; Miss Margaret Frazier, Carroll Downes, William McAvoy and William Briggs.

Although the actors and writers are amateurs, at least they will not be accused of one amateur failing, namely, long-windedness, for their skits are being limited to ten minutes. After the acts are presented in the playhouse of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Walker, everyone will adjourn to the main residence for champagne.

Ann Carroll Meem's Betrothal to E. B. McLean, Jr., Breaks Up Sister Act, Joins 2 Famous Families

Acquaintance Began When Two Made Mud-Pies Together at Friendship.

Washington's most famous sister act is about to be broken up, but two of its most prominent families will be united. Miss Ann Carroll Meem, first of the season's debutes to announce her engagement, will marry Edward Beale McLean, jr., son of Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean.

Announcement of the engagement yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grant Meem, whose other daughter is Miss Eleanor Eastbourne Meem. The two girls, although not twins, look alike (both are blonde and pretty); dress alike, and were presented to society together at a tea, November 24, at which a thousand were present.

The Meems are real cave dwellers, having settled in Georgetown when it was mostly landscape. Mr. Meem is president of the Washington Loan & Trust Co. The prospective bride went to Sacred Heart Convent and polished off her Education at Georgetown Convent. Last winter shortly after their Washington debut, she and her sister were presented to Baltimore society at the first cotillion of the season.

Mr. McLean attended St. Paul's School, in Concord, N. H. His late grandfather on the paternal side was John R. McLean, during his lifetime publisher of The Washington Post and Cincinnati Enquirer. His maternal grandfather was the late Thomas Walsh, Irish miner who "struck it rich" in Colorado and later came to Washington with Mrs. Walsh.

Father of the prospective bridegroom is Edward Beale McLean. Mrs. McLean, his mother, was for many years Washington's most lavish party giver, and she and her husband were close friends of the late President Harding, who used frequently to play golf on their estate, Friendship, on Wisconsin avenue. Mrs. McLean also owns the Walsh mansion on Massachusetts avenue, the house which her parents built, and which is now rented to the Government, and another mansion on I street, also now occupied by a New Deal agency. She also owns homes in Newport and Bar Harbor. Mrs. McLean is most often identified with the Hope diamond which always hangs about her throat on a platinum chain.

Bachrach Photo.

MISS ANN CARROLL MEEM.

Several years ago Mrs. McLean published her biography, "Father Struck It Rich," in which she told of her father's rise to wealth from humble beginnings and her own adventures among the rich in Washington, Newport and Paris. She now conducts a newspaper column.

The Meem-McLean acquaintanceship had its beginning when the two used to make mud pies together at Friendship. The Misses Meem only recently returned from a lengthy stay in Palm Beach with Mrs. McLean, and the future bridegroom joined them there from Colorado, where he has been recuperating from a serious illness.

After their marriage the couple will live in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Reinecks, Lewises, Leaving D.C. Soon, Honored at Dinner

Walter S. Reineck, United States Consul who recently arrived from his post in Santo Domingo, and Mrs. Reineck shared honors with Mr. and Mrs. A. Denny Lewis at a dinner party given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas in the blue room at the Shoreham Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Reineck will leave Friday for the former's new station at Vancouver, B. C. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis will leave Monday for Europe.

Others in last evening's party were the Counselor of the Cuban Embassy, Dr. Vicente Valdez Rodriguez; the Commercial Attache of the Chilean Embassy and Senora de Campbell, Mrs. Elvina Orlioz-Dreszer, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Herbert, Dr. and Mrs. E. Flavelle Koss, Mrs. Neitah King and John Chappelear.

Blacks Give Dinner.

Justice and Mrs. Hugo Black entertained at dinner last evening in honor of Dr. J. Harold Laski, of the London School of Economics. The party took place in the Black home, near Alexandria, Va.

French Envoy Will Be Host For Mr. Bullitt

Senator and Mrs. Lewis Also Honor Ambassador to Paris.

The French Ambassador, Count Rene Doynel de Saint Quentin, will entertain at a luncheon today at the embassy in honor of William Bullett, who is staying at the Anchorage before returning to Paris, where he is United States envoy.

Last evening the popular diplomat was guest of honor at a dinner given by Senator and Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower Hotel.

Ranking guests in the company of 36 were the Argentine Ambassador and Senora de Espil, the Belgian Ambassador and Countess van der Straten Ponthoz, the Polish Ambassador, Count Jeryz Potocki, the French Ambassador, Count deSaint Quentin, and Justice and Mrs. Stanley Reed.

Frau Scholz Back From Miami and New Orleans Visit

Frau Herbert Scholz, wife of the First Secretary of the German Embassy, returned last evening to her residence on Cleveland avenue after a stay in Miami and New Orleans. Dr. Scholz will remain several weeks longer in the Louisiana city, where he is substituting for the German Consul General who was injured in a motor accident.

Frau Scholz will be joined shortly by her mother, Frau von Schnitzler, who is arriving in this country from Germany before going to Mexico.

Mrs. Bristol Entertains.

Mrs. Mark Bristol entertained at a small informal tea yesterday afternoon in honor of her house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Ballard Moore, of Chicago, who recently arrived in Washington.

Troyanovskys Honor Wilkins For Search for Soviet Fliers

Wallaces and Leahys Ranking Guests at Soviet Embassy Dinner Lauding 20,000-Mile Air Survey of Polar Ice Waste.

The Ambassador of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and Mme. Troyanovsky entertained at a large dinner last evening at the embassy in honor of Sir Hubert and Lady Wilkins.

Sir Hubert recently returned from the Arctic after spending more than seven months in a courageous though fruitless search by airplane for traces of the Soviet flier, Sigismund Levanevsky, and his five companions, whose radio signals faded out last August after they had passed the North Pole in an effort to fly from Moscow to Alaska in a four-motor plane.

In their search Sir Hubert and his crew flew almost 20,000 miles over the Arctic ice pack, going to within 150 miles of the Pole. From the Soviet side of the Pole the airplane search for Levanevsky continues, various Soviet fliers having crossed the Pole three times in the course of long observation flights.

At the dinner last night Ambassador Troyanovsky expressed the gratitude of his government for Sir Hubert's efforts and for those of Air Commodore Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, pilot of his expeditions, and to Dr. Vilhjalmur Stefansson, who co-operated in arranging the flights.

Ranking guests at the dinner were the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace and the Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. William D. Leahy.

Others present were the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. George Messersmith, the Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. J. Monroe Johnson, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Oscar Westover, the Chief of the Weather Bureau, and Mrs. Willis Gregg, the Chief of the Division of European Affairs of the State Department and Mrs. J. Pierrepont Moffat, Col. and Mrs. Dawson Oldstead, the Chief of the Office of Arms and Munitions Control of the State Department and Mrs. Joseph Green, the Assistant Chief of the Division of European Affairs of the State Department and Mrs. Orsen N. Neilsen, the Third Secretary of the Canadian Legation and Mrs. Ronald MacDonnell, and Charles Ritchie, also Third Secretary of the Legation.

Others present were George Kennan, Mrs. Edward Stafford, daughter of Admiral Peary; Mrs. Robert J. Archibald, David Rosoff, chairman of Amtorg Trading Corporation, and Michael Beliakov, Soviet meteorologist.

Members of the Embassy staff at the dinner were the Counselor and Mrs. Constantine A. Oumansky, the Assistant Military Attache and Mrs. Ivan L. Okunev, the Assistant Naval Attache and Mrs. Nikolai Bolotnikov and the Attache and Mrs. Konstantin M. Loukin.

Mrs. R. H. S. Dye Hostess at Te

Mrs. Roland H. S. Dyer will entertain at a tea this afternoon in her apartment at Alban Towers in honor of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ben Dyer, of University Park, and Mrs. James Brooks, of San Antonio, Tex.

Assisting the hostess will be Mrs. Jackson Pent, Mrs. Richard Wriggles and Mrs. George Whitney. The party will take place from 4 until 6 p. m.

Among those expected to attend are Mrs. John Adams, Mrs. Percy Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Horton, Mrs. J. E. Jones, Mrs. Hilding Beij, Mrs. James W. Bryan, Mrs. Clifford Beckham, Mrs. John L. Hyde, Mrs. Clifton Moore, Mrs. Lovell Parker, Mrs. Laurence Staples, Mrs. H. T. Vosper, Mrs. W. A. Wheeler, Mrs. Howard Wentworth and Mrs. George Spencer.

Resolution Also Urges Reorganization of Government Here.

Mrs. Eugene Callaghan Explains Objections to a Sales Tax.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Legislation "making it legal for Congress to grant National representation to the District of Columbia and open the way for reorganization of the District Government as proposed in the Randolph Lewis Bill" was endorsed yesterday in a resolution passed unanimously by the Washington Branch of the American Association of University Women. The resolution was proposed by Mrs. Edwin L. Chapin, chairman of the Legislation Committee, following a comprehensive study of bills on representation for the District, made by her group.

The club also passed a resolution proposed by the committee, in support of "a graduated District of Columbia income tax, making use of definitive rulings already set up in Federal income tax regulations and opposing raising any District revenue by a sales tax." There was opposition expressed to this resolution and a standing vote on it was called for by Mrs. Richard Hogue, president of the club, who presided at the meeting.

Mrs. Chapin, in her discussion of national representation pointed out that the Randolph-Lewis bill was permissive legislation which would enable Congress to provide suffrage for the District but did not stipulate what kind nor set up a structure for it.

Mrs. Eugene Callaghan, discussing the tax legislation, said the legislative committee objected to the sales tax because it "hacks away at the purchasing power of our citizens." She has recently come to the Capital from California, and said that there 25 per cent of the sales tax is paid by persons with incomes of $2,500 or less. A graduated income tax, based on ability to pay, is sociologically sound, she said, and would gradually erase the intangible tax, dependent on the honesty of citizens.

Action on the legislation was taken at the regular monthly business meeting of the club at which there were also changes voted in the by-laws of the organization.

Club members were interested in the announcement that Miss Amy Veerhoff, corresponding secretary of the local A. A. U. W. and also an active member of the Civic Theater, had arranged for a benefit performance of "Third of a Nation," a housing play, proceeds of which will go to the fellowship fund of the Washington branch. It will be presented May 19.

The Players Group of the club last night gave an entertaining melodrama of the Gay nineties, "He Ain't Done Right by Nell." Miss Ruby D. Streeter directed the production, which was presented in the lounge and divided into three acts, although originally written for but one.

Miss Alice McFarland had the role of Little Nell, a sweet and innocent country girl; Miss Eleanor Williams was the noble hero; Miss Harriet Pollard, the villain, a tall, dark and handsome city man; Miss May Kenney took the part of the grandmother; Miss Grace Sargent, that of the old maid; Miss Fannie Boyls, that of Mr. Burkett, and Miss Gladys Conry, that of his daughter, Vera, a pampered city girl.

Peace, Freedom League Luncheon Is Tomorrow

Many reservations have been made for the luncheon of the local branch of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom which will be addressed by Miss Dorothy Detzer, executive secretary of the league, tomorrow. The affair will be at Wesley Hall at 12:30. Guests of honor will include Mrs. Ralph O. Brenski, Mrs. Milton King, Dr. J. W. Studebaker, Robert Lincoln O'Brien, Beverly Coleman, Mrs. Avery Coonley and Mrs. Bancroft Davis.

Others on the committee are Misses Ruth Warren, Mary Burch and Angela Honan. It is a closed dance and about 200 are expected.

Tennesseeans To Hold Dance

All Tennesseeans residing in Washington, and their guests, have been extended a general invitation to attend the spring dance of the Tennessee Society, at the Willard Hotel, Friday evening, April 22, from 9 until 1.

George Morris, president of the society, estimates that more than 1,500 Tennesseeans live here, and desires to obtain a permanent roll of them. Other officers are Mrs. Howard Savage, vice president; Turley Rankin, treasurer, and Christine Sadler, secretary.

Tickets may be obtained in a number of Government offices, or from Alexander Anderson, ticket chairman. Those planning to attend have been asked to make advance reservations if possible.

Mrs. F. A. Casteel, president of the auxiliary, will preside and Mrs. Paris Brengle, wife of Dr. Brengle and a member of the group, will present a book review.

Mrs. Kennedy To Speak Here

Welfare Leader Invited to Address Veterans' Auxiliary.

Mrs. Mary Anne Kennedy, national vice chairman of the child welfare committee of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, has been invited to address the Women's Auxiliary of the District of Columbia Department, D. A. V., meeting at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at the clubhouse, Eleventh and L streets northwest.

Auxiliary child welfare chairmen have received child welfare manuals from National Chairman Michael Whelan, of Detroit, and have been instructed to familiarize themselves with the provisions of the social security act pertaining to the care of dependent children.

Artists from the N. B. C. studios will volunteer their services for a program to be presented in the near future at Mount Alto Hospital under auspices of the auxiliary. The program will be directed by Mrs. Francis Sparkman.

Mrs. Mary Holt, commander, will preside over Wednesday's meeting. Of interest will be reports on the membership drive, which is nearing completion with the department quota almost filled. Team captains are Mrs. Holt, Mrs. Marie Anderson and Mrs. Theodore Lindstrom.

In anticipation of winning its objective, the auxiliary is planning to participate in the "victory dinner, to be held at the Fuhrman Studio, Twenty-first street and Massachusetts avenue northwest, on April 29, under auspices of the local department of the D. A. V., which has exceeded its quota of 1,000 members and leads all units in the country in percentage of membership gains.

Guests of honor at the dinner will be the national commander of the D. A. V., Maj. Maple T. Harl, and national commander of the Women's Auxiliary, Mrs. Dolly Secord, both of Denver, Colo.

Rep. T. F. Ford Scouts Fears Of Dictatorship

Women's Democratic Club Hears Ardent Defense of the President.

Possibility of a dictatorship, fear of which was indicated all over the country by telegrams sent in opposition to the Government reorganization plan, was scouted yesterday by Representative Thomas F. Ford, of California, in an address before the Woman's National Democratic Club at its Monday luncheon. "The President has exercised the authority which has been given him with wisdom and for the good of the American people," declared Representative Ford who is among the Democrats who fought for the Administration measure.

He asserted it was his personal opinion that "big business doesn't like President Roosevelt and it is willing to stand the gaff and take the loss in order to discredit him to the people. It is now trying to beat him by bluffing the Congress of the United States on the eve of election."

"If business doesn't perform, the Government will have to, to the tune of four or five billion for WPA.," he added.

Defends Purpose Of Tax Measure

Discussing tax legislation, Mr. Ford affirmed his belief that "Congress not only has the right, but the duty of using every power it possesses to stabilize the distribution of the wealth of this country. A tax bill of this kind was the exercise of justified legislative rights," he said. "The present Senate bill is based on the contrary philosophy that we should collect taxes only for the operation of Government—and we cannot collect enough that way," he declared.

Pointing out that objection to the creation of a welfare department under the proposed reorganization was based on the assumption Harry Hopkins would be put in charge, Mr. Ford paid high tribute to the director of the Works Progress Administration. "If any man ever carried out honestly and effectively an arduous and difficult task, it has been Harry Hopkins," he asserted, adding that the position in which Mr. Hopkins serves is next to that of the Presidency in the responsibility it involves and criticism it invokes.

Representative Ford, who was introduced by Mrs. John A. Martin, had as his subject "What Congress Is Doing." At present, Congress is chiefly getting into the headlines, he said—something it can always do by opposing the Administration.

"Whatever we do, the newspapers criticize us," said Mr. Ford, himself a former newspaper man. "Personally I don't pay any attention to what the newspapers say. If ever a bunch of pirates were repudiated it was in the campaign of 1936."

He pointed out the passage of the farm bill as one of the accomplishments of Congress and discussed the AAA, the SEC, FHA, PWA and WPA and their significance in helping to solve the country's problems. More than $13,000,000 worth of loans have been applied for in California for the building of homes since the passage of the Federal housing bill, he said.

Among those at the luncheon were Mrs. Wilbur W. Hubbard, president of the club; Mrs. Ford, Mrs. Paul Delaney and Mrs. John Graham, all of whom were seated at the head table.

"HEADLIGHTS" on the coming D. A. R. Congress:

What would the forefathers who "fit" the Revolution have thought, could they have known that the president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution would wear at the Forty-seventh Continental Congress, the gown in which she was presented at the Court of St. James's? —Well, they aren't here to say, and so far as the Daughters are concerned, the Revolution's all over. They all are anxious to see the gown, which is of a delicate talisman rose shade and vastly becoming to their handsome chief executive, Mrs. William A. Becker.

Sir Ronald Lindsay, Ambassador of Great Britain, will be one of the guests of honor at the opening of the congress, as he was last year.

D. A. R.'s are arriving every day and establishing themselves in their hotels, preparatory to the big week ahead. One of the 49 good citizenship pilgrims coming Friday will be Lila Elliott, from the little mountain town of Mosca, Colo., a scholarship student and winner from among a large number of Colorado girls. Until she went to Colorado Springs last month to play with her team in a basketball tournament, Lila had never ridden on a streetcar nor seen a high building—so the trip to Washington will be like a Cinderella adventure to her.

FROM Anderson, Ind., will come a glee club to sing for the D. A. R.'s on Wednesday. The townspeople were so proud of the organization, they helped it raise $4,000 to finance the trip.

THE DELEGATION from the Sunflower State will come bringing girls this year, headed by their State regent, Mrs. Loren Edgar Rex, of Wichita. The Kansans will present to Memorial Continental Hall a portable electric organ in honor of Mrs. George Thatcher Guernsey, past president general. Miss Marion Seelye, of Abilene, State regent-elect, will be among the Kansas delegates.

• • • •

THE FIRST junior assembly in connection with a D. A. R. Congress will be conducted this year in Memorial Continental Hall. Mrs. William H. Pouch will be in charge. The juniors were organized three years ago to bridge the gap between C. A. R. to which the children belong and the D. A. R. in which most of their mothers are active. The membership is now 3,000 in 220 groups, several of which are affiliated with Washington chapters.

• • • •

THE OFFICERS of Samla Temple, Daughters of the Nile, will be installed at a public ceremony Monday at 8 p. m in Almas Temple, 1315 K street, with dancing following.

MRS. JESSIE BLECH FEGLEY, of the San Francisco Branch League of American Pen Women, was guest of honor yesterday at a luncheon at the Willard given by the local Pen Women and national board of the league. Attending were Mrs. Phyllis Fergus Hoytt, national president; Mrs. Marguerite Merigold, president of the District of Columbia Branch; Miss Mabel Louise White, past national president; Mrs. C. L. Chambers, Mrs. Theodora Cunningham, Mrs. Agnes Giles Newman, president of the Soroptomist Club; Mrs. Lewis Bartlett, Mrs. Inez Sheldon Tyler, Mrs. Edna Gasch, Mrs. Joe Pittle, Miss Louise Worden, Mrs. Dawson Olmstead and Mrs. Marian N. Taft.

• • • •

MISS GERTRUDE H. BOWLING, director of visiting nurses, and the 12 nurses of Brightwood Branch of the Instructive Visiting Nurses Association, were entertained yesterday at a luncheon by the Visiting Nurses Group of the ePetworth Woman's Club. The affair was arranged at the Brightwood headquarters on Georgia avenue.

Mrs. Sue Richwine, club chairman, was in charge. The Petworth women meet each month to assist the nurses in making their dressings and yesterday carried on this work after the party.

Betrothal Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard L. Rothstein, of New York, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Sara Hinda Rothstein, to Jacob Wallman Abel, of Washington. He is the son of Mrs. Milton S. Abel and the late Mr. Abel.

House Rejects Income Levy In District Bill

District

Palmisano Votes "Yes."

Chairman Palmisano of the full committee was on record as voting for the Smith motion, although he had argued against it. Representatives Schulte and Jenckes (Democrats), of Indiana, voted with the majority and against their colleagues.

Rumors in the corridors were that the defeat of the income tax, which specifically exempted members of Congress and their secretaries, was attributable to two major factors:

Members were afraid to go on record as voting for a bill that imposed a tax on the salaries of Federal employes but not their own.

High-salaried Government employes who have come here from the States called on their members to vote against the tax on the promise of support in the coming election.

Dirksen Makes Reply.

Smith made frequent references to the first point and repeatedly challenged members of the District sub-committee to justify the exemption of members.

The most telling answer came from Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, sponsor of the tax, who reminded the House that Smith had been one of the leaders of last year's House revolt against an income tax that would have fallen on members of Congress.

"The House Rules Committee, of which the gentleman is a member, pinned our ears back once," he said, "and we're not foolish enough to come back to the House with the same proposition."

As emasculated by the House, the District tax bill contains only two revenue sources along with a variety of other amendments to District tax laws.

The bill stipulates that the realty and personal property tax shall not be lower than $1.75 during the next fiscal year. This 25-cent increase above the normal $1.50 tax will produce an estimated $3,000,000.

A levy on beer of 50 cents a barrel is the only other revenue provision. It would raise an estimated $200,000.

The income tax carried in the bill would have raised an additional net of $2,000,000 after allowing a credit of some $3,000,000 for payment of intangible personal property taxes.

Actually, the District may get along on less than the $2,000,000 because the sub-committee in drafting the bill purposely overshot the mark of a $4,500,000 deficit, on the ground that a deficiency appropriation for unemployment relief may be forthcoming next January.

Some of the legislative provisions in the bill approved by the House without objection are:

Creation of a new board of tax appeals, which incidently was set up chiefly to handle income tax cases.

60-40 Law Repealed.

Repeal of the inoperative 60-40 law under which the Federal Government is pledged to pay 40 per cent of the District's maintenance costs.

A change in the beginning of the motor vehicle license year from January 1 to March 1 and a revision of the tax scale on motor trailers.

Minor amendments to the personal property and inheritance tax laws.

A provision designed to forestall another attempt by the budget bureau or an appropriations committee to transfer city street lighting costs from the general revenue to the highway fund.

Representative Cole (Republican), of New York, sounded the keynote of the District sub-committee's plea for the income tax when he warned the House that "we'll be back every year here with a new District tax bill unless Congress adopts some permanent tax program."

Both Dirksen and Cole argued against suggested increases in the realty tax rate as a solution to the revenue problem by pointing out that real estate now bears 70 per cent of the financial load of the District regardless of how the rate may compare with that of debt-ridden States.

State Taxes Cited.

Most of the debate, however, centered around the provisions of the income tax which would have applied to the salaries of nonresidents who work in the District.

Answering protests from Smith and Lewis, Nichols and other members of the sub-committee pointed out that every State which has an income tax, levies it against the income of nonresidents earned within their jurisdiction.

Nichols made an impassioned defense of the application of the income tax to Federal employes and stated:

"I want everyone of my boys here on the Government payroll to pay his fair share of District taxes."

In defense of the provision exempting members of Congress, he said:

"We would have to come to Washington even if there weren't a policeman or a fire plug in the city. We come here because we are sent to represent our districts, not to take more or less permanent jobs like Government workers."

Representative Bacon (Republican), of New York, at one point suggested that if the House intended to make the District "pay its own way" by taxation it should grant it suffrage and the right to elect its own officials and spend its own money.

Capt. Smith to Present Safety Driving Cards

Safety driving cards will be presented to a number of Railway Express Agency employes by Capt. Milton D. Smith of the Metropolitan Police today at 8 p. m. at a business conference to be held in the Union Station Building.

Guest speaker at the conference will be K. N. Merritt, of New York, general sales manager of Railway Express, Inc.

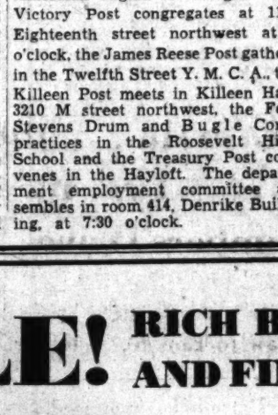
How Duplicates Are Won. Hand No. 2.

Yesterday I described the first of four hands I saw played in a recent duplicate game. It will be recalled that the team I was "kibitzing" had very bad luck on that hand. The result of the second hand, described below, was not due to bad luck but to the miserable defense of the East player.

West, dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

Match-point duplicate.



The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 N T	3 ♠
Pass	4 ♠	Pass	Pass
Dbl.	Pass	Pass	Pass

In this deal "my pair" was sitting East-West, the expert in the West position. At the start of the evening's play West had informed East that in duplicate games his practice was to shade slightly the requirements for opening notrump bids. Obviously he could not be so indelicate as to point out that he was adopting this policy in order to become declarer on many hands that otherwise might be mangled by East. But after this hand he bitterly regretted his announcement, because it became apparent that East had adopted the same policy for himself. East's notrump was not only shaded as to honor tricks but slightly "off pattern" as well. However, it was not East's opening bid that led to grief—it was his horrible defensive play. West, deciding that his own minor honors in conjunction with any reasonable type of notrump on East's part should account for a one-trick defeat, made a close but shrewd double. Unfortunately, he did not reckon that a trick would be thrown away by the defenders in the play.

Faced with a blind opening lead, West selected the heart queen. Dummy's king covered, East won and, after much brow-puckering, made the nonsensical return of a heart. West ground his teeth slightly as he won with the jack, and hastily shifted to a low diamond. His disgust, however, was well founded — the shift was too late. East won with the ace and returned a diamond, but declarer climbed right up with the king, entered dummy with the club ace and discarded the jack of diamonds on the established heart ten. The spade finesse was then successfully negotiated and the doubled contract was claimed.

East's return of the heart was almost too bad to be worthy of a writeup. But considering the number of times players blindly return their partner's lead without rhyme or reason, and against all logic, I feel that any amount of repetition on this subject is justified. East could clearly see dummy's heart ten waiting for establishment. He should have jumped at the chance to lead either a low diamond from the ace, or to lay down the ace and follow with a low one. Obviously this marked defense would have defeated the contract one trick and meant the difference between an excellent and a bottom score.

Yellow Fever Peril Studied At D.C. Parley

Urge 20,000 Doses of Vaccine Be Ready at Miami.

"Increased menace" of introduction of the scourge of yellow fever into the U. S. was emphasized in discussion of a recently discovered method of immunization from the disease by vaccination at a session of the conference of State and Territorial health officers yesterday. The vaccine gives "prolonged, possibly permanent, immunity," it was declared.

The vaccine, expected to be of "tremendous help" in elimination of the fever, has been developed in the last year by scientists of the Rockefeller Institute. Unlike other vaccines heretofore in use, it is said to require no antiserum and to produce practically no after effects.

The report, read by Dr. Felix J. Underwood, Mississippi State health officer, confirmed previously published findings that yellow fever is transmitted not ony by the "aedes aegyptae" mosquito, once held solely responsible, but also by several other insects. It established, the report said, that jungle animals, as well as man, are susceptible to the disease, and at least one bird—the pigeon—is infectible.

Cancer Advance Told.

At the same session held at the Public Health Building, Surgeon General Parran told the officers that public health work in America has advanced more rapidly and along "sounder lines" in the last two years than at any other time in the Nation's history.

In a brief symposium on cancer, Dr. J. W. Schereschewsky, of the United States Public Health Service, said he looked for a 25 per cent reduction in America's cancer toll if the proper control measures are taken. He expected, however, certain types of cancer.

Rapid growth of aerial transportation between South America and Miami, Dr. Underwood pointed out, has subjected the Florida city to the "material danger" of yellow fever. To combat the menace, an emergency unit already has been established in Miami and all arriving Pan American planes are subjected to disinfectization before landing. Approximately 100,000 individuals, including nearly every Pan American Airways employe, has been immunized with the new vaccine, the report stated.

The "progressive march" of yellow fever into thickly settled districts of South America has advanced so far, Dr. Underwood declared, that Rio de Janeiro, Asuncion and other cities are threatened. In fact, he said, yellow fever has been discovered less than an hour's travel from the center of the Brazilian capital.

Vaccine Supply Urged.

The conference adopted committee recommendations that the Surgeon General set up a reserve supply of vaccine, sufficient for 20,000 doses, so that the plague could be stamped out as soon as it might appear.

Opening the conference with an address reviewing recent progress in various fields of public health, Dr. Parran said that "a large proportion of our national population is without the means of securing adequate medical care when sickness strikes." He described "traditional measures" for meeting the need for medical care among the poor as "pitifully inadequate."

Dr. Parran urged public health and medical practice groups to formulate a constructive program for medical care. "Medical practice groups have nothing to fear but rather much to gain from participation of public health agencies in the administrative direction of public medical care activities," he said.

"Education" Held Decisive.

Following a brief talk by Dr. Ludvig Hektoen, executive director of the National Advisory Cancer Council, Dr. Schereschewsky urged establishment of divisions of cancer control in each of the State health departments.

Dr. B. W. Simpson, head of the New York State Tumor Institute, said that education of the layman is "the most important factor" in cancer control. He cited "very encouraging statistics" indicating that in the last five years cancer deaths in the 30-60 age group have shown a "marked decline."

A special committee of health officers to promote co-operation between the National Cancer Institute and the States was appointed by Dr. Parran. It includes: Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, of Georgia; Dr. Henry D. Chadwick, of Massachusetts; Dr. D. W. Gudakunst, of Michigan; Dr. Henry F. Baker, of Missouri, and Dr. Edward S. Godfrey, New York.

Syphilis Bill Approved.

The conference between State and Territorial health officers and the United States Public Health Service followed immediately upon the three-day Conference of State and Provincial Health Authorities of North America, which terminated yesterday morning.

At its closing session, the latter conference aproved the La Follette-Bulwinkle syphilis control bill and the American Medical Association's proposed national study of medical needs.

The following officers were elected: Dr. Underwood, president; Dr. J. T. Phair, deputy minister of health, Province of Ontario, vice president; Dr. A. J. Chesley, Minnesota State Health Officer, secretary-treasurer, and Dr. P. H. Bartholomew, of Nebraska; Dr. McCormack and Dr. G. M. Anderson, of Wyoming, executive committee; Dr. W. A. Sawyer, former California State Health Officer, was elected honorary life member.

Pink Tennessee Marble to House Mellon Art Collection

By Edward T. Folliard

Tennessee marble of a soft pinkish hue has been chosen for the exterior of the $10,000,000 National Gallery of Art, which is to house the great $50,000,000 art collection given to the American people by the late Andrew W. Mellon.

The Post also learned yesterday that the A. W. Mellon Educational and Charitable Trust probably will add two more old masters to the famous collection—"The Turk," by Rembrandt, and "Portrait of a Lady," by Van Dyke. The two paintings were acquired by Mr. Mellon in 1934 from the Hermitage Gallery, established by Catherine the Great in St. Petersburg, now Leningrad.

The marble for the National Gallery, now being quarried in Tennessee, becomes a more vivid pink when bathed by rain. Normally, according to experts, it has a softer tone than most marbles, and in the sun is not so glaring as that in the Supreme Court Building. As it ages, the marble will take on a grayish tone.

A sample wall 38 feet high, made up of the Tennesse marble, has been constructed on the site of the art gallery on the north side of the Mall and just beyond the Archives Building. The marble in this alone is worth a small fortune.

It now appears that the gallery will be opened sometime around the Easter of 1940. The occasion, it is expected, will be a memorable one in Washington's history, with art connoisseurs, flocking here from all parts of the country and from abroad to see the American Louvre. Mr. Mellon had specified that the gallery be completed not later than 1941.

The concrete work started two weeks ago and is expected to reach the first floor sometime in September. By that time the marble will be coming in and will be put in place as the steel work progresses.

The addition to the collection of "The Turk" will give the gallery eight Rembrandts, covering the whole period of the Dutch genius' development. Rembrandt was a young man when he painted the turbaned, black-eyed man. In the collection is a self-portrait of Rembrandt a few years before his death, showing the travail he had gone through.

"Portrait of a Lady" will give the collection four Van Dykes. This was executed in 1618. Other examples of the Flemish artist's work in the collection are a full-length portrait of the Marchesa Balbi and portraits of Lord Philip Wharton and William II of Nassau and Orange.

The Rembrandt and the Van Dyke were purchased from the Hermitage Gallery at the same time that Mr. Mellon bought from capitalist-hating Soviet Russia what is regarded as the glory of his great collection—"The Madonna of the House of Alba," by Raphael; "The Adoration of the Magi," by Botticelli; "The Crucifixion, with St. John, the Magdalen and St. Jerome," by Perugino; "The Annunciation," by Van Eyck, who died in 1440, and "Venus with the Mirror," by Titian.

Traffic's Toll 24 as Council Asks Changes

Woman, 75, Dies From Injuries Received March 25.

A 75-year-old woman became Washington's twenty-fourth traffic fatality yesterday as the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Council recommended its complete reorganization with a larger membership and more standing committees.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald decided Mrs. Susan Curran, a widow, who lived at 1306 Kenyon street northwest, died in Gallinger Hospital of injuries suffered when she was knocked down by an automobile March 25 at Fourteenth and Kenyon streets northwest. Mrs. Curran became ill several days after she was taken to Emergency Hospital, treated for bruises and released.

The driver of the car, identified by police as Everett Wood, 1445 Otis place northwest, will appear at an inquest.

130 Members Asked.

Under the reorganization program the council recommended for itself, its membership would be put at not more than "30 active members" as against the present 20.

The members would be "drawn as far as practicable from such groups as the board of education, mass transportation systems, public utilities, taxicab owners and operators, daily newspapers, automobile clubs, commercial and trade organizations: labor unions, parent-teacher associations, automobile dealers, and veterans' organizations."

All members would be appointed by the District Commissioners for a term of three years, and would not be able to send proxies to meetings.

As outlined by a new set of by-laws proposed to the commissioners and submitted for study to Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal, the purpose and duties of the council would be:

Advise Commissioners.

To keep informed in all matters pertaining to the traffic situation in the District.

To make recommendations for the co-ordination of traffic activities.

To advise the District Commissioners on all proposed changes in the traffic acts and the traffic and motor vehicle regulations of the District.

To carry on with advice and approval of the Commissioners, a constructive, educational program in traffic matters.

To recommend to the Commissioners ways and means for improving traffic conditions and the administration and enforcement of traffic laws and regulations with a view of promoting, encouraging and maintaining greater traffic safety.

The following committees would be appointed under the new by-laws; membership, parking, expediting traffic and mass transportation, automatic signs and signals, operating regulations, vehicle inspection and equipment, traffic education, accident survey, planning and highway engineering, enforcement and pedestrian control.

Recreation Bill Is Approved by Social Agencies

Some Changes Suggested; 5 Private Citizens Urged as Board Members.

The King bill creating a recreation board for the District of Columbia was approved yesterday by the recreation committee of Council of Social Agencies, provided certain amendments were adopted. This committee, composed of representatives of public and private recreation agencies and many civic groups, met at the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K streets northwest.

Changes recommended by the committee included an increase of private citizens on the board from one to five; appointment of board members by the justices of the United States District Court rather than by the District Commissioners; making agreements with the board revocable by Government agencies responsible for properties used by the board; application of the merit system to appointment of board staff members, and provision that maintenance should be pooled by agencies under direction of the board.

Donahoe Is Elected

Clarence F. Donahoe was elected president of the Southeast Business Men's Association last night at its monthly meeting. Other officers named were Arthur Shaffer, first vice president; A. W. Lee, second vice president; Dan Reynolds, third vice president; Alex Berlin, treasurer; Louis F. Frick, secretary, and P. C. McGrath, sergeant-at-arms.

The association voted to request removal of the center parkway on Pennsylvania avenue southeast between Second and Eleventh streets. A resolution was adopted suggesting the Thomas Jefferson memorial fund be used to build a stadium on East Capitol street, as suggested by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, to be known as the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Stadium.

The secretary of the association was instructed to write to the District Commissioners urging that work on the new Pennsylvania avenue bridge be started as soon as possible after July 1. The association appropriated $10 for the Metropolitan Police Boys Club.

Income Tax Urged

The Hillcrest Citizens Association last night voted to urge retention of the income tax provision in the District tax bill after hearing an address by a representative of the Citizens Committee on Fair Taxation. The association also indorsed the committee's tax program and determined to affiliate with that organization.

An appropriation of $10 for the Metropolitan Police Boys Club was voted.

Papers Commended

Washington newspapers were commended for withholding juvenile names in crime stories by Capt. Rhode Milliken, of the Police Women's Bureau, last night in addressing the Kalorama Citizens Association. Capt. Milliken also made a plea for adequate facilities for detention of juvenile and women prisoners and for a larger police women's staff.

Police Get Zeta Chi's 'Goat,' Friendless, Far From Flock

Charles Miller, 19, of Red Lion, Pa., treading the pledge's road to Zeta Chi, last night made unscheduled stops at police headquarters and the Central Union Mission after sundry adventures.

A freshman at Ursinus College, Collegeville, Pa., young Miller wandered into headquarters at 10 p. m. and related to hardened sleuths a tale of suffering for dear old Zeta Chi that touched not only their hearts but their pocketbooks. Miller said he was one of several pledges of the fraternity who were smeared with molasses last Thursday, dumped into a straw pile and given notes containing further instructions. After conscientious applications of soap and water, he read his note and learned he was to come to Washington, get the signature of Capt. A. L. Walters of the White House guard and visit several addresses.

He rode here with Representative Harry Haines, of Red Lion, went in college cap, white shoes and lettered sweater to the White House, where he wormed a signature from the incredulous Capt. Walters and set out to pay his calls. All his funds were exhausted before he learned these were fictitious.

That was why Charles Miller wandered into police headquarters last night, seeking aid and comfort. Detective Sergt. Walter Beck heard his story, passed the hat and arranged for the fledgling Zeta Chi to spend the night as fraternally as possible at the mission.

D. C. Relief Study Group Picks Head

Ringgold Hart, District lawyer, yesterday was selected to head the special committee of citizens who will investigate the local relief situation.

It was understood a director of the survey would be named this week. At least ten have applied for the job, and more are expected before the committee sends its recommendation to Congress for approval.

The project will be financed by $10,000 which Congress appropriated last month to study the entire relief structure in the District. Other members include Dr. Robert E. Moran and William L. Beale, banker here.

D. C. Physician's Wife Found Dead, Stove Jets Open

On the eve of her twenty-fifth wedding anniversary, the body of Mrs. Ethel W. Reed, 48, was found in her gas-filled kitchen at 8001 Saratoga avenue, Sligo Park Hills, Md., last night. Jets on the stove were open.

She was married to Dr. Boyd R. Reed, prominent local physician, in Washington on April 12, 1913. Friends said the pair planned to celebrate the occasion by a trip to Cuba, but at the last moment changed their plans and bought a new automobile. A son, William Allen Read, 23, was in an accident in the new car last week.

The said Mrs. Read had been in ill health for several years, and recently had been worried over personal problems.

A native of Winchester, Va., Mrs. Read is survived by her husband and two sons, William Allen and Boyd R. jr., 17, a student at Montgomery Blair High School. She also leaves two sisters, both in nursing schools in Washington, and two brothers, Hugh and Ralph Rinker, both of Winchester.

Two at Hospital First Seized in Numbers Drive

Guard Acts Under New Law to End Rackets in D. C.

The first arrests under the new numbers regulations were made yesterday, when a guard at Walter Reed Hospital picked up two colored hospital employes on a suspicion of taking numbers bets from patients. More than 30 slips bearing six numbers were found in the underclothing of one prisoner, according to police who alleged that a code was used. Numbers operators pay off on three numbers.

The guard, Sergt. Edward Yance, turned the men over to Detective Sergt. Thomas Nally and Policeman E. A. Murray, who lodged them in the Sixth Precinct.

Following a conference between Capt. George M. Little, chief of the vice squad, and the arresting officers, it was announced both men would appear in a regular police lineup.

One of the men was charged last night with possessing numbers slips, and his case became the first test of the new law. Police gave his name as Robert H. Williams, 25, of the 700 block of Kenyon street northwest. The second prisoner was held for investigation.

According to the new law, directed mainly at the numbers racket here, any set of numbers constitute evidence of a lottery and their possession is a violation of the regulation.

Boy With 8 Hens Sought by Police

A red and white bicycle propelled by a small colored boy and garnished with eight squawking Plymouth Rock hens on the handlebars was the object of police attention last night.

Norman Goda, of 4511 Kansas avenue northwest, proprietor of a grocery store at 704 P street northwest, reported to police his show window was broken and the eight hens stolen. Passersby said they saw the boy, bicycle and hens speeding from the scene with much fuss and feathers.

In fashioning her play of "The Women"—and there is no man in the cast—she has wielded a keenly sharpened scalpel in dissecting the duplicities, the deliberate deviltry and the delectable loveliness of her sex.

Presented in the National Theater for the first time in Washington last night, "The Women," interpreted by a "second" cast that might quite as well have been "first," completely bowled over a large and representative first-night audience that reveled in its audacity, the skill of its frabrication and the pungent wit that characterized each of the 12 scenes embodied in three acts that ran well past the conventional 11 p. m. hour for the final curtain.

"The Women" is no gentle charade in its method of exposing the fancies, foibles and fol-de-rols of the gender with which no mere man ever may hope to cope successfully. It is both strident and surprising in its revelation of the working of the feminine mind. It is no less cautically amazing in the frankness of its exposition of the means employed to encompass devious feminine ends. It discloses with a degree of candor that the stage has not encountered in many seasons just what goes on in the back of the female cranium. What goes on there is enough to strike terror to any male heart. The male of the species owe Miss Boothe a vote of thanks for pointing out to them that they haven't a chance.

All Types Are Present.

A glance at the dramatis personae appearing at the top of this column will indicate to even the most casual observer that every type of woman known to the modern organization of society is to be found among the many characters made important integrals of the play. To each the author has confided some vital aspect of her drama. Many characters, to be sure, are minor, but none is negligible in the final analysis of the play's acutely intimate study of a domestic problem approached from the entirely distaff point of view.

There are moments when the tempo of the piece is retarded a bit by a sort of pseudo-philosophical contemplation of what marriage, fidelity, motherhood and other conspicuous virtues are all about, but counterbalancing them are other periods of intensely funny ridicule of these very fundamentals of ordered life. The denouement of the three acts, it seems needless to say, is all on the side of those qualities of wifely tolerance and great love upon which the sanctity of the American home is based.

There are frequent intervals during which this underlying soundness of the comedy seems just a bit in jeopardy. There are all manner of women here—wives with a penchant for pregnancy, shopgirls, unattached ladies with no compunction about acquiring another woman's husband, provided he has money enough; plotters, chiselers and innocent victims of a vicious feminine system. Into their mouths Miss Boothe has put speeches that at times are just a little startling. Most of the time they are startlingly funny. The only point of the comment is to warn prospective patrons—and the National deserves to be packed this week—not to attend "The Women" in the expectation that it will be a lily-white Sunday School picnic. It will be a picnic, but not wholly lily-white.

Is Judiciously Cast.

It is a remarkable achievement on the part of Producer Max Gordon to have been able to assemble a "second" company which, I would be so bold as to suggest, dangerously approximates the skill of the ensemble still playing "The Women" on Broadway after more than a year. There are few flaws that can be picked by any but the most captious in the performance of the comedy being given at the National. It is extremely well done.

To Lois Wilson, erstwhile screen star, falls the most difficult assignment of the evening. It devolves upon her to ballast the comedy with a sincere and ardent straightforwardness in her defense of the basic integrity of the institution of marriage and the home. A little hurried in her speech and occasionally a little stilted in action, particularly in the play's earlier scenes, this competent actress still gives a fine account of herself and her role. She is not without able assistance in wringing from the manless action the complete measure of its intent and its worth.

So long a cast precludes, of course, a detailed summary of the full merit of the play's enactment. It would be on the side of dereliction, however, not to emphasize the excellence of the contributions made to an enlivening evening in the theater by Alice Buchanan, Emily Ross, Maude Carleton, Laura Pierpont, Marion Weeks, Doris Packer, Dorothy Draper, Celeste Holm, Mary Loane, Lucille Mendez, Georgia McKinnon, Dorrit Kelton, Emily Smiley and Effie Afton.

And one would have enjoyed meeting Stephen, the philandering husband, sometime during the evening, too. He must have been sort of a good egg, at that. But you never see him.

What you do see is an all-feminine cast that could have given even the late Flo Ziegfeld a pointer or two on what pulchritude is all about.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

Distinguished Stars Manifest Interest In Capital's Proposed Summer Theater

Charlotte Walker Latest to Proffer Her Services, With Numerous Others in Prospect; Acting Contrasts in 'Tom Sawyer;' Visitors Are Off Schedule; Miss Lewis Writes a New One for Park Service; Notes.

BELL.

ANOTHER distinguished artiste of the theater has volunteered active participation in the new summer theater colony project being fostered by the Olney Theater Corporation, under the managerial direction of Stephen E. Cochran, for more than 30 years identified with the theater of living drama in the National Capital, former impressario of the National Theater Players and founder of the National Academy of Stage Training.

This latest enthusiast over the intercity enterprise that will operate midway between Washington and Baltimore is Charlotte Walker, former Capital stock favorite, who last week and the week before appeared in an important part in "You Can't Take It With You," the Pulitzer Prize play that held the boards at the National for a fortnight.

It was last Friday, I think, that Miss Walker called upon Mr. Cochran and proffered her services as a visiting star in two or more plays of whatever selection, and also suggested the possibility of a "tryout" engagement of a new play which she herself has written under the title of "Gulf Stream."

There are, it seems, three important feminine characters in this play. Miss Walker thought it would be a splendid thing if Ethel Barrymore and Frances Starr would assume the two major roles and permit her to play the comparatively minor third part. A graceful gesture.

That brilliant New York publicist, Ann Grosvenor Ayres, who, by the way, is equally well known in Washington, also has manifested an interest in the new undertaking that bids fair to put the National Capital definitely on the "hot weather" theatrical map. She already has made several valuable suggestions as to possible bookings.

Out of all this may come the appearance on the outskirts of the city this summer of such stellar personalities in the theater as Jane Cowl, Florence Reed, Leontovich and other.

Miss Barrymore, of course, already has accepted a post on the directorate of the Olney project.

We shall see what we shall see.

Opposite extremes of the acting scale, in a manner of speaking, are represented in the cast of David O. Selznick's Technicolor production of "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," opening Friday on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater. Tommy Kelly, 12-year-old star of the film, who appears in the title role, never before has had any acting experience of any kind. He was picked up out of New York's Bronx by talent scouts who chose him over some 25,000 others as the best possible candidate for the role of Tom Sawyer in the Mark Twain classic. Ann Gillis, who plays opposite him, also is a newcomer to the thespian art. On the other hand, May Robson, who plays the part of Aunt Polly in the picture, has been in the theater for 54 years. She made her debut on September 17, 1883, as Tilly in the stage production of "The Hoop of Gold." If "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer" were a stage play, instead of a picture, the District's ill-judged child labor law would keep it out of town—not on account of the venerable and beloved Miss Robson, however!

• • • •

It seems worth recalling that Tommy Kelly and Ann Gillis are two modest and charming children who lent a naive juvenile touch to the President's birthday celebrations last January. Both were among the many stars who visited Washington at that time and both impressed all who met them with their unaffectedness, simplicity and friendliness.

In their joint tour of personal appearances in other parts of the country, one hears, everything was not quite so happy—but through no fault of the youngsters. They comported themselves precisely as they did here, like a little lady and gentleman. But in the cases of their mothers, it was something else again, according to report.

The mamas are said to have developed that bugaboo of the theater known technically as "temperament." There were wrangles about "top billing," preferred hotel accommodations, etc., etc., until finally the kids had to be conducted as two separate "units" rather than as a friendly "double" act.

Hedda Hopper, The Post's informed and interesting West Coast columnist, recently dedicated her remarks to the topic of "going Hollywood." Apparently there are those still living who ought to dig that column out and read it!

• • • •

Their visits seem not to have been properly timed. I mean to say that Rosemary Lane, who dropped in on Fred Waring and His Pennsylvanians a day or so ago, as an unannounced "special added attraction"—she was proselyted to the films from the band when Fred made "Varsity Show" on the West Coast—should have deferred her jaunt until today. This morning L. W. O'Connell, cameraman on the Warner Brothers' lot, at Burbank, Calif., where the Lane sisters, Rosemary and Priscilla, labor before the cameras, will arrive in town for a spring squint at the beauties of the Capital with Mrs. O'Connell. They will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur de Titta, at Wardman Park. There ought to be a bit of a reunion, at that, for Fred and Mrs. Waring and their two lively children—a boy and a girl, in case you had forgotten—also are stopping at Wardman, during the Pennsylvanians current engagement at the Capitol.

• • • •

The second of the new dramatic radio series, "America's Hours of Destiny," written by Dorothea J. Lewis, a member of this department's reviewing staff, will go on the air today.

The series is sponsored by the National Park Service and deals in dramatic form, with the historic and exciting stories of the various national parks and monuments throughout the country.

Casts are recruited from the acting forces of the Washington Civic Theater, who, through this outlet, find it possible to appear in the roles of many of the greatest figures this country has known.

• • • •

So today's contribution to the drama desk's collection of bizarre mementoes of slightly crackpot exploitation is a "ten-gallon hat" celebrating the wild western heroics of "The Lone Ranger." A deeply ingrained and inherent honesty compels me to admit that I look like something the cat dragged in with it on—but you ought to see Judge Mark Question, of The Post's "Umbrella Court of the Air," in his. Ye gods!

Nature Beauty Gets Emphasis In New Films

Millions imprisoned in muggy offices and simmering kitchens this spring and summer have been promised at least a r easure of release by Hollywood.

The beauties of nature, access to which is denied so many in this high-pressure age, are being brought to urban dwellers everywhere through the current emphasis on photography.

Never before has Hollywood laid such stress upon the camera.

Color plays an important part in this trend, with "Her Jungle Love," Technicolor romance, acclaimed by experts as "Hollywood's greatest photographic achievement." This tale of tropical adventure brings the jungle to life on the screen for the first time in all the glory of its many-hued garb, and in the thrilling earthquake sequences presents the first montage ever made in color.

The scenic glories of southern Mexico, a region of breath-taking beauty, are filmed for the first time in "Tropic Holiday," while moviegoers will glimpse miles of glowing California countryside from a railroad flatcar in "Cocoanut Grove."

Nature's most spectacular parade, the Alaskan salmon run, will be a photographic feature of "Spawn of the North." It is a scintillating scene of unforgettable brilliance.

"Stolen Heaven," musical melodrama laid in Central Europe, reproduces with amazing fidelity the color and brilliance similar to that of the world-famous Salzburg music festival.

The rolling plains of Texas in days long gone, come to the screen in "The Texans," which numbers among its more amazing camera accomplishments the photographing of a vast prairie fire and a dust storm.

Supplants Powell

young singing actor, who has been assigned by the Warner Brothers to the role in "Gardens of the Moon" that was written for Dick Powell. Payne, who thus achieves top-ranking in Hollywood, soon will be seen on a local screen in "College Swing."

Headliners on Theatrical Horizon

EASTER STARS OF STAGE AND SCREEN.

In HOLLYWOOD By the United Press

She's got to look like a woman of 1914, with cast iron underwear, a rat in her hair, numerous petticoats, high, buttoned shoes and starched dresses down to her ankles. That isn't all.

She must progress with the years in her forthcoming picture. By 1917 she'll be wearing a hobble skirt. In 1919 she'll have her hair bobbed. Her skirts will be shorter and she'll have no more sign of a feminine figure than a 1-year-old boy.

"But what I really dread," she said, "is 1926. That was when skirts became so short they wouldn't even cover the knees. Waistlines reached down and down until they got below the hips, while hats looked like nothing so much as pots upside down."

The years go on; she gradually grows older on the screen, and eventually her clothes come up to the present. By now she is 43 years old.

Miss Campbell, daughter of a prosperous Chicago livery contractor, one time dentist's assistant, drama school teacher and Broadway star, is playing the leading feminine role in Paramount's $1,000,000 epic of aviation history, "Men With Wings."

"It's all in Technicolor," she said, "and they told me I'd have to stay in the shade because sunburn shows up in the color cameras. It's a fine thing, coming to California and not being able to absorb any sun!"

Her clothes problem is one of the most difficult confronting the movie makers. They can rig girls out in bustles easily for a gay nineties picture; they can resurrect hoop skirts for a Civil War drama, and they can find panniers and white wigs for pictures of Louis XIV's day.

"But when it comes to the clothes of just a few years ago," Miss Campbell said, "they seem to be too close to us. They look funny.

"My principal worry is to get clothes which look like those of 1914 and on, but which won't make the audiences laugh. So we'll have to cheat. My short skirts won't be quite as short as really they were. If I wear a hobble dress, it won't be tight enough to trip me.

"Another difficulty is the fact that the girl of 19 today looks like a baby compared to the same aged girl in 1914. Yet I must start out looking like a youngster—and gradually grow older, even though my clothes have a tendency continually to make me look younger.

"Then there's the airplane business. I'm supposed to be the daughter of a pioneer aviator, helping him with his machines in 1914. Girls then simply did not wear slacks, or jumper dresses. So we have decided that when I'm working on the planes I'll wear ordinary overalls.

"They seem to be one article of attire which has not changed one bit through the years."

Girls of 1914, incidentally, wore no lip stick, little or no rouge—and they never even heard of artificial eyelashes.

"But this is the movie business," Miss Campbell said. "They'll give me extra eyelashes, all right, but they will be clipped short, so they won't look too unreal."

As a movie star she is a surprise. You'd never guess it to see her on the street. She wears simple clothes, a slight touch of makeup, and none of the fox-scarf-blue-eyelids-Parisian-creation-imported-perfume folderol. Nobody ever stopped to stare at Miss Campbell. few people even have asked for her autograph. They haven't recognized her.

Broadway Director On an Assignment

Because of his experience as a Broadway stage director and producer, H. C. Potter was assigned to direct "Shopworn Angel" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

He recently completed "Romance In the Dark," and scored his first hit in Hollywood with "Beloved Enemy." Other directorial successes include "The Real Glory" and "Wings Over Honolulu."

Buddy Lewis Is First Gastonia Citizen.

By Shirley Povich.

Gastonia, N. C., April 11.—The impression you get here is that there must be dozens of Gastonians in the United States—small towns far, far removed from the big leagues, yet whose citizens maintain a deep and personal interest in the goings-on in major league ball parks.

POVICH

Here you are reminded forcibly of the bond between Main street and the big leagues. For here is the home town of John Kelly (Buddy) Lewis, and if that is not the proudest boast of Gastonia folk it is indisputably the loudest.

Here it is something of an honor to shake the hand that shook the hand of Buddy Lewis, the Gastonia boy who made good in baseball's fastest company. Storekeepers proudly tell you they knew him when . . . his old schoolmarm delights in telling of the dirty-faced, pug-nosed little lad who was always last in from recess. Solid citizens take time out to scan yesterday's box scores for the vicarious thrill of a double, a triple or mayhap a homer by Buddy Lewis.

Draws on Smal Towns.

And thus it must be also in other whistle-stop communities throughout the land, for the big leagues draw heavily on the small towns for their talent. That, of course, has been no secret. The majors are overrun with small-town lads. The Washington club's roster is pointedly typical. With the Nats are players who hail from such metropolises as Terryville, Conn.; Oneonta, N. Y.; Melford, Mass.; Guilford, N. C.; Clovis, Calif.; Ellisville, Miss.; Riverdale, Ga., and Tullahoma, Tenn.

That, perhaps, is the reason for big league baseball's universal appeal. In towns whose population could be tucked into the lower deck of most big league parks, the big league pennant races are a burning topic, no doubt because small-town fans can say "One of our boys is up there."

Down here they tell you they always knew Buddy Lewis—"J. K." they call him—would be a big leaguer some day. As a 14-year-old he was playing with the Gastonia American Legion junior team that averaged 17 years, and was the best player on the club. They weren't surprised much when J. K. was scouted by the New York Giants in 1934.

The Giants took young J. K. on a Western trip, but Manager Bill Terry was too much occupied with keeping his club in the pennant race to notice the tall young fellow who was warming the bench. Young J. K. wasn't even permitted to take infield practice and he didn't have the nerve to go near the plate in hitting practice, and it was a very disillusioned youth who was finally turned loose by the Giants, who never did bring up the subject of a contract.

Played Sandlot Game.

He did get to play a ball game in New York, though, before he returned to Gastonia. With four hours until train time, he found himself watching a sandlot game in Central Park between two teams in a hotel league. That was his lucky day. One of the team's catcher was hurt and J. K. volunteered to play. Sure he could catch, he lied. And in civilian clothes he went behind the bat for the first time in his life.

There was a job waiting for him in a cotton brokerage house in Gastonia and J. K. decided he'd better take it, in the light of his dismal experience with the Giants. But a Gastonia fan had faith in him, telegraphed Joe Engel, Chattanooga club president, that a promising young third baseman was going to waste behind a desk in Gastonia.

The rest of the baseball history of J. K. Lewis is pretty well known; how he stepped into the regular Chattanooga line-up on the first day he reported, how he starred for Chattanooga throughout the season of 1935 and got a tryout with Washington; how he failed to impress the Washington bosses in his brief 1935 trial and then blossomed as a sensation with the Nats in 1936; how he met the second-year test in 1937 by out-hitting every other third baseman in the league and outfielding most.

That is the history of 21-year-old Buddy Lewis in baseball and Gastonia folks delight in reciting it. And in scores of other Gastonias in the United States there are scores of other Buddy Lewises who came off the town lots to make good in baseball's fastest company and permit Main Street to look at the majors and say "One of our boys is up there."

Georgetown Prep Golf Team Takes Third Shutout, 9-0

Georgetown Prep School golfers lengthened their lead in the Metropolitan Scholastic League yesterday by scoring their third shutout in four matches, against Anacostia, 9 to 0, at Garret Park.

The Prepsters are now a full match ahead of Western, Roosevelt and Bethesda, who are tied for second with two defeats in as many starts.

Six of the nine matches were turned into routs by the hosts, with only the matches in the second foursome going past the fourteenth hole. Tauney, of the Anacostians, lost by a 2 and 1 margin to McDonnell, of Prep, in the closest match of the day.

Dettweiler (G.) defeated Armstrong, 6 and 5; Brayer defeated Porter, 7 and 6; best ball, Georgetown Prep, 6 and 4.

McDonnell (G.) defeated Tauney (G.), 2 and 1; Titus (G) defeated Clements, 3 and 2. Best ball, Georgetown Prep, 2 up.

Messech (G.) defeated Smith, 6 and 5; Higgins (G.) defeated Placos, 7 and 5; best ball, Georgetown Prep, 7 and 5.

Bees Wallop Nats, 19-12; Lewis Stars

'Home Towner' Raps Out Homer, Gets 4 Hits; De Shong Hurt.

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Gastonia, N. C., April 11.—Buddy Lewis Day was a complete success this afternoon for Buddy Lewis, 3,000 of his Gastonia admirers and the Boston Bees. It was no success for the Nats, who took a beating by the football figures of 19-12.

In fact, the Nats may rue the proceedings today for Jimmy DeShong, their starting pitcher, tonight was suffering from an injured pitching hand that may be fractured. DeShong was unable to move his right hand out of the path of a line drive off the bat of Gene Moore in the fourth inning and the ball crashed against his knuckles, forcing the Nats' pitcher to leave the game.

The large knuckle at the base of the pitcher's forefinger was badly swollen. X-ray pictures to be taken tomorrow in Richmond will determine the extent of the injury.

A Brilliant Show.

Despite the general lucklessness of the Nats today, young Buddy Lewis staged a brilliant show for the 3,000 natives who quit the mills early to watch the native son perform in a Washington uniform on the same grounds where he starred for Gastonia sandlot teams not so many years ago.

With a fine disregard for tradition, which is heavily against anything spectacular by a player who has been honored by the home folks, the Nats' young third baseman actually scintillated.

In his first time at bat, Lewis flied out meekly, but that was the last time that Milt Shoffner, southpaw pitcher who went the route for the Bees, was able to get the home-town boy out.

Three singles and a home run was the contribution of Buddy to the Nats' attack, and his homer was the supreme sock of the afternoon which was filled with lengthy swats. It was a lengthy poke over the centerfield fence with two Nats on base in the fifth inning, and the natives remembered that he had done that before as a kid in Gastonia.

That ball game, however, was no pitching duel. At one point, as early as the fourth inning, the Bees were ahead, 12-1, and there was a possibility that the park superintendent might have to turn on the lights before the ninth inning was completed.

Teams Get 36 Hits.

All told, the Bees whacked out 19 hits and the Nats collected 17. Mixed up in the proceedings were five home runs. The Nats won the home run battle, 3 to 2, with Lewis, Bonura and Taft Wright knocking the ball over the fences, but Gene Moore, of the Bees, delivered the prize homer of the lot.

It was a vicious clout over the rightfield wall against DeShong in the second inning and it was the prize homer because the bases were full of Bees at the time. Those four runs boosted the Bees' lead to 6-0, which is indicative of the success DeShong was having. In the three innings he pitched, DeShong allowed nine runs and eight hits.

DeShong had allowed three more runs in the fourth inning before he was literally knocked from the box by Moore's line drive, and Joe Krakauskas took over the pitching job. Krakauskas was not as ineffective as usual. He was more ineffective than usual. He gave up three more runs in that fourth inning, was pounded for four in the sixth and three in the eighth. He also contributed two wild throws to the general confusion.

Lewis Hits Homer.

The Nats had only one run to show for their efforts against Shoffner until the fifth when Lewis arrived on the scene with a home run over the center fieldwall, scoring two mates ahead of himself.

And Zeke Bonura, likewise, produced 3 runs with a single wallop a couple of innings later. The banana merchant rammed his homer over the rightfield fence, a prodigious sock for a right-handed hitter.

In the ninth the Nats came up with 5 useless runs. Taft Wright, who is solidifying his bid for an outfield job, began the inning with a homer over the rightfield fence and ten Nats went to bat in the inning before Shoffner could get the side out, but their rally fell exactly 7 runs short of tying the score.

The Braves now own three victories in their four games with the Nats. The two clubs meet again tomorrow at Richmond, Va., where Wes Ferrell will try to pitch nine innings.

Indians Win Over Giants

Solter's Homer in Ninth Is Factor.

Paducah, Ky., April 11 (AP).—Julius Solters' home run over the centerfield fence with two mates aboard in the last of the ninth gave the Cleveland Indians an 8-7 triumph over the New York Giants today and evened the clubs' exhibition series at five games each.

Harry Gumbert, bidding for a nine-inning victory, was on the mound when Solters' blow broke up the ball game. Until he hit his drive it was close, with the Giants leading, 7-5, as the teams went into the last of the ninth.

Four home runs helped the Giants pile up the lead, with Lou Chiozza, Hank Leiber, Jimmy Ripple and Mel Ott doing the slugging. It was a pitching duel for the first four innings, with Johnny Allen of the Tribe and Gumbert hurling shutout ball.

CHISOX SINK PIRATES.

Fort Smith, Ark., April 11 (AP).—Chicago's White Sox scored their first triumph in four exhibition starts against the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7 to 4, today by landing on Ken Heintzelman in the sixth and seventh innings.

Until the sixth, Ted Lyons, of the Sox, and Bill Swift, of the Bucs, had turned in three-hit pitching performances. Four Sox errors helped Pittsburgh build up a 2 to 0 lead in that period.

A single, a walk, Joe Kuhel's double and an error helped Chicago to its first three runs, while three successive singles, Gerald Walker's double, an infield out and a wild pitch accounted for the remaining four.

Congressional Body May Fill Job Tonight

Theodore S. Grape, Congressional Country Club president, and the seven members of the committee to pick Roland MacKenzie's successor will meet tonight at the club and in the wee-small hours of the morning the city may have a new face among its professional members.

The committee's task was made harder yesterday when Frank Walsh, one of the biggest 'name' golfers in the country, sent his application to Grape and asked to be considered for the position. He is visiting Wiffy Cox at Kenwood. He is unattached at the present.

With the applications of amateurs Roger Peacock and Levi Yoder known to be in the hands of the committee, Dame Rumor still has it that none other than Claggett Stevens, former assistant to Sandy Armour and MacKenzie, will step into his former bosses shoes. More than 50 applicants will be given careful consideration by the group of eight.

Strain Beats Tarheel Star

Eliminates Foreman in Pinehurst Tennis.

Pinehurst, N. C., April 11 (AP).—With a lone exception favorites advanced easily today through the early rounds of the twentieth annual North and South Tennis Tournament.

This year the turnament is being conducted on a no expense account basis. A field of 64, the largest in the history, entered and Pinehurst officials predicted the new plan would stimulate amateur tennis in the Midsouth.

A mild upset was registered when Robert Strain, of Plainfield, N. J., No. 3 man on the University of North Carolina team, eliminated the team's No. 2 player, John Foreman, of Clenco, Ill., 6—4, 6—2.

Foreman, a senior, who has been a mainstay of the team for three years, played below par, missing his backhands and serving below his standard.

Strain and foreman moved into the second round through defaults of first round opponents.

The defending champion, Gilbert Hall, of New York, seeded No. 1, defeated Igor Denieoff, city champion of Bridgeport, Conn., 6—0, 6—3, and in the second round eliminated James Coxetter, of the University of North Carolina, 6—0, 6—2.

The seeded players in the order of their rank are: Hall, George B. Dunn, No. 1 of the Middle Atlantic States and the Philadelphia district; Merrimon Cuninggim, a professor at Duke University, and Archie Henderson, jr., of Chapel Hill, N. C.

The second round of the men's singles will continue tomorrow along with the first round of the women's singles.

Quarles Defeats Charley Gomer

Baltimore, April 11 (AP).—Norment Quarles, Richmond, Va., lightweight, won the decision over Charley Gomer in a bristling 10-round bout here tonight.

In the 8-round semifinal Sam Baccali scored a major upset by winning over Ivan Nedomatsky on a technical knockout in the third round of their scheduled 8-round bout.

Other results were: Jake Friedman, 190, defeated Joe Finazzo, 180, 4 rounds; Mel Deshon, 122½, defeated Moe Slonaker, 120½, 5 rounds. Finazzo substituted for Van Meter, of Cumberland.

Mason-Dixon Medal to Nee

Georgetown U. Captain Shoots a 74.

By the Associated Press.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 11. — Young Maury Nee, Georgetown University Golf captain, shot a four-over-par 74 today to take medalist honors among qualifiers for the eighteenth annual Mason and Dixon Amateur Golf championship.

He unfolded a consistent game out and back in 37s while the remainder of the field bucked the vagaries of sodden greens.

Two Georgetown comrades provided his closest competition, bill Dettweiler turning in a card of 41-35—72 and Bill Shea a 38-39—77.

Only five other competitors finished in the seventies and several starters failed to turn in a card.

Al Dollins, of Covington, Va., medalist last year, toured the 6,300 yard layout in 39-37—76. J. B. Ryerson, of Cooperstown, N. Y., two-times winner of the Mason and Dixon Crown, turned in a 36-41—77 along with Morton McCarthy, of Norfolk, Va., 40-37—77, and Henry Williams, of New York, 37-40—77.

John C. Davison, of Chicopee, Mass., also a previous double winner, turned in a 37, 41—78.

Sixteen players who scored 86 and under today qualified for the championship flight. First-round match play will begin tomorrow morning immediately after pairings are made.

Frank Strafaci, of Brooklyn, recent winner of the North and South play at Pinehurst; Ross Summerville, of Canada, and several others expected to enter failed to arrive.

Other qualifiers:

G. J. Mulroy, West Orange	40	43—83
Gerald Shatuck, New York	41	43—84
Arthur Lynch, Scarsdale	40	41—81
Fletcher Gill, Plandome, N. Y.	44	42—86

Terp Trackmen Beat Generals; Cronin Star

Maryland Sprinter Takes 100-Yard Dash and 220 as His Team Wins Meet, 81 1-3 to 44 2-3; Also Captures Pole Vault.

By the Associated Press.

Lexington, Va., April 11.—Frank Cronin, Maryland sprint star, led Maryland University's track team to a 81 1-3-44 2-3 victory over Washington and Lee in a meet held on Wilson Field this afternoon.

Cronin took first places in the 100-yard dash and repeated in the 220, beating Charles Curl, the Generals' sophomore dash star, by several strides. Cronin also took an easy first place in the pole vault.

Curl won his other event of the afteroon in the 440 in 50 seconds. Jim Rogers, Washington and Lee captain and high hurdler, took his event in 15 seconds, while Dick Boisseau took Washington and Lee's only other first place of the afternoon in the shotput with a distance of 41 feet 8½ inches.

Gastonia, N. C., April 11.—Following today's game Jake Early was released to Griffith's Charlotte Club, of the Piedmont League for further seasoning. The young catcher was beaten out of the third string receivers' job with the Senators by Mickey Livingston whose hitting has surpassed Early's this spring.

Marylanders Capture Title

Beat Raymond Team, 1-0, for Soccer Honors.

Maryland Park Market captured the local title in the National Junior Cup soccer series yesterday when it defeated Raymond, 1 to 0, on the Rosedale playground. The tournament in this section was conducted by the Department of Playgrounds. Eight teams have been playing since January 1 for the right to represent Washington in the national games.

Raymond Playground played a surprisingly aggressive game. The Spring road youngsters were the underdogs in pregame predictions. The Maryland Parkers were forced to fight desperately throughout the first half to prevent Raymond scores. Al Miller, at right back, was a tower of strength for Raymond throughout.

Manager Frank Carr, of the winners pulled a little strategy in the opening minutes of the second half which resulted in victory for his eleven. Hudson, who had not been started because of a slight sprain was injected after the scoreless battle of the first period. He made several trys for goal, but missed. Then he teamed with Lund and Ketchel, Lund passing to the latter who inturn tapped the leather to Hudson who scored from about 15 yards out. Rightly figuring that the game was now safe, Carr immediately removed Hudson.

The Maryland Parkers will next meet the Baltimore winner in the first round for the national championship. Local playground officials are waiting to hear from national headquarters as to when and where this mtach will be played.

Louis-Schmeling Bout Is Sought for Detroit

Miami Beach, Fla., April 11 (AP).—Walter O. Briggs, owner of the Detroit Baseball Club, today telegraphed Promoter Mike Jacobs an offer to rent the ball park there for the Joe Louis-Max Schmeling heavyweight championship bout.

Briggs declined to disclose the terms for the stadium, which will seat 90,000 for a fight, but said he would make them better than any Jacobs could get in New York or Chicago. Detroit is Louis' home city.

Dubie Beats Ray Ingram By Decision

Thomas Gets Verdict in Fight With Baker; Dell Is Winner.

By Lewis F. Atchison.
By Lewis F. Atchison.

Hollow-eyed George Abrams, who stumbled in his climb toward middleweight gold and glory two weeks ago, stepped gingerly but safely over the same rocky ground last night as he decisively outpointed Jimmy Jones in an eight-round test at Turner's Arena.

He won every round on The Post score sheet, and any of the 1,771 fans who nestled in every nook and cranny of the box-like battle-pit will agree that he won going away.

"It was a birthday present for Syd," the happy warrior laughed in the dressing room after the bout. His face was flushed, his tanned body oozing perspiration, for he had done a good job of an arduous task. It was a present for Syd Fishel, his manager, and the 19-year-old kid was doubly happy about winning for that reason.

Result Never in Doubt.

The ultimate outcome never was in doubt the way Abrams boxed. His thrusts, parries, right hand smashes to the head and defensive tactics would have evoked applause from the good Marquis of Queensbury himself, had that early exponent and foster-father been there to see it. It was by far the best fight the lad has waged since he turned pro, and he was master all the way.

But even when George was boldly carrying the fight to the cagey Baltimorean you could sense the alarmed mental attitude of the crowd. If telepathy is possible, 1,771 anxious souls used it on the former Boys Club champion last night. A Jones right, the same deadly kind that came swishing out of the humid air two weeks ago and clubbed Abrams into senseless defeat, a "sucker" punch, was what they feared and dreaded. If only he didn't relax and get careless. It was almost a prayer.

Their fears were baseless, however, for the boy kept himself as well covered as an Eskimo throughout. Jones could not get the range for either right or left. He tried to work inside on Abrams' body, but found himself tied up, and held safely at bay every time. He was outsmarted, outboxed from the tinkle of the first bell to the last. He tried, he made a fight of it, but it was a different Abrams he fought last night.

Jones Hurt at Finish.

Abrams' best round was the seventh. Jones was hurt at the finish, but the crowd roared eagerly earlier, when the Baltimore boy rode with a punch and Abrams pounced on him like a wounded leopard. The damage actually was insignificant, but it was different near the end when George brought him up short with a whistling right to the head, and two lefts to the same sector.

The District boy was off fast as the fight opened, pounding his adversary around the head, then walking into a clinch and tying up Jones. The Baltimorean was content to bide his time, pawing at the body with little effect, looking for a parking place for the right.

Jones really opened up in the second and third, but his aim was off. The right curled harmlessly behind Abrams' neck, or missed completely as the Jewish lad danced away—then tore back in with both fists pumping leather to the body. Jones hurt Abrams in the fourth, digging deeply into his midriff with a right. Abrams retaliated with another shower of rights, offsetting the damage.

Guilty of Low Blows.

Jones was guilty of low blows in this round as well as the fifth and was penalized by Referee La Fond. They seemed to annoy George, who looked appealingly at the arbiter. Jones, however, was intent only on getting in to the body, which he failed to do.

Abrams lashed out with his right in the last three rounds and scored enough points to win a dozen fights, but failed to feaze the tough Jones boy. The latter tired badly near the finish, while Abrams continued to spank him with both hands, catching left hooks intended for the body on his arm, and warding off possibly knockout rights as nicely as you shoo a fly. It was his night.

Apparently still tired from his winning bout with Marty Gordon over the Eastern Sho' last Wednesday, Rusty Baker, of Baltimore, dropped a four-round decision to Buddy Thomas in a slow curtain-raiser.

Falls Church Dog Wins Field Trials

Warrenton, Va., April 11 (AP).—Lady May, a pointer owned by Howard Reid, of Falls Church, won first place in the Cedar Run field trials completed near Catlett late today.

The second place award went to Rex Star, pointer owned by Curtis Marcey, Arlington. A setter captured third honors when Nancy Bird scored for J. Marcey, also of Arlington.

The trials had been postponed from last Friday because of rain and cold.

About 200 persons witnessed the trials. Thirteen braces were run.

Allen Released.

Asheville, N. C., April 11 (AP).—Robert Earl Allen, right-handed pitcher obtained last year by the Philadelphia National League Club from the Portsmouth, Va., club, was released to Chattanooga of the Southern League on option today.

Affirmation, a $27.20 Shot, Captures Lothair Purse at Bowie

Walter Haight

Despite the fact that J. B. Campbell, Bowie's racing secretary, seems to be trying to make a moving van out of Aneroid by packing 129 pounds on his back, the Washington-owned horse will make his 1938 Eastern debut tomorrow, if the track continues to dry out. Just how Campbell arrived at the 129-pound figure for Aneroid probably never will be known.

HAIGHT.

The assignment makes one wonder what War Admiral or Seabiscuit would have gotten in the same race. Probably 140 and 136 pounds is a good guess. John A. Manfuso, owner of Aneroid, is making no beefs about the poundage, but from where I sit, it looks as though the line-up is a combination of handicapping and guessing.

One of the gems of the weights for this $5,000 added southern Marylander, is the 110 pounds given Piccolo. This is the former C. V. Whitney horse who won a stake race in Florida. True, Piccolo did nothing in the mud in his two Bowie starts, but he certainly rates more than 110 pounds if Aneroid is to carry 129, in my opinion.

After all, these weights could not have been arranged on the assumption that the track would be muddy tomorrow. Some of the other weights that seem to be out of line are 106 pounds for Challephen and 100 pounds for Parmelee T. Don't let this pair fool you. Of course, they couldn't handle Sun Egret last Saturday in the mud, but a fast track will make it a different story.

Sun Egret, winner of the Rowe Memorial and the Bowie Spring Handicap, is eligible for tomorrow's mile and a sixteenth race. However, Trainer Guy Bedwell will keep the Sun Briar colt in the barn, preferring to save him for the Harford Handicap on Saturday at Havre de Grace, in which he will not be as stoutly opposed.

Sun Egret drew 119 pounds in tomorrow's race, a rather tough assignment for a 3-year-old facing older horses. Inasmuch as Trainer Bedwell plans to ship Sun Egret to Churchill Downs for the Derby, the Harford Handicap will be the final prep of the A. C. Compton colt in Maryland. If the mud comes up for the Derby, Sun Egret will be a tough young horse to beat. He just galloped along last Saturday and, on a weight-for-age basis, he was carrying the equivalent of the Derby assignment of 128 pounds.

Aneroid is reported to be in good shape. He has been training at Pimlico and will be vanned over for his engagement tomorrow. The gallant son of The Porter stood the trip back from the West Coast in good style. However, he will have a big job cut out for him with that 129 pounds up.

It will be an all-Washington combination when Aneroid goes to the post—Owner Manfuso, Trainer Dion Kerr and Jockey Sonny Workman all are Capital men.

Donald Hay has been named pari-mutuel manager for the Charles Town Jockey Club's 36-day meeting due to get under way on May 16, immediately following the close of Pimlico. President-General Manager Al Boyle made the announcement yesterday. Hay has been in the mutuel end of the game for 25 years, having served at all major Maryland tracks as well as Tropical Park, Delaware, Hialeah, Suffolk, Narragansett, Rockingham, Agawam and various Canadian tracks.

—A Baltimorean, Hay enjoys a fine reputation and should prove a big asset to the progressive West Virginia course.

Speaking of Charles Town, this track will conduct the daily double on the second and third races again this year. This gives fans, who are late arriving at the track, a chance to participate in the popular twin wager.

Present plans call for seven races each day except Wednesdays, Saturdays and holidays, when eight-race programs will be offered.

O'Malley's Smart Race Nets Victory

Brown Moth Beaten Out At Wire; Swift Gold Third.

By Walter Haight.
a Staff Correspondent.

Bowie Race Track, April 11.—Jockey Joe Omalley outsmarted Nick Wall and Frank Kelly, riding for the William Zeigler Stable, and Affirmation, regarded as a cheap 3-year-old, won the Lothair Purse, the feature race of today's program.

After breaking Affirmation on top, and keeping him there until the field was leaving the backstretch, Omalley noticed that Wall, on Suburbanite and Kelly on Swift Gold, were hustling their mounts trying to get him off the top. Omalley took in on Affirmation's reins and his rivals apparently believed his horse beaten.

Instead, Omalley gave Affirmation a "breather" and went in on the rail to save ground entering the stretch. He drove the gelding through and found both Suburbanite and Swift Gold tiring. Affirmation then regained the lead and Omalley began swinging his whip for all he was worth. It was well that he did, for Brown Moth came like an express train on the outside and would have won in a few more yards. As it was, Affirmation had a length the better of him. Swift Gold managed to hang on for third money.

It was to the tune of a $27.20 mutuel that Affirmation turned in the best race of his career. He was clocked in 1:14 4-5 for the 6 furlongs.

The combination of Sea Shell and My Surprise brought a $23.60 payoff to 554 daily-double betters.

Ladino, 9-year-old gelding with a long Maryland career behind him, came from last position to win a photo decision in the sixth race. With an obscure apprentice, A. Brondsen in the saddle, Ladino turned on the heat in the stretch to nip Sand Cloud. Miss Tiptoe was third to the $7 shot.

A O'Connell had a neck the best of a tight finish in the seventh race. Performing in the colors of the Sachsah Stable, the gelding defeated Zinnia and Morun as well as five others over the mile and a sixteenth course. Ridden by Apprentice Jockey L. Dupps, A. O'Connell paid an $11.20 mutuel.

The Millsdale Stables' Sea Shell, at an $8.30 mutuel, stayed in front of a pack of eight juveniles to win the first race over the half-mile course. With Charlie Corbett riding his twelfth winner of the meeting, Sea Shell lasted to defeat the favorite, Prince Gale, by a neck. Third money went to Macie Margaret. Prince Gale might have won but for the fact he lugged in through the stretch and Apprentice Jockey Driscoll had to take him up several times.

The favorite players won a photo decision in the second race, one of the most thrilling finishes of the meeting. Inactive, in the center at the end appeared to have won, but the picture showed that she had turned her head right at the wire. My Surprise, paying $5.10, was declared the winner, with Inactive second, Guinea Doric third, and Bad Dreams fourth in the six-furlong sprint.

Funderburg, a newcomer in these parts and winner of a race while campaigning at Oaklawn, produced a $14.90 mutuel for a chosen few in the third race. The veteran gelding finished a neck in advance of Jadaan, installed the favorite in the field of nine claiming sprinters. Irene's Bob was third. The last-named set the pace followed by Funderburg, but slowed down in the final dash. Funderburg opened a lead and had to be hard handled to stave off Jadaan's closing bid.

A new high for mutuel prices at the meeting developed in the fourth race, when Catchall turned a form flip-flop to produce a $33.30 payoff. The same horse was eighth in a similar field here last Friday. Wayne Wright rode him to the front today and he was never in trouble, leading Mariato and Blade Edge to the wire.

Funderberg Capturing Third at Bowie by Neck

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SEA SHELL, $8.30, $3.10, $2.80; PRINCE GALE, $2.90, $2.40; MACIE MARGARET, $9.60.

SEA SHELL, off alertly, was sent to the front under hustling tactics, saved ground and held on gamely in the final drive. PRINCE GALE, first away, raced wide in the stretch and had to be taken up repeatedly while lugging in. MACIE MARGARET saved much ground entering the stretch and closed with good speed on the inside.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs (divided). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:01. Off at 3:07. Winner, G. T. Struthers' b. g. (6), by Nasaak—The Missus. Trained by J. Arthur. Value to winner, $700; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $25. Time, 1:15 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MY SURPRISE, $5.10, $2.90, $2.60; INACTIVE, $3.90, $2.80; GUINEA DORIC, $8.80.

MY SURPRISE, away slowly, was sent wide for racing room came with a rush when placed to a drive and was up to get the photo decision in the final stride. INACTIVE raced RED ROSE and SHARP THOUGHTS into defeat to take a slight lead in the early stretch, closed gamely under strong handling and appeared to have lasted. GUINEA DORIC slipped through on the rail entering the stretch and came with a rush at the end.

Daily double, Sea Shell and My Surprise, paid $23.60

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs (division of second). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:35. Off at 3:38½. Winner, R. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FUNDERBURG, $14.90, $4.40, $3.20; JADAAN, $3.00, $2.60; IRENE'S BOB, $3.30.

FUNDERBURG, closest to the pace of IRENE'S BOB from the break, came around the pacemaker in the early stretch and, under strong handling held away to the end. JADAAN, within striking distance of the leader from the start, gained gradually on the outside in the final drive. IRENE'S BOB, first away, set a good pace, but weakened suddenly in the stretch run.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles (divided). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:05. Off at 4:06½. Winner, Mrs. V. Wyse's b. g. (6), by Batten-burg—Banda. Trained by J. G. Brown. Value to winner, $700; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $25. Time, 1:51 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CATCHALL, $33.30, $10.40, $7.50; MARIATO, $4.20, $4.00; BLADE EDGE, $20.90.

CATCHALL took command approaching the backstretch, shook off MARIATO to draw out in the closing stages while having speed in reserve. MARIATO, unable to get to the front, was hard ridden throughout and weakened in the closing test. BLADE EDGE went evenly.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. The Lothair. For 3-year-old colts and geldings. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:31. Off at 4:32½. Winner, A. S. Hewitt's ch. g. (3), by Runantell—Linzy. Trained by F. C. Randolph. Value to winner, $700; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $25. Time, 1:14 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—AFFIRMATION, $27.20, $6.90, $2.80; BROWN MOTH, $3.80, $2.20; SWIFTGOLD (entry), $2.20.

AFFIRMATION, well handled, broke in front, was taken back when SUBURBANITE and SWIFTGOLD went to the front under hustling tactics, was sent through on the rail to save ground and under a strong drive, held BROWN MOTH safe. The latter, outrun in the early stages, was forced wide for racing room and came with a rush in the closing test. SWIFTGOLD was forwardly placed throughout, but was used up trying to get to the front and faltered.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles (first division of fourth). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:39. Off at 5:00. Winner, E. Buckland's ch. g. (9), by Ladkin—Cuba Belle. Trained by J. M. Buckland. Value to winner, $700; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $25. Time, 1:52 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADINO, $7.00, $4.00, $3.00; SAND CLOUD, $9.00, $5.00; MISS TIPTOE, $5.00.

LADINO, shuffled back going to the first turn, was steadied along while saving ground, was taken to the outside for racing room entering the stretch and closed with a rush to be up in the final strides. SAND CLOUD was sent to the front at once, shook off GRACE GRIER but tired in the final 25 yards. MISS TIPTOE came with good courage in the final test.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles (second division of fourth). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:30. Off at 5:30½. Winner, Rachsah Stable's b. g. (5), by The Scout—Lady Areas. Trained by P. Reuter. Value to winner, $700; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $25. Time, 1:52 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—A. O'CONNELL, $11.20, $5.50, $3.40; ZINNIA, $8.10, $5.30; MORUN, 33.20.

A. O'CONNELL, within striking distance of leaders from the start, came around horses gradually to reach ZINNIA and wore her down in the final strides. ZINNIA was sent to the front at once, opened a good lead and tired suddenly in the final sixteenth. MORUN, bothered at the start and shuffled back, improved position gradually and came with excellent courage at the end.

Selections at Bowie.

Dear Al: Another day may bring a different story, but so far the Jones finish camera being used at this track has performed excellently. I'm a tough guy as far as cameras are concerned, because I still believe they give a shade the best of it to outside horses, especially when they are placed close to the horses. However, the Jones camera takes clear pictures, even on muggy days, and the projection of the results on a screen in the betting ring has served to stop virtually all arguments. However, this camera has not had to deal with the epidemic of rip-snortin finishes that marked the meeting here last fall when several races each day developed hair-line finishes. But if the officials say we must abide by cameras, I believe that the Jones camera will do a good job. It is not "an eye-in-the-sky," such as used at Santa Anita or Narragansett Park, but it serves the purpose. Bowie officials came close to being on the spot the other day. The fed signal for a photo finish was displayed, but somebody flashed the numbers of the first and second horses on the results board. This indicated that the photo would be for third. However, the third horse took the show by eight lengths. Instead, the photo was for second money. With a number already showing in the place position, despite the fact that the "official" light was not on, it would have been mighty embarrassing for the track had not the picture shown the horse second whose number was being exhibited.

BILL.

First race—Prince Turley has shown excellent early speed in recent races. Meets only the cheapest kind in this field and may forget to stop. Frederick likes this track and is dangerous. Lernana was speedy last year hereabouts and may be ready to turn in a good race.

Second race—Remarkable probably will come right back with another winning effort in this field. Needs only the right ride. Bob C. may be better than generally rated and promises to be in the thick of contention. Jacqueline M. to take care of the others.

Third race—Postage Due comes off a fine performance and appears to be the best bet of the day. Apprehend has done about everything asked at this course and is a threat. Star Porter lagged in the early running last out. Would be prominent if off alertly.

Fourth race—Blox is another due to make it two in a row. This one ran a brilliant race on the off track last week. Standard Time, a bang-up second in that recent start, is dangerous. Broad Vision to complete the money bracket.

Fifth race—Clodion seems well placed in this group of sprinters. Needs only a helping ride to take down the chief award. Aglow gets in light and may not stop with the feather assignment. Billy Bee has worked well for a race of this sort.

Sixth race—Prince Pettie was poorly handled last out. May go to the front of this field and stay there. Rose Bittle, on general good form, promises to be a threat. Strophe, with improved handling, would be dangerous.

Ralph Guldahl Signs With Braidburn Club

Madison, N. J., April 11 (AP).—Ralph Guldahl, tall, curly haired U. S. Open champion and internationalist, has been engaged as golf professional at the Braidburn Country Club, succeeding Jim Dante, resigned. Guldahl, Mrs. Guldahl and their 4-year-old son will live in a house on the golf course.

Middleburg Hunt Draws 100 Entries

Changes Made in Program for Events Saturday, Wednesday.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Middleburg, Va., April 11.—Daniel C. Sands, racing secretary, has announced that 100 entries have been received for the two days' racing of the Middleburg Hunt next Saturday and Wednesday, April 20. These will be released as soon as compiled. A change in the racing card has been announced. The Raymond Belmont Memorial race named for the greatest gentleman rider of all times in this country, over timber for maidens and winners of one, has been shifted from Saturday to Wednesday to take care of the entries from Maryland that will run in the Harford races.

James Ryan, the great rider-trainer from Unionville, Pa., will have 12 or 15 horses going in the two days' races.

Tom Mott, jr.'s, fine mare, Dorette, is entered in the Raymond Belmont race on Wednesday. This mare has made quite a record this season with its youthful owner-rider, who is making his initial appearance on a recognized track.

Ostend, the greatest steeplechaser of the day, is sure to go in the Middleburg Cup Steeplechase, the four-mile timber feature on Saturday. Henry Frost, probably will ride Ostend. Sidney Waters will be up on Col. Torr's Lassitude II. Corn Dodger, from the Rokeby Stables of the Paul Mellons, will be ridden by his great rider-trainer, Jack Skinner, who piloted the Dodger in his debut win of the season in the Sand Hills Cup, Pinehurst, N. C. Eight other steeplechasers in this classic that carries a $1,000 prize will assure good competition for the favorites.

A great throng is expected at the two-day meeting, which is run on the beautiful Glenwood race course, estate of D. C. Sands, for the benefit of the Loudoun County Hospital. Six races will be run each day, the program to begin at 2 o'clock.

George Diffenbaugh, Elliott Spicer, Win M. A. Pro-Amateur Tourney

Wiffy Cox, Levi Yoder Are Second

Cox Wins Sweepstakes With Even Par Score; Walsh Plays.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Playing with borrowed clubs and shoes three sizes too large, George Diffenbaugh, Roanoke Country Club professional, paired with Elliott Spicer, of Indian Spring, to tack together a 4-under-par score of 68 and win the first Middle Atlantic pro-amateur of the season yesterday at Belle Haven Club in Alexandria.

A single stroke back was the Kenwood duo of Wiffy Cox and Levi Yoder, with 69, including an individual 72 by Cox that copped the pro sweepstakes prize over a field of 17 other mentors. The field boasted Frank Walsh, one of the top ranking pros of the country, from Chicago, who took 77 strokes over the deceptive wind-swept Virginia layout.

Second to Cox in the pro sweeps was his former assistant, Al Jamison, of Indian Spring, who shot the only sub-par nine of the day on his first round, a 35, but went to 39 on the incoming trip for a 74. Al Houghton, Old Point Comfort pro, was a stroke out of the money with a 75.

Six Teams Tied.

Six pro-amateur teams split the third prize money with best-all 71s: Cox with his other partners, Gillie Young, of Congressional and Maury Fitzgerald, of Kenwood; Jamison with Arthur Urban, and Harry Peacock, both of Indian Spring; Houghton, with Joe Baldwin, of Washington, and Charles Betschler, only Baltimorean in the money, with his simon-pure, partner, F. A. McNally, of Hillendale.

Diffenbaugh and Spicer dotted their card with six birdies and went over par on two holes to finish 4 under perfect figures. They wasted strokes on two of the last three holes, after having par for a 66 on the sixteenth tee.

The winning pair scored pars on the first four holes but Diffenbaugh, former Indian Spring mentor, in town for the day, birdied the fifth hole. Spicer used a stroke handicap to advantage on the eighth hole and rammed in a birdie putt on the ninth as they turned in 33.

Diffenbaugh threw in successive birdie three's on the thirteenth and fourteenth holes and Spicer added one on the next.

Cox played the finest individual round of the day and only a bogey 6 on the par 4 seventeenth hole where his tee shot found a ditch prevented the Kenwood mentor from registering an even 70. He birdied the fourth, tenth and sixteenth, placing his tee shot a few feet from the cup on the latter holes and was also over par on the short seventh.

Yoder was a perfect partner, scoring pars on the only holes that Cox slipped over and saved three strokes. He chipped and sank a 15-footer for his par on the seventeenth to clinch the second money.

Walsh Shoots a 77.

Diffenbaugh and Spicer started late and were almost an hour behind the foursome preceding them. The word was out, however, that they were out in 33 and needed only a par 9 to tie Cox and Yoder.

Walsh, who is on his way to New York after playing in the Augusta Masters' and other Southern tournaments, where he picked up nearly $1,000, was out in 40, 4 over par, but was only a stroke over on the back nine for a 37 and 77. It was the fourth lowest score of the day. He and Russ Hollebaugh, Kenwood, finished a stroke out of the money with 72.

Young and Fitzgerald, each playing with Cox, helped him on one hole, while Jamison's partners, Urban and Peacock, each aided him by single shots on three different holes. Baldwin helped Houghton by 4 strokes while McNally proved a good partner, aiding Charlie Betschler's individual score of 79 by 8 shots.

Houghton found the short, water-guarded seventh hole a Jonah, taking a 1 over par 4 the first time around and hitting the water the second time, requiring 5 shots. He played par golf excluding this hole.

The tournament is the opening one for the pros of the Mid-Atlantic section and is the last until the championship at the Chamberlin Country Club, Old Point Comfort, Va., April 22, 23 and 24, including a 36-hole pro-amateur on the former date. The purse will be $1,000 and the event will include all of yesterday's field except Walsh, Bobby Cruickshank, Bob Barnett, Errie Ball, Jack Isaacs and others, also will play.

The Results.

Wiffy Cox and Levi Yoder, Kenwood, 35, 34—69; Cox and Maury Fitzgerald, Kenwood, 35, 36—71; Cox and Gillie Young, Congressional, 35, 36—71; George Diffenbaugh, Roanoke, and Elliott Spicer, Indian Spring, 33, 35—68; Diffenbaugh and R. Pettingill, Indian Spring, 36, 37—73; Al Jamison and Harry Peacock, Indian Spring, 35, 36—71; Jamison and Arthur Urban, Indian Spring, 35, 36—71; Al Houghton, Chamberlin, and Joe Baldwin, Washington, 36, 35—71; Houghton and F. W. Calfee, Washington, 38, 35—73; Houghton and L. S. Goode, Washington, 39, 37—75; Charles Betschler and F. A. McNally, Hillendale, 34, 37—71; Betschler and Eddie Semmler, Hillendale, 35, 38—73; Betschler and H. D. Hamp, Hillendale, 36, 40—76.

Blackhawks Are Favored

Hockey Teams Resume Series Tonight.

Chicago, April 11 (AP).—Within one game of winning the Stanley Cup and the hockey championship that goes with it, the Chicago Black Hawks battle the Toronto Maple Leafs tomorrow night in the fourth game of the series.

If the Hawks lose the teams will move on to Toronto for the deciding game Thursday night.

Victory for the Hawks tomorrow night would end it. Defeat would force the teams to play the limit of five games.

With prospects of a nerve-tingling battle similar to one of Sunday night, when players on both teams engaged in numerous fights and wrestling, another record-breaking crowd surpassing the paid attendance of 18,496 at last night's battle may pack the Chicago stadium to standing room.

Manager Bill Stewart of the Hawks, who in his first year has injected enough of his personal fire into the team to bring it up to its present status, declared his players were ready for another bruising conflict. Stewart was particular in his praise for Mike Karakas, the goalie, who played with a broken big toe encased in a cast and Elwyn "Doc" Romnes, veteran center, who used a Purdue football helmet and nose guard attached to protect his schnozzola which had been broken in three places.

Lynch Wins Squash Tilts

Hugh Lynch, ranking District tennis player, moved squarely to the fore of the District A. A. U. squash tournament yesterday by scoring well-earned, third-round and quarter-final victories on the Y. M. C. A. courts.

In the first of these tilts, Lynch took a 15-11, 18-17 decision over Richard O'Connor in a third-round match postponed from last Saturday. Following this match, Lynch displayed remarkable stamina in coming from behind to turn back top-seeded John Pratt in a torrid three-game struggle. The scores were 9—15, 17—15, 15—9.

Other quarter-final results found Lieut. William Howard defeating Chester Lane, 15—7, 15—6, and Gilbert Hunt defeating Stanley McCaskey, 17—16, 15-13. The E. B. Brownell-Allen Minnix match was postponed to 12 o'clock today.

Four players move into the semi-final round tomorrow night, with Lynch meeting Lieut. Howard at 6:30, and Hunt meeting the winner of the Brownell-Minnix tilt at 7:30.

Virginia Trackmen Defeat Keydets

Charlottesville, Va., April 11 (AP).—The University of Virginia varsity and freshmen track teams defeated V. M. I. squads here this afternoon.

The Cavalier varsity's margin over the State champion keydet team was 67 2-3 to 58 1-3. The Virginia freshmen won 71½ to 44½.

The varsity duel hinged on the two final events, discus and broad jump, with V. M. I. making a clean sweep of the former with a football line-up of Al Fiedler, Paul Shu and Red Echols. Virginia clinched the meet by taking first and second in the broad jump with Ed Lowrance and Mac Gordon leaping ahead of Effinger Herring, Cadet captain and the meet's individual star.

Herring defeated Billy Hopkins in stirring 100 and 220 contests, clocking times of 10 and 21.8 seconds, respectively.

GOMEZ SHELLED.

Atlanta, April 11 (AP).—The Atlanta Crackers hit Lefty Gomez hard today but the New York Yankees pounded Luman Harris even harder to take their second straight game from the Southern Association club, 9 to 4.

The Crackers took a 3-0 lead in the first two innings, nicking Gomez for five hits, only to have the Yanks bunch five blows in the third to tie the score. The New Yorkers piled up the rest of their runs in the next three frames, aided by Tommy Henrich's homer with bases empty in the fifth.

PHILS WIN SIXTH, 5-0.

Asheville, N. C., April 11 (AP).—The Philadelphia National Leaguers won their sixth consecutive game today, blanking Asheville of the Piedmont League, 5 to 0.

The Phils put the game on ice in the third inning, combining two hits, two bases on balls and an error for four runs.

Catcher Walter Stephenson, playing before the home folk, started the third inning scoring and got two of the Phils' six hits. Al Smith and Pete Sivess, sharing the pitching assignment for the Phils, each allowed three hits.

Handball Events In 'Y' Tourney Go to Favorites

Offering a decided contrast to last week's cumbersome entry list in the B and C classes, a small but select group of Class A players stepped into the spotlight as the final week of the annual all-Y. M. C. A. handball tourney got under way last night.

Four opening round singles matches found all the favorites emerging victorious, with young Walter Engelhardt being the only one extended. George Newman forced the young G. W. star into the third game before bowing, 21-7, 5-21, 21-4. Two doubles matches are scheduled for this afternoon and tonight.

Last night's scores and tonight's pairings: George Wendlandt defeated George Iverson, 21-6, 21-12; L. C. Moore defeated Al Tappan, 21-16, 21-15, and Gustave Goldstein defeated J. B. Payne, 21-17, 21-15.

Walter Engelhardt and George Newman meet Quenton Gabrielli and Dan Arnold at 4:30, and W. C. Woodward and L. Vineberg face Bert Bunce and Gustave Goldstein at 7:30.

Hawaiian Boxing Team Guest in Capital

Ten boys comprising the Hawaiian boxing team, en route home from the National A. A. U. tournament held last week in Boston, were guests of Delegate Samuel Wilder King, of Hawaii, at the Capitol yesterday during a brief stopover.

Later in the day they boarded a plane for Kansas City where they will box an amateur team of that city tonight. Dr. Arthur Duryea, of Honolulu, is managing the party, which will sail for home from San Francisco Saturday.

Colored Departmental League Holds Meeting

Reorganization plans for the 1938 campaign and a tentative playing schedule will be discussed by team representatives of the Colored Departmental League Thursday night at their initial meeting at 1029 Park road northwest. All are requested to be present by 7:30 o'clock.

Invitations have been extended to the Police Boys Club and Welfare Department to enter teams. This will be the circuit's twenty-sixth consecutive year in the sandlot field.

Jim Londos Holds Key to Wrestling Program Outdoors

An attractive outdoor wrestling program, featuring Jim Londos, is being mapped out by Joe Turner, but the entire set-up hinges on the Greek's success against Dr. John Murphy Thursday night at the Arena. If he looks good enough Turner will proceed with his plans, but if he looks bad—regardless of the outcome—the promoter may have to make alterations.

Turner's second major problem lies in securing topnotch opposition for the former world title holder, or whoever is cast in the spot. "Crusher" Casey is one he'd like to sign, Bronko Nagurski another, and Everett Marshall, a third. Whether or not he can get all three when he wants them is something else.

If interest in Londos warrants such a move, Turner may bring Casey in against him in a championship go. Such a match would have to draw at least 10,000 before Casey would consent to putting his laurels on the line.

In the event Londos fails to lure lost customers back into the fold, Turner has a half-dozen other outstanding matches in mind to work with. These include Nagurski vs. Murphy or Ernie Dusek; Marshall vs. Joe Cox, Yvon Robert vs. Casey, Londos vs. Nagurski, Nagurski vs. Marshall, James vs. Bob Gregory (Princess Baba in the corner—maybe).

G. W. Frosh Card Seven Net Matches

Seven matches are on the George Washington freshman tennis schedule announced yesterday by Max Farrington, graduate manager of athletics. The season opens a week from Friday with Central High School and closes May 14 with Western High School. Matches with Mercersburg Prep and Friends School are pending.

The complete schedule: April 22, Central; 29, Episcopal; May 4, Wilson; 6, Roosevelt; 10, St. Alban's; 12, at Maryland Frosh; 14, Western.

Front Royal Defeats Woodstock Nine, 10-3

Woodstock, Va., April 11.—In the opening game of the Northern Virginia Tri-County League, Front Royal High School defeated Woodstock, 10-3, in a seven-inning game.

Weil Seeking Escobar Bout

Denies Archibald Will Only Fight 'Set-ups.'

Rotund little Al Weil, Joey Archibald's manager, is in town and raving about the press notices his fair-haired puncher is getting. Mr. Weil, strictly a business man, wants the shot at Sixto Escobar and his world bantamweight title, promised him by the matchmaker, and contends that he won't get it unless the newspaper boys desist from saying Joey picks on setups.

"We took Scibelli only because your matchmaker insisted on him," Weil stormed. "We knew he was a pushover and couldn't punch his way out of a paper bag, and we really wanted somebody who'd make a good fight of it. But no, the matchmaker says we gotta take him, so who'm I to throw a lotta money away? If the matchmaker is satisfied with that kind of a performance it's all right with us. We took the match, and what happened?

"Right away they say we're picking on setups, won't fight anybody able to make it close, and prefer candidates for the home for the aged. Phooey. I don't like that. It's not fair to Archibald or me. Get us somebody that can fight and make the price right and we'll fight 'em. We don't draw the line on anybody."

Weil was to be in Johnny Duba's corner last night when the New York boy squared off with Joey Ingram in the 8-round semifinal. Abe Denner, originally scheduled to box Ingram, had to beg off because of an eleventh-hour training injury. Otherwise the card for last night's show remained intact, with an extra bout added. Kid Howie, colored District lightweight, was to meet William White.

Central Defeats Georgetown Prep

In the first of three games to tune his protegees for their inter-high series play, Coach Jack Ray's Central nine opened the season yesterday with a 14-2 win over Georgetown Prep at Garrett Park.

Dick Rozelle pitched a good game, allowing the Prep boys only two hits. Meanwhile, his mates were poking out 12 hits and scoring in the second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth innings for an easy victory. Benny Steiner, Pat Hurley and Tony DiBlasi led Central at the bat, while Kelly and Zayas were the only two Georgetowners able to connect safely.

Central entertains Briarly Military Academy today at 3:15 o'clock.

De Ruzzo, Pacho Draw; Sicilia Loses Decision

New York, April 11 (U.P.).—Pete De Ruzzo, 143¾, Mamaroneck, N. Y., held the favored Bobby Pacho, 145½, from Sacramento, Calif., to an eight-round draw in the feature match on the Royal Windsor's boxing card tonight.

Fox Beats Trammell.

Pittsburgh, April 11 (AP).—Tiger Jack Fox, Seattle, Wash., Negro, floored Jack Trammell, Youngstown Negro, twice in the first round tonight, then coasted on to a decision in ten rounds. Fox, who weighed 181½, and Trammel, weighing 183½, both are seeking a chance to meet John Henry Lewis, world's light-heavyweight champion.

Golf Tournament Of Variety Club Scheduled May 20

Members of the local Variety Club, organization of showmen who last year sponsored the charity bout between Champion Freddie Steele and Hobo Williams as well as the all-star scholastic football game and thus assured charity here nearly $10,000, have scheduled a sports event in which they can benefit themselves.

This will be the showmens annual golf tournament, Carter Barron and Sam Galanty, division manager, co-chairmen of Variety's sports committee announce that this annual tourney will be staged Friday, May 20, at the Congressional Country Club. Competition will be held in the afternoon and the event will be climaxed that evening with a dinner and dance.

There will be some half dozen classifications, each a handicap affair. A large array of trophies and other prizes will be placed in competition. Entries are being handled by Harry Brown, Grand National Pictures, 203 I street northwest. Competition is open to all Varieteers and their friends.

Anacostia And Wilson Clash Today

By Perry Wilkinson.

Anacostia High School, under the direction of Coach Rolland Lund, will make its debut in interhigh sports today against the Woodrow Wilson nine on the Eastern field at 3:15.

The game will inaugurate high school series play, and for that reason, a sizable crowd is expected to be on hand.

Wilson, guided by Carl Heintell, has a year's experience in interhigh play, but this does not stamp them as a favorite. Perhaps the main reason is because Coach Heintell has not been able to find a pitcher to replace Kilmer Bortz, who twirled masterful ball last season.

Lund is optimistic about his group of young athletes. He stated yesterday the club had plenty of slab artists and besides the boys could really hit and field well.

Coach Heintell will send the following boys into action in an effort to stop the confident Anacostians: Dave Maloney, centerfield; John Stevens, leftfield; Bartley Fugler, rightfield; Bill Hawkesworth, first base; Ray Duehring, second base; Raffe Mesrobian, shortstop; Brassie Hoskinson, third base; Buck Barbee, catcher, and Herman Byer, pitcher.

W. McC. Martin, 31, Heads Slate For 'Big Board'

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 11.—William McChesney Marin, jr., 31, member of the St. Louis firm of A. C. Edwards & Sons, today stood in line to become the youngest head of the New York Stock Exchange in its 146 years of history.

Martin was named by the nominating committee of the exchange as its official candidate for chairman of the governing committee, the top elective office of the big market under its new constitutional set-up. The election will be held May 9. The committee, in a notice to members explaining its nomination of Martin and 27 members of the new board of governors, said:

"The character of the group which we have selected speaks for itself. It may be interesting to the membership to know, however, that of the 16 floor members (including the chairman), whom we have nominated eight have never before served as governors, and of the eight others only one has served more than one full term. Of the six non-member partners to be elected three of our nominees have never served as governor and three have served one term each. Of the six out-of-town nominees four have never served before and two have served one term each."

Gay Not on Slate.

Conspicuously absent from the official slate was the name of Charles R. Gay, the present non-salaried incumbent of the president's office. The next president will be a salaried official chosen by the new board of governors.

Martin was a leader of the "liberal group" in the drive to put through the new constitution. His father is a governor of the St. Louis Federal Reserve Bank, in which the son was employed after his graduation from Yale in 1928. His activities include a trusteeship in the new School for Social Research and participation in the faculty in the field of political and social science. He was a founder, and, until recently, an editor of the Economic Forum.

Not only his liberal record, it is said, but his close and exact knowledge of exchange technique and history contributed to his selection. He was secretary of the committee which suggested the new constitution and of the committee which framed the amendments.

Out-of-Town Candidates.

Local Stores Report Sharp Sales Gains

All reporting department stores in Washington showed gains over the previous week, one registering an increase of 116 per cent due to special promotional events, says the weekly survey of the Department of Commerce. The remaining stores averaged an increase of 19.90 per cent. All except one reported gains over the corresponding week a year ago, averaging 10.05 per cent. Clearings, $26,690,451; year ago, $29,777,813. Visitors to the Smithsonian Institution, 71,781, previous week, 50,769; year ago, 60,694. Building permits, $254,775; year ago, $536,500. Building permits, March, $1,630,250; March 1937, $2,759,550.

The retail trade situation of the country showed some improvement during the first few days of April, according to reports to the department from 36 key cities. For the first time in a number of weeks, an impressive group of cities reported a greater trade volume than for the corresponding period last year. The following cities were listed in this category: New Orleans Wilmington, Milwaukee, Norfolk, Houston, Boston, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Omaha, and Atlanta.

In a number of other cities no change one way or the other was noted, while losses from the previous year definitely were reported in New York, Detroit, Indianapolis, Jacksonvile, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Charleston, Pittsburgh and St. Louis.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Yield to Profit-Taking in Less Active Trading; U. S. Bonds Lower.

New York, April 11.—Stocks gave up a point or so of their closing gains of last week as profit-taking was substituted for the spontaneous outbreak of buying that made Saturday a relief day for the bulls. Closing prices were irregularly lower with losses in some of the dealers of 1 to 3 points on a turnover of a little over a million shares, most of it coming in the forenoon. United States bonds were mostly lower. May wheat dropped ⅞ of a cent to 84 cents a bushel.

Profit-taking in stocks, which began with the opening of the market, was the natural reaction to the suddenness and scope of the rise in prices last Saturday. That rise, based almost wholly upon the stock trader's satisfaction over the fact that Congress still could be stimulated out of a state of coma long enough to defeat a pet measure of President Roosevelt, was not based upon anything substantial enough to carry forward without supporting forces. In an optimistic frame of mind the market can find hope for such support, but not a great deal; for business will require much more than mere mutiny by Congress against the skipper.

One reason for encouragement was the passage of a tax bill by the Senate which does away with the undistributed profits tax and gives a better treatment to capital gains. However, the bill, even if approved by the House, leaves much that is disturbing in the tax laws, and the fact remains that taxes will continue to be crushingly high. Corporations will now, if they can find them, be able to retain some of their funds if directors deem it imprudent to distribute all to stockholders; but the main question is whether profits can be found.

As for other relief from Congress, the President passed the buck on the railroad relief program to that body, but other major barriers to business enterprise are unlikely to be removed by Congress. Among them are the public utility act, measures tending to lock the wheels of new capital issues, and a change in the President's attitude toward business.

Railroad Aid.

Wall Street, or sections of it, appeared to be familiar with the general terms of the President's message on railroads, for the rails to some extent and the railroad equipment stocks to a greater degree hardened before publication around noon. After the message had appeared the mild buying movement slowed down, partly under the influence of a fresh weakening of industrial stocks. The most favorable part of the message seemed to be the President's suggestion that immediate action ought to be taken by Congress.

The market was less interested in the long term means for assisting the roads than it was in the prospect for immediate financial aid. In transmitting to Congress the plan of the ICC for railroad aid, the President put before Congress suggestions for a $300,000,000 fund for purchase of equipment and for easier terms on RFC loans direct to the roads. Other suggestions were given merely as such, and while they may have merit, the present crying need of the railroads—in lieu of a much larger gain in traffic than there is any possibility of receiving—is the power to cut their expenditures.

Naturally the Administration opposes that as poor politics, for it does not wish to see wages reduced, but as the financial community views the matter, the present record scale of wages can be maintained only at taxpayers' expense, and although disguised that is public ownership's disadvantages without any compensating benefits. Reorganization is another way out, but only provided enormous losses be taken by railroad investors, including the savings banks and the insurance companies. Losses on that score already are very high, but in some cases are not yet definitely recognized as losses.

Business Still Drags.

On the business side there is discernible a somewhat brighter shade of sentiment, although actual operations are little changed. Probably the ability of the stock market to find a rallying point is having something to do with the better feeling, although cause and effect may have been the other way round. This week's operating rate for the steel industry, according to the estimate of the American Iron & Steel Institute, will be 32.7 per cent of capacity, against 32.6 per cent last week. This is a time of year when the steel trade usually slides a little, but last year operations were still above 90 per cent of capacity.

Relief for Francs.

Pressure upon francs lightened materially on news of the formation of the Daladier government and in a dull market the French currency climbed 3 points. There was a feeling that events in France were moving in the right direction; the principal argument was on whether the trend had begun too late. A bad sign was the rapid spread of strikes and civil disorders. Dollars were weaker against strling and guilders. This being Easter week, the foreign exchange markets abroad are less active than usual and developments in this country such as the proposals to spend more billions for relief and public works have an influence greater than might otherwise be the case.

Wheat Prices Drop After Early Rally

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 11.—Tumbles of 1¼ cents in Chicago wheat prices late today more than offset early fractional gains resulting from unlooked for sharp upturns of Liverpool quotations.

Most traders here judged correctly in advance that a bearish showing would be made by the United States Government April crop report, due after the close. In line with their belief, the report indicated 1938 domestic winter wheat production would total 725,707,000 bushels, as against the latest unofficial average forecast of 717,000,000 bushels.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ⅜@1⅛ under Saturday's finish, May 83⅞@84, July 80¾@⅞, corn ¼@⅜ up, May 60⅝@¾, July 62@62⅛, oats at ¼ decline to an equal advance, rye ¼@½ down, and provisions unchanged to 25 cents drop.

Winter Wheat Estimate.

The Agriculture Department reported yesterday that a winter wheat crop of 725,707,000 bushels was indicated by April 1 crop conditions. Production was 685,102,000 bushels last year. Average production for the ten years, 1927-1936, was 546,396,000 bushels.

February Rise of 6.3 Per Cent Is First Since June Last Year.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

An increase of 6.3 per cent in February in the money borrowed from savings, building and loan associations is reported by the United States Building and Loan League, comparing the volume with January. While receding about 19.8 per cent from February a year ago, this year's second month total of $66,501,800 represents the first upward trend of the volume of advances since last June.

Edward C. Baltz, of this city, president of the league, says that the figures on loans to purchase homes indicate a reviving market for existing residential real estate after the usual slowing down of the winter months. Major portion of the gain in total volume of advances for all purposes was in the purchase loan class, which went up 14 per cent over the previous month, and was only $7,000,000 less than February a year ago. There was, however, some gain in each of the other classifications, construction loans, modernization and repair, refinancing and miscellaneous.

The league's figures for past years have not established any seasonal normalcy for the movement of loan values between January and February. In 1937, as this year, there was a slight upturn, but in 1936 the trend was downward. For this reason, Mr. Baltz thinks that there is something more than seasonal encouragement with regard to the business situation to be had from the loan figures of the savings and loan institutions.

Life Sales Congress.

Vernon W. Holleman, Washington general agent for the Home Life Insurance Co. of New York, and chairman of the Washington-Baltimore Joint Sales Congress of Life Underwriters, announced yesterday that this annual sales meeting will be held May 6, at the Lord Baltimore Hotel, in Baltimore.

Heading the list of the speakers for the one-day session is O. Sam Cummings, president of the National Association of Life Underwriters. Announcement was also made that Neil Carothers, of Lehigh University, will also speak on the program. Arrangements have been made for transportation and Mr. Holleman expressed the opinion that attendance this year would be one of the largest in the history of these congresses.

A. B. A. Executive Council.

Four Washington bankers are in attendance at the spring session of the executive council, governing body of the American Bankers Association, at Edgewater Park, near Biloxi, Miss. They are: President Robert V. Fleming, of Riggs National Bank, a past president of the association and ex-officio member of the council; Vice President and Cashier George O. Vass, of Riggs National Bank, a member of the council, representing the District of Columbia Bankers Association; Vice President and Cashier Wilmer J. Waller, of Hamilton National Bank, member of the executive committee of the National Bank Division and of the committee on bank mangement, and President Francis G. Addison, jr., of Security Savings & Commercial Bank, member of the executive committee of the State Bank Division and of the Federal legislative committee of that division.

The session called by President Orval W. Adams, of the American

Bankers Association, is being attended by 113 council members representing banks in the 48 States and the District of Columbia. Twenty committees and commissions are making reports covering bank management, insurance, membership, State legislation, commerce and marine, economic policy, finance, public education, State banks and trust companies, agriculture and public relations.

Potomac Insurance Co.

Potomac Insurance Co., of the District of Columbia, is now 107 years old, and its latest annual report shows assets of more than $4,700,000. This company operates under a charter granted by an act of Congress on March 2, 1831, approved by President Andrew Jackson and Vice President John C. Calhoun.

The report shows that surplus, reserves and assets increased substantially during the fiscal year, the company ending the 12 months with a surplus over all liabilities of more than $1,400,000. Officers of the company are: George W. White, chairman of the board; Frederick Richardson, president; Thomas C. Moore, vice president and manager; A. A. Hoehling, second vice president; Alexander K. Phillips, secretary; J. W. Lawler and William C. Dent, assistant secretaries.

D. C. Bankers' Dinner.

The preconvention dinner of the District of Columbia Bankers Association will be held at Columbia Country Club, Wednesday, May 11 at 7:30 p. m., according to invitations being issued by President Thomas J. Groom, of the organization. Approximately 200 bankers, bank directors and guests are expected in attendance.

D. C. Life Underwriters.

Nomination for the directorate of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association include James A. DeForce, B. H. Lingo, Earl D. Krewson, Theodore W. Cook, Joseph A. Marr and R. L. Baldwin. Three vacancies on the board are to be filled at the May meeting.

COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia, April 11, 1938. A public hearing having been held by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia in the matter of closing Lincoln road northeast and providing for certain street dedications in connection therewith, in the northeast section, and the said Commissioners being satisfied as to the equity, justice and advisability of said closing, and that the same is in the public interests and not detrimental to the interests of abutting property owners, notice is hereby given that the said Commissioners have prepared the following order: "Ordered: That pursuant to the provisions of Public Act No. 307, approved December 15, 1932, Lincoln road between Franklin street and Michigan avenue northeast, as shown on plat filed in the office of the surveyor of the District of Columbia, numbered as Map No. 2075, is hereby ordered closed, same to take effect on and after May 10, 1938, the title to the land comprised within the lines of said road to be closed to revert to the abutting property owners, as shown on said map; and in connection therewith a dedication is provided on said plat for the extension and widening of Franklin street and for the widening of Fourth street and Harewood road south of and adjacent to Michigan avenue northeast." Any and all parties interested must file objections to said closing of Lincoln road in writing before the effective date of above order; otherwise said order shall become effective on May 10, 1938, as aforesaid, and said road between the limits referred to shall on and after said date become closed in accordance with the provisions of said act. MELVIN C. HAZEN, GEORGE E. ALLEN, DAN I. SULTAN, Commissioners of the District of Columbia. 11.14t.dexSun

Bob Burns Says—

There's no question about it, love is one of the greatest moving forces in mankind. Its influence goes so much deeper than the mushy sentiment you hear about in songs. It inspires men to do bigger and better things.

My uncle said that his own boy was one of the laziest men around the dairy 'til he fell in love with one of the milk-maids. He says now his boy keeps the milk-cans shined as bright as a silver dollar.

I says, "Well, what has his bein' in love got to do with his keepin' the milk-cans so shiny?" My uncle says, "Well, he hasta look at himself every ten minutes to see if his hair is layin' down."

ROY POWERS, EAGLE SCOUT— The Agent Is Amazed By Paul Powell

Registered U. S. Patent Office

THIS IS AN ISLAND I'M GIVING YOU BOYS - AND THERE'S NO BRIDGE - SO THE FIRST THING TO BE PRODUCED IN MY FACTORY WHEN THE NEW MACHINERY COMES WILL BE A BOAT FOR CROSSING TO THE ISLAND -
I ASKED YOU TO STICK AROUND BECAUSE I THOUGHT YOU MIGHT GIVE ME A HAND ARRANGING FOR TRUCKS TO MOVE IN MY NEW SPECIAL MACHINERY
OH SURE, UNCLE BOB - I DIDN'T KNOW IT HAD COME - I REMEMBER YOU WERE WORRIED ABOUT IT
A LITTLE LATER - ALL THE BOYS EXCEPT ROY HAVE GONE TO INSPECT THE ISLAND IN A BORROWED BOAT - UNCLE BOB HAS ASKED ROY TO REMAIN BEHIND . . .
I WAS WORRIED - BECAUSE I'VE BEEN SWAMPED WITH ORDERS FOR BOATS SINCE THE COMET WON THE CAMERON CUP, AND I CAN'T BEGIN WORK WITHOUT THE MACHINERY - IT'S AN ENTIRE CARLOAD AND IT ARRIVED LAST NIGHT - LET'S GO DOWN TO THE FREIGHT STATION AND SEE ABOUT HAVING IT TRANSFERRED
YOU BET, UNCLE BOB - LET'S GO
I CAN'T FIGGER IT OUT MR BROWN! IT JUST SEEMS IMPOSSIBLE! IN MY WHOLE 30 YEARS ON THE RAILROAD I NEVER HEARD TELL OF SUCH A THING BEFORE!
WHAT IS IT, MAN? WHAT ARE YOU TALKING ABOUT?
